Singing Possesses Health Giving Quali ties-An Electric Bell Substit

Professor Hutchinson, F.R.S., reports the case of a lady who could not take tea because it made her feet icy cold and wet with perspiration.
She thought that the soles were chiefly affected and that the hands were also made cold, but not so markedly as the feet. Mr. Hutchinson had long been familiar with the fact that tea made the feet of some persons cold, but did not know that cold prespiration attended it. believed the coldness to be caused by contraction of the arteries, inasmuch as the feet shrank. Alcohol had usu-ally an opposite effect.

Sing While Marching.

A German army doctor has discovered that singing possesses health giving properties. He claims that it intensifies the respiratory move-ments, thus rendering the lungs capable of dealing with more air. This increases and strengthens the action of all the organs of the body. Ap-petite and thirst increase, and the nore frequent movements diaphragm materially aid digestion German foot soldiers are therefore encouraged to sing on the march.

substitute for an electric bell has been devised by a deaf couple. Not being able to hear the bell the nselves, and having no servant, they have fixed up an arrangement by means of which when the button at the front door is pressed, the electric lights all over the place and remain so until the button is released. By a reversal of the arrangement, all the lights are switched off when the button is operated after dark.

MADHOUSE

They Were About to Make Broth of Their Attendant.

A Doctor's Admirable Presence of Mind Alone Saved his Life.

A celebrated Scotch physician tells a story of a madhouse doctor whose presence of mind alone saved his life: "A great friend of mine was for a considerable time the medical superintendent of a lunatic asylum near Glasgow.

"One night in making his customary rounds he had occasion to visit the patients in the kitchen, who were preparing the dinner. There were seven of them, all big, sturdy fellows, who were believed to be harmless. The keeper only looked in upon them now and again, feeling that his constant presence was unnecessary.
"The doctor unlocked the iron barred loor of the kitchen and went in among the lunatics. "There were five large boilers containing scalding water ready for making the day's dinner for the patients.

"One of the lunatics pointed at the boilers full of hot water and, laying his hand upon the doctor's shoulder, said, 'Doctor, you'll make a fine pot of broth,' and the words had no sooner been uttered than the other six madmen shouted in a voice of delight. 'Just the thing,' and, seizing doctor, were in the very act of putting him into one of the large boilers of scalding water, when the doctor had the presence of mind to say, but not a second too soon:

"'Capital broth, but it would taste bet ter if I took my clothes off.'

"The madmen, with a yell of delight, said 'yes,' and the doctor asked them to wait a moment while he went and took his clothes off, but as soon as he got out of the kitchen he turned the key in the door and ordered the keeper to see to the lunatics being put under restraint.

"The doctor's presence of mind saved him, it is true, from a terrible death, but he died shortly after raving mad. The experience had destroyed his reason."-

A foul breath is one of the greatest afflictions that a man or woman can have. An affliction not only to themhave. An affliction not only to them-selves, but to those with whom they come in contact. A foul breath is a great discourager of affection. It would probably be more so if people only realized just what bad breath means. Bad breath is one of the symptoms of constipation. Some of the other symptoms are sour stomach, loss of appetite, sick and bilious head-ache, dizziness, heartburn and disache, dizziness, heartburn and distress after eating. These things mean indigestion. They lead to dyspepsia and worse things. They all start with constipation, and constipation is inexcusable because it can be cured—cured easily, quickly and permanently, by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They give to nature just the little help that she needs. SHRUBS AND TREES.

The Veteran Joseph Mechan, in the Prac tical Farmer, Tells of Their

A great many trees and shrubs are lost to those interested in them be-cause that a little knowledge of how to protect them in winter is not possessed. There are some highly prized southern trees which are winter killed in the north because a little easily given protection is not af-forded them. The value of the keepforded them. The value of the kerping of frost from the roots is not nearly as much appreciated as it should be. It is of the greatest benefit to the tree. Such partly tender plants as tea and Burbon toses will be "as good as new," if a sufficient covering of forest leaves to keep out frost and light be placed about them. There is hardly anything equals leaves for this purpose. thing equals leaves for this purpose, a few inches keeping out severe freezing. Many large establishments having woods adjacent to their grounds send wagons to secure the fallen leaves, which are used to cover roses, rhododendron beds, strawherries and like plants. And to see these plants come from their winter covering in spring the evergreen with foliage as perfect as when covered and all else in good condition, will repay the care taken.

