MUSIC HALL STARS AND ROYAL TOUR.

Comedians to Play Before the King on Lancashire Tour—Mr. Neil Kenyon's Career.

During the visit of the King and Queen to Lancashire in the summer there will be on July 7 a notable variety performance at Knowsley Hall, where their Majesties are to be the guests of Lord Derby.

Mr. Frank Allen, managing director of Moss Empires and the London Hippodrome, is arranging the programme, and so far the following artists have been selected: Mr. G. Graves and Co., "Koffo of Bond Street"; Mr. Neil Kenyon, "The Postman of Dunrobin Town"; Mr. George Formy—Lancashire Dialect Comedian; Mr. Tom Edwards—Ventriloquist.

Olgar, Elgar and E.H. Hudson—Musical; Frank and Vesta... Dancing Number; Neil Kenyon... one of those selected, gave a press representative a characteristic account of his stage career.

"I was born," he said, "at Greenock of Scottish parents, from whom one day, when they were not looking, I was forth at an absurdly early age to become a great actor on the instant and without any trouble whatsoever. I had already tasted the joys of the stage in an amateur sort of way, and I had appeared for a local charity in one-line part, the one-line part which went completely out of my head at the very time I most wanted it, whereupon, resolved on a sudden disappearance, I fled in a backward instead of a sideward direction off the stage, and went slop through the precious scenery."

"It was my plan to shine in Shakespeare, for it is not on record that Mr. Osmond Tearle's touring company I played Lady to his Othello? In the earlier stages of my dramatic fever I interpreted the subtle characteristics of Dick Turpin in a village circus. My trusty "Black Bear" was really as black as she was painted, and quite a lot of her came off on my white buxkin breeches, which destroyed a good deal of the romance as well.

"My first appearance as a comedian was made quite by accident. One night in 1868. Somebody fell out with the manager, and I fell into his part of a comic dame. For Mr. Arthur Collins came round to the back of the stage after the performance and engaged me for the Baron in his "Babes in the Wood" pantomime at Drury Lane.

"After that—such is the contrage of fate—

The Chin

By HOWARD L. RANN

THE chin is a small, dimpled bump which is used in conversation more than any other agent except the tongue. A person who is equipped with a rotary chin and a swivel tongue doesn't need anything else in order to become a star conversationalist.

The chin is hung immediately below the tongue, which uses it to gesture with. When the tongue becomes excited it is sure of a sympathetic response from the chin, which wags violently up and down and imparts vivacity to the human countenance. A person is said to be "chinning" when he talks entirely with that member, rather than go higher up and bring down an original remark or two.

Most people are provided with only one chin, which does not seem to interfere with their conversation, however. Others are more generously favored by nature and have a bas relief edition except the double chin. The double chin is a sure sign of a joyous disposition and an unimpeded appetite. It is getting so that women who want to engage household servants always give the preference to a double-chinned cook, as the family can sleep until nine o'clock in the morning without starting any fire-works in the kitchen. If more people would cultivate double chins, there would be fewer growlers served along with the breakfast food.

A popular type of chin is the receding variety, which is supposed to indicate indecision of character. Sometimes it does an admirable job, as backed by an iron will and a right arm like a pile driver.

The sharp, razor-edged chin, which runs out to a peak, is often sung by the poets, who declare that it is invariably worn by the pessimist and the dyspeptic. If all depends, we have seen some angular, three-cornered chins whose owners bought more pancake flour and knickerbocker pants for the poor in one year than a dozen chubby-faced professors of religion. You can no more judge the disposition of a man by his chin than you can tell the age of a hen by her teeth.

MANAGERS—I was engaged at the Apollo to play a Scottish Pasha in "The Islanders"; and then I went on to the halls, as the phrase goes.

"As a further proof of my early associations with the more exalted circles of dramatic enterprise, let me say that I was once with Wills Barrett at the Princess. I didn't play the hero, for Mr. Barrett had already engaged himself for that character, but I had a fairly prominent position in the "crowd," from which I enjoyed an excellent view of the audience at moments that it was not interrupted by rival superiors with more "push" than I then possessed. The play was "The Daughters of Babylon," and I was really very young!"

A SAFE MEDICINE FOR THE BABY.

Baby's Own Tablets are a safe medicine for little ones. In fact they are guaranteed by a government analyst to be absolutely free from opiates of any of the drugs so harmful to the lives of little ones. The Tablets never do harm, always good and may be given to the new-born babe or growing child with equal safety. They never fail to cure constipation, indigestion, colic, break up colds and fevers and make teething easy. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WHY FRANCE IS ARMING.

"To Ensure Respect and Conquer if Need Be."

A stirring patriotic speech was delivered by M. Etienne, the new French Minister of War, to an audience of 8,000 gymnasts assembled on Monday for the annual fetes of the Federation of Gymnastic Societies.

After referring to the pleasant, deep, and comforting emotion with which the spectacle of those youthful battalions from all corners of France Algeria and Tunis filled him, he continued: "We have known days of sadness and great misfortune, but France, thanks to the Republic, has been able to retrieve her place in the world. To keep this place, and to fortify our position, we must have an army able to compete with any other."

"That is why we have desired boldly and resolutely to ask the country to make a considerable sacrifice, for we considered that the existence of France was bound up with that sacrifice. When startling truths appear—as for example, that a neighbouring army is being increased from 500,000 to 800,000 men, shall we, shall you, remain passive before it, or shall the country be wiped out for the faults of the past and regained a place which no one can take from it, if you will it so, France must have a strong army, strong not only in number, but also in quality. France must be able to insure respect for herself, and must also be able to conquer, should the need arise. You will be the conquerors of to-morrow, if you will it so."

Three cheers and loud applause greeted the conclusion of the speech. Lord Rosebery, who was on a visit to Viehy, was asked by the organisers of the fetes to honour them with his presence that day. He therefore appeared at the banquet, and took a seat at the bottom of the room. He was received by M. Etienne, Minister of Agriculture, who hastened to invite him to the chairman's table. Lord Rosebery thanked the Minister warmly, but said he preferred to remain an ordinary guest. After the banquet he conversed with Mr. Barthelemy and expressed his pleasure at having heard the Premier's speech.

WOMAN RISES To Tell Her Sisters They Can Find Relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. John Cabot After Six Years' Suffering, Tried Dodd's Kidney Pills and Found New Life and Energy.

WHITE HEAD PERCE, Que. May 25.—(Special)—One, more woman has risen to tell her suffering sisters they can find relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills. That woman is Mrs. John Cabot, well known and highly respected here, and she expresses her enthusiasm in these words: "I certainly recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills. There is nothing better."

Asked to give her experience, Mrs. Cabot continued: "My trouble started in a cold, and I suffered for six years. Rheumatism, neuralgia, stiffness of the joints, cramps in the muscles and heart flutterings were among my symptoms, and finally Bright's Disease developed. It was then I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and they helped me almost from the start. After taking four boxes I feel like a new woman."

Dodd's Kidney Pills cure the kidneys. Healthy kidneys strain all the impurities and poisons—all the seeds of disease—out of the blood. Dodd's Kidney Pills not only cure the disease, but by ensuring good blood give new life and energy to every part of the body.
