IN THE HOUSEHOLD.

"For two years," said John R. Comming, of St. John, "I have used Dr. Manning's German Remedy in the household and have found it invaluable for Colds, Croup, Cough, or any pains or aches; in fact I used it for nearly every ailment and always with good effect. Such a remedy as this should be in every household. I also wish to say," adds Mr. Comming, in his letter to the Hawker Medicine Co., "that last spring being very much run down with loss of appetite and general debility, I used Hawker's Nerve and Stomach Tonic, which completely restored me to health."

STOP AND THINK.

My boy, when they ask you to drink, Stop and think.

Just think of the danger ahead!

Of the hearts that in sorrow have bled!

Of the hopes that were dashed in the heart,

Filled with death for the body and soul.

When you hear a man asking for drink, Stop and think.

The thought that he drinks will destroy

High hopes and ambitions, my boy!

And the man who the leader might be

Is a slave that no man's hand can free.

Oh this terrible demon of drink!

Stop and think

Of the graves where the victims are laid,

Of the rain and wet it has made.

Of the wives and the mothers who pray

For the curse to be taken away.

Yes, when you are tempted to drink, Stop and think.

Of the death that springs in the lowly,

The death that brings to the soul,

The harvest of sin and of woe,

And spin back the tempter with "No."

NEVER SOILED HIS LIPS.

We could not help overhearing an elderly gentleman conversing with half a dozen young college boys, the other day. He told them that never in all his life had he soiled his lips with a profane or obscene word, or a drop of strong drink. He made the assertion with no semblance of conceit, but with the ring of gratitude in his voice that God had kept these things from him.

"I did not know that you were so good," said one of the boys.

"I think a good little sister would."

"But, Grace did not give me any of hers, yesterday?"

"Did she not? How did you like that?"

"I did not like it at all. And I want to make her not like it too. Because I think she was mean."

"Dear, dear, and is mamma going to have two more little girls, then?"

"Janie looked at her mother, and was quiet a minute. Then she ran and threw her arms around her neck, and said, "No, no, mamma dear. You shall not have any more little girls at all. I expect Grace forgot, and I will go and give her some of my sweets now, so that she will not ever forget again!"

Her mother smiled. "I think that is the way to make her remember," she said. "And I am to have two kind little girls."

KIND SISTERS.

"Here comes mamma," said Janie.

"O, mamma, must I save some of my sweets for Grace?"

"I think a good little sister would."

"But, Grace did not give me any of hers, yesterday?"

"Did she not? How did you like that?"

"I did not like it at all. And I want to make her not like it too. Because I think she was mean."

"Dear, dear, and is mamma going to have two more little girls, then?"

"Janie looked at her mother, and was quiet a minute. Then she ran and threw her arms around her neck, and said, "No, no, mamma dear. You shall not have any more little girls at all. I expect Grace forgot, and I will go and give her some of my sweets now, so that she will not ever forget again!"

Her mother smiled. "I think that is the way to make her remember," she said. "And I am to have two kind little girls."

THE POWER OF HABIT.

Youth is the forming time of habits and these, unless carefully watched, will grow until they bind like ropes and handcuffs. There are few young men who are unencumbered by the evil of a bad habit in time to conquer as did a certain young man who had thoughtfully formed the habit of taking a glass of liquor every morning before breakfast.

An elder friend advised him to quit before the habit should grow too strong.

"Oh, there's no danger; it's a mere notion. I can quit any time," replied the drinker.

"Suppose you try it to-morrow morning," suggested the friend.

"Very well, to please you I'll do so, but I assure you there's no cause of alarm."

A week later the young man met his friend again.

"You are not looking well," observed the latter, "have you been ill?"

"Hardly," replied the other.

"But I am trying to escape a dreadful danger, and I fear it will be long before I have conquered. My eyes were opened to an imminent peril when I gave you that promise a week ago. I thank you for your timely suggestion."

"How did it affect you?" inquired the friend.

"The first trial utterly deprived me of appetite for food. I could eat no breakfast, and was nervous and trembling all day. I was alarmed when I realized how insidiously the habit had fastened on me, and resolved to turn square about and never touch another drop. The spurring off has pulled me down severely, but I am gaining, and I mean to keep the upper hand after this. Strong drink will never catch me in his net again."

Gum and Household.

IT IS WELL TO REMEMBER.

That flannels should always be washed by themselves in a suds prepared for the purpose, and not rubbed on the board unless very dirty.

That the suits should be pleasant to the hands, not too hot, and do not or could never be added when the flannels are in the suds.

That they should be rinsed in clean water of the same temperature as the washing water, and as many waters used as may be necessary to take all the soap out, as the flannels will never be soft with the soap left in them.

That they should never be bleached out of doors in freezing weather, but quickly dried before the fire, or pressed over the register and pressed as soon as dry enough.

That thick woolen and cotton hose should be washed by themselves, so as not to get lint on them, pulled in shape, hung on the line from the toes, as then the drip will go down, instead of remaining in the toes and shrinking them.

WINTER STOCKINGS.

Mothers should remember at this season, when the ground is full of dampness, that children should be warmly and strongly clothed around the feet. It is a great mistake to rely too much upon rubbers. Children who never wear rubbers are probably healthier for it. The heavy cowskin shoes, well blackened so that they are impervious to water, though they are clumsy, are undoubtedly more protection to the feet than the more stylish shoes which are usually made by machines and have to be worn with India rubbers.

But, whatever shoes are worn, warm woolen stockings should be put on children's feet before the winter begins, when the damp "wind" month sets in. The heavy knit stockings, such as our grandmothers used to knit, were undoubtedly the most wholesome stockings children in the country could wear. But if those can't be had, cast more stockings of pure wool may be found in the shops. It is true that they may be more expensive than cotton stockings, but it is better to buy them than to pay a large sum on a doctor's bill.

The chief difficulty in wintering onions is in keeping them too warm and too moist. That is the trouble usually when they are kept in cellars. Any place where they can be dry and held at a nearly uniform temperature about the freezing point is best. Onions may freeze without being injured, provided they are not allowed to thaw and freeze again, however, the winters are so warm to make this method of keeping safe. It is better to prevent freezing, in any place where they will not rot, than to have them near the freezing point.

HOW AND WHEN TO APPLY LIME.

H. Stewart's practice in applying lime to any crop for the benefit of the clover following it has been to prepare the land in the best manner, for lime will not make up for any deficiency in this respect—turning under what manure has been applied for the crop, keeping the soil exposed to the weather in heaps in the field, and then following to the seed. The seed and the lime are both sown at the same time. If sown in the Country Gentleman's method, the lime is sown in the fall, it may be put in with what or sown in the south where it will stand the winter, but as this will be hardly safe in the clover may be sown in the spring with oats or a one. In that case the lime will be applied to the land as soon as the seed is sown, or before if it is thought more convenient. But when the clover is sown for the sole purpose of plowing in as manure, the lime may be applied on the land immediately after the plowing. The land is then harrowed and the following crop is put in, or if it is to be corn the lime may be applied in the spring just before the ground is finally prepared for planting. The principle of it is that the lime is applied when and in what manner it may have the best effect upon the green manure for its decomposition.
