

CONTENTS

xv

BOOK VI.

THE PULPIT ORATORS OF GREAT BRITAIN

	PAGE
Hugh Latimer	564
The Sermon of the Plow	565
John Knox	567
God's Power Above that of Things	568
John Wesley	569
Irreligion Among College People	570
George Whitefield	572
A Warning Against Worldly Ways	573
Innocent Diversions	574
John Henry Newman	575
The Evils of Money Getting	576
Henry Edward Manning	578
Rome the Eternal	579
Arthur Penrhyn Stanley	581
The Lesson of Palmerston's Life	582
Charles H. Spurgeon	584
The Authorship of the Bible	585
Joseph Parker	587
Human Frivolity	588

BOOK VII.

ORATORS OF THE FRENCH REVOLUTION

Count Honore de Mirabeau	590
And yet you Deliberate	591
The Privileged and the People	593
Pierre Vergniaud	595
An Appeal to the People	596
The Despotism of the Jacobins	597
George Jacques Danton	598
Let France be Free	599
To Dare; Always to Dare	600
Jean Paul Marat	601
A Defense from Impeachment	602
Maximilien Isidore Robespierre	603
A Final Appeal	604

BOOK VIII.

NINETEENTH CENTURY ORATORS OF FRANCE

Victor Cousin	606
Supremacy of the Art of Poetry	607
Alphonse de Lamartine	608
What is the French Revolution?	609
Safety only in the Republic	610