

The Source of Power and Light.

Just as the Indians and our own forefathers lived unconscious of this mighty transforming force, which, like a sea of ether, surrounded them, so we have been living in the immediate presence of the eternal God, by whose word the worlds were created, and we have been unconscious of it, or have at best taken but a languid interest in the fact. And yet it is the sine qua non of victory, the philosopher's stone, transmuting everything into gold, the elixir of life that gives perpetual youth. Oh, that the children of the King would cultivate a consciousness of His personal all-pervading presence.

“My presence shall go with you
And I shall give you rest.”