In most parts of Pennsylvania rasphereics are quite hardy, save that, perhaps, the green ends of the canes get a little hurt. Yet gardeners, many of them, believe its pays to bury the canes, and this they do by bending them over and covering with soil. Then, with such things as figs and flowering hydroangeas they dig them up bodily and bury them completely under ground. In all gardens there are some things which time has proved tender, and it is to these attention must given in the way of protection. Many evergreens are greatly aided by λhaving a covering of forest leaves or sawdust about them to keep out frost. There is a great call on the roots all winter, owing to freezings and drying winds above ground. The loss by transpiration is heavy on cold, clear days. If the roots are in unfrozen soil they are in much better position to supply the calls on them than otherwise. It is of great benefit to keep the sun from tender evergreens in winter. Great light makes heavy calls the roots for moisture, much heavier than darkness does, and for this reason an evergreen free from sunlight in winter will be in far better condition in spring than one in the full glare of the sun. Shading from the sun's rays is often practicable using evergreen boughs, perhaps. Those who have fruit trees, and especially those who have newly planted ones, will derive the greatst benefit from placing a mulching about the roots. If forest leaves are not to be had, get loose manure or the like, anything to keep frost out. The orchard trees around which grass has grown thickly, will be better secured than those in coltivated ground, but young trees in a plat of this kind will not likely be in good condition for winter. besides mice find the grass a favorable home in the winter season.

Though the foliage of strawberr plants has practically ended its work when winter comes, those who cover the plants and preserve the leaves will tell you that they believe their plants are the better for it. may not be so much because leaves are preserved as because all winter long. There is no use in protecting plants too early, on the contrary it is rather an injury to cover too soon. Wait till the ground is about to freeze up for good, it is quite soon enough early a covering is apt to catch unripened shoots of shrubs and bushes, and then rot in the tops, doing more harm than freezing would.—Joseph Mechan, in Practical Farmer.

Colts and calves often go into winter quarters plump and healthy, but by the time pastures come again they are gaunt and poor. For this state of affairs the farmers themselves are largely to blame. The change from pasture to dry feed is a radical one, and many who are short of fodder let the young stock try to get a living out of the straw stack. If the straw is of the best kind, clean and bright and the weather mild, stock would just about hold their own, but too often straw is not palatable, weather cold and damp, requiring considerable food to keep up the arimal heat. AN IDLE HOUR.

Have you ever observed at a theatre or concert that the people who are most deeply interested appear between the acts to be quite weary of the whole thing, yawning half a dozen times in succession? The reason of this is a physiological one. When your attention is much absorbed in anything exhing: you breathe in very shallow manner, and take into your lungs only half enough air. Consequently, when your attention is rethe laxed, you have to make up the deficiency. This you do by yawning, which, after all, is only breathing a very deep breath. If you watch a man at a play, and observe that he is greatly moved by some incident, you may feel sure that when the scene lends he will sigh, and a mement or two later yawn repeatedly. Of course the yawning, so far from being a sign of weariness is a proof of the liveliest appra-ciation The most expensive material ever ased by the German Empress last year In from Lyone. It was white silk brotransplanting to the garden give cade, having flowers birds and foliage plenty of room for the plants to in relief, and cost $125 a yard, the ac-In newly-plowed sod tual value of the raw silk, it is said, being $100. The Empress was so struck with its beauty that she had not the will easily cover a space six feet in heart to cut it up, and it was eventually turned into curtains. The price paid for the material is about double as much as the famous cloth of gold that Louis XIV. had made into a dressing gown Any poor child who likes to present himself or herself at the gate of the Royal Palace at Madrid at 6 o'clock in the evening can have a bowl of porridge. This custom originated through the young king having been detained in a remote district, owing to a breakdown of the engine. He became hungry, but no food was obtainable; his mother improved the occasion by telling him that many a poor child had to go to bed hungry, which so impressed the youngster that he urged his mother to institute this charity. Holland's young Queen has a decided fondness for pretty clothes. A large assortment of dress goods was sent to the palace the other day, and the mother proceeded to choose for the Queen some alpaca and plain material; but Wilhelmina flatly refused to abide by the selection, and chose figured silks and brilliant dress materials, even for morning wear. She said that her loving parent might make use of the plain stuffs if she liked them, but she wanted something prettier.

The Rev. John Watson (lan Maclaren) told the following story in the course of a lecture of his recent visit to America. An illiterate negro preacher said to his congregation:
"My brethren, when de fust man, Adam, was made, he was made of wet clay, and set up agin de palings to dry." "Do you say," said one of the congregation, "dat Adam was made of wet clay, an' set up agin de palings to dry?" "Yes, sar, I do." "Who made de palings?" "Sit down, sar," said the preacher sternly.
