CHAPTER XXIV.

He rose, struggling with a triumphant smile.

"Not till to-morrow," he said.

"Remember that. You can not go to-night; he would follow and find you, and bring you back. To-morrow when I have taken him out for the whole day—Hush!"

He had heard a footstep.

She had heard it, too. When did she fall to hear it? With a quick gesture she struck her lips with her hand, as if to stifle a cry, then sprang from the room and up the stairs as the latch was heard to tinkle.

CHAPTER XXV.

It was Vane—Vane, strong and stalwart, the rain-drops glistening on his mountain suit of rough freize a happy, careless light in his eyes His gun was over his shoulder, his jag filled with birds; he had had "good day," and was coming back to the delight of a quiet evening with Nora, his heart's friend, companion sister.

He stopped and stared at Senley Tyers, and burst into a hearty laugh of surprise, and his hand went out in a quick welcome.

"Halloo, Sen! Why, you are a surprise packet! What on earth bring you down here? Why, didn't you let us know you were coming? Where did you come?"

Senley Tyers had stood, awaiting Vane's entrance, with his back to the fire, and a deep pallor on his face. Your traitor has some uncomfortable moments in the course of his villainy. We all know what a bad time of it Judas had; and we more than suspect that that sleek scoundrel, Iago, must have felt cold chills of fear run through him whenever Othello's hand met his or fell on his shoulder in friendly grip.

Senley Tyers had a very uncanny spasm or two as he stood facing Vane. But he soon recovered himself, and with his usual languid smile put his hand—it was cold and damp—Vane's healthily glowing one.

"I ran down unexpectedly," I said. "The fact is, I have been rather seedy, and I fancied a little of this keen air would set me up."

"You don't look quite the thing said Vane. Senley Tyers' sallow face looked even more sallow than usual at that moment. "I am awfully glad you have come. You're right; the air will pull you round, and—"

DOCTORS ADVISE OPERATIONS

Saved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Swarthmore, Penn.—"For fifteen years I suffered untold agony, and for one period of nearly two years I had hemorrhages and the doctors told me I would have to undergo an operation, but I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am in good health now. I am all over the Change of Life and find it very comfortable. I cannot praise your Vegetable Compound too highly. Every woman should take it at that time. I recommend it to both old and young for female troubles."—Mrs. EMILY SUMMERSGILL, Swarthmore, Pa.

Canadian Woman's Experience:

Fort William, Ont.—"I feel as if I could not tell others enough about the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was weak and tired and I could not rest nights. A friend recommended your Compound and I soon gained health and strength and could not wish to sleep better. I know other women who have taken it for the same purpose and they join me in praising it."—Mrs. Wm. A. BERRY, 831 South Vicker Street, Fort Williams, Ontario.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, is it not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering in a like manner?

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Beautiful Virol Children.

194, MANOR PLACE, S.E. GENTLEMEN.

It is with heartfelt gratitude that I write to express my thanks for the great benefits my children have derived from your wonderful preparation.

One of the twins when born was very weak and had no vitality at all, and when 3 weeks old she laid in her mother's arms as a dead child, and she was so thin we could hardly bear to look at her; she then weighed under 3 lbs. A friend advised us to try "Virol," and I immediately did, and from that time she has got on famously; she is now 3 months old and weighs 19 lbs. After I saw such good results from the use of "Virol" I gave it to all the other children, who were stammy, and they are all fine and healthy now.

Again assuring you of my heartfelt thanks, and that I shall always speak of "Virol" in the highest terms.

F. F. PASLEY.

PAIN IN MY BACK IS ALL GONE

Since I Got a Box of Gin Pills

CHURCH ST., CORNWALLIS, N.S. January 23rd.

"About a year ago, I was suffering so much with a dreadful Lame Back and Hips, that I could not stand upright. I was informed by a friend about GIN PILLS, I got a box. It helped me immediately. I have taken about twelve boxes and the pains in my back and hips are all gone. I cannot speak too highly of the wonderful effects of your GIN PILLS!"

B. C. DAVID.

Liniments and plasters won't cure Lame Back—because cause they never reach the part that is causing the pain. The whole trouble is with the Kidneys and you must cure the Kidneys in order to stop the pain. GIN PILLS cure weak, sick, strained Kidneys, as nothing else will. GIN PILLS drive away the pain every time—your money promptly refunded. Soc. a box, 6 for $2.50. Sample free if you write National Drug & Chemical Co., Toronto, Canada, Limited.

"You don't look quite the thing said Vane. Senley Tyers' sallow face looked even more sallow than usual at that moment. "I am awfully glad you have come. You're right; the air will pull you round, and—"

"I suppose you will leave it to him to decide?"

"Yes," said Vane, absently. "Well, and what is the news from the little village, Sen?"

Senley Tyers shrugged his shoulders.

"It still exists, notwithstanding the absence of one of its brightest ornaments—I might say two, for I'm told that Mortimer is decidedly missed. I hear that the Cavaliers are clamorous for his return, and that the Baby mourns for him as for a twin brother."

Vane smiled, and Tyers went on: "You will be glad to learn that the great Bendoza is still 'booming.' I shouldn't be surprised if that investment of yours makes you a tolerably rich man, my dear Vane. As for this humble servant, he means to start a carriage and pair directly."

Vane laughed, but carelessly: "A love of money was not one of his numerous sins."

"I'm glad of that," he said, simply. "Let's hope it will go on booming; but to tell you the truth, I'm thinking too much of dinner to care much whether the big Bendoza swells or bursts. I'm as hungry as a hunter. I suppose you never feel like that? By George! if you'll stop down here and tramp around with me for a week, you'll learn to count the hours to grub-time as anxiously as I do."

"Perhaps. By the way, you don't ask after Lady Florence?"

"She's all right, I hope," said Vane without looking up from his cartridge case. "Slaying right and left; without mercy, as usual, I suppose?"

"Quite as usual," assented Senley Tyers. "She has asked me as to your whereabouts several times—I have had the pleasure of dining twice at Carlton Terrace while you have been away—but I always replied that I was not Vane's Tempest's keeper."

Vane laughed.

"I'm glad you didn't tell her," he said. "You were quite right. If you want perfect quiet and peace of mind when you're away, don't leave your address behind you."

He went to the door and called to Mrs. Burns, and that good woman came to take the birds and lay the cloth. She started slightly at sight of Senley Tyers, and dropped him a courtesy.

"How do you do, Mrs. Burns?" he said, languidly. "An unexpected visitor, I'm afraid; but don't let me put you out."

"Oh! it's all right," Vane made haste to say. "I'll get you a room in the keeper's cottage, and I know Mrs. Burns has got a good dinner for us. She always has. Come up to my room, Sen, and have a wash. Hurry up the dinner, Mrs. Burns, for we are all famishing."

He led the way, humming a tune. He was in the best of spirits, and very glad to see his friend.

As he passed Nora's door, he knocked at it, and sung out: "Don't be long, Ernest!"

But no response came. At that moment Nora was kneeling on the floor, with her face buried in the bed.
