Country Newspapers.

Although country editors are nearly always poor, there are plenty of persons who believe that half the paragraphs in a country newspaper are paid for with enormous bribes. There are always two sides to every question, and whichever side the editor falls on, the partizan of the other accuses him of being "bought." It is little wonder, therefore, that the editor is seldom a popular man; I never knew one who was not aften accused unjustly. Probably the people believe in bribes to editors because it is a very rare editor who-does not accuse his opponent of because it is a very rare editor who-does not accuse his opponent of because it is a very rare editor who-does not accuse his opponent of because it is a very rare editor who-does not accuse his opponent of because it is a very rare editor who-does not accuse his opponent of because it is a very rare editor who-does not accuse his opponent of because it is a very rare editor who-does not accuse his opponent of because it is a very rare editor who-does not accuse his opponent of because it is a very rare editor who-does not accuse his opponent of because it is a very rare editor who-does not accuse his opponent of because it is a very rare editor who-does not accuse his opponent of because it is a very rare editor who-does not accuse his opponent of because it is a very rare editor who-does not accuse his opponent of because it is a very rare editor who-does not accuse his opponent of because it is a very rare editor who-does not accuse his opponent of because it is a very rare editor who-does not accuse his opponent of because his and their calling.
