Grand Falls Pays Tribute To Its Founder.

FUNERAL SERVICES IN PAPER TOWN FOR LORD NORTHCLIFFE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
A last tribute to the late Viscount Northcliffe was paid by the flourishing town of Grand Falls, which owes its existence to his industry, when on Thursday morning memorial services were held in all the churches, simultaneous with that held in Westminster Abbey, London. Business in the town was temporarily suspended, and flags flew from every public building and from many residences at half mast.

ANGLICAN SERVICE.
In Holy Trinity Church the service was conducted by the Rector, Rev. T. E. Loder, and a large congregation, including A. E. Harris, Director of the A.N.D. Co., and many other prominent citizens were present. All present felt the solemnity of the occasion as the prayers appropriate to the occasion were said and the hymns sung. After "The Dead March in Saul" had been beautifully rendered by the organist, Miss Pearce, the congregation knelt for two minutes in silent prayer. Then the Rector concluded the service with the Benediction. The sermon was really a panegyric on the great life work of Viscount Northcliffe. Taking his text from 2 Samuel 3:33, "The king said unto his servants, know ye not that there is a prince and a great man fallen this day in Israel." The Rector reminded his hearers how unique and solemn was the occasion; solemn because the Empire had lost a great Imperialist and unique because Grand Falls—a town the existence of which dated back but little more than a decade—was joining sympathetically with the service at that hour being held in the ancient Abbey Church of Westminster. Referring to his text he showed that the deceased Viscount was indeed a Prince and a great man. In his life work he had clearly demonstrated that "the pen is mightier than the sword." He had by his indomitable will and unlimited energy made the press under his control an universal power. His wide knowledge of the world, his keen understanding of men, his wonderful foresight of the march of events even in national affairs made him all that the text has said of another. The great war gave him a further opportunity to serve his Empire well and he did. The weaklings in high office tottered and fell beneath his mighty sway; the munition supply was speedily increased when his pen revealed our terrible shortages. He advocated a more rigid enforcement of the blockade of enemy countries, compulsory service, offensive naval measures and concentration of the Allied forces in France and Belgium. But perhaps our greatest tribute is due him for his splendid work in the Allies' behalf in the United States and as Director of Propaganda. He cleared away misunderstandings, he made the neutral nations see that the Allies were engaged in a deadly struggle to maintain the freedom of the world for democracy. And Grand Falls owes a great tribute of gratitude to this prince amongst men. The paper mill here was conceived in his great mind. His interest in the Dominion beyond the seas is in this proved as more recently in his world tour. Unemployment elsewhere there has been in recent years, but Grand Falls in particular and Newfoundland in general must thank the founder of the A.N.D. Co., Ltd. not only for the industrial activity here, but also for the fair manner in which at his special request the mills have been conducted. Now the busy mind ceases to function on earth, but rest for such as Viscount Northcliffe will be still to serve and in service he will find his truest happiness. Enshrined with kindly thoughts we leave him, but will pray as years go on that he will find peace and life eternal in the realms above.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

In the Presbyterian Church, Rev. Mr. Morrison, the pastor conducted a funeral service, beginning with the singing of the Doxology and the Lord's Prayer, followed by the call to worship and hymn "O God our help in ages past." The message was taken from John IV. 34, "My food is to do the will of Him that sent me and to accomplish His work." The depths of Christ's life are here revealed. The consciousness of a mission, a commission offered, accepted and discharged with an intensity of purpose that rises above the claims of the body. The demands of the flesh—hunger, thirst, weariness, pleasure, self. The secret of success, a clear purpose, a strong motion, persevering quest. This secures the right use of every moment of time of every ounce of energy and the right direction of every action. These were features of Lord Northcliffe's life. "It was always dead set upon some evident all controlling end." His face was steadfastly set to go to Jerusalem. The secret of true success. A controlling purpose controlled, a high aim, a great motive and the highest and greatest "The will of Him that sent me." In the last hours of his life when life was in review and life's work weighed in the balance, Jesus could say "I have glorified thee on the earth. I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do." "I must be about my father's business." When we have discovered Christ's business (Luke 4:16) we have found ours. "As the father sent me even so send I you." At the close of life, be it early or late, this pursuit carried through to a finish is the only thing that will satisfy a thorough life. It will be meat and drink and sustenance and lasting delight.

METHODIST CHURCH.

The service in the Methodist Church was conducted by Rev. S. Bennett and a digest of the sermon follows. We have met this morning to pay our tribute of respect to the memory of a great man, one of Britain's noblest sons. Viscount Northcliffe was universally known, known because of the large place which he occupied in the public life of the realm. He may well be classed as one of the great builders of empire. Viscount Northcliffe was recognized as the great chief of the journalists. A prince in the journalistic realm. His movements were watched, his attitude towards the great events of the day was studied. His utterances were weighed. He was both feared and respected by government, because of his strength, integrity and loyalty to the nation. He was a patriot in the true sense of the term. The claims of empire held the highest place in his thought. Personal interest and friendships were sacrificed in the interest of his country. His attachment to individuals and governments was always subservient to the highest well being of the nation. He was true to his convictions. When a clear conviction was registered, he was prepared to defend that conviction at all costs. He often stood alone against the public opinion in his criticism of a policy which he believed to be detrimental to the cause of empire. As an organizer he had few equals. In the great campaign which he instituted against Germany during the Great War, there was a demonstration of his marvelous skill in this respect. Not until after the war was over was it known that Viscount Northcliffe had taken such a large place in the achievement of the glorious victory. His association with Newfoundland took place when the Anglo-Nfld. Development Co. established their great paper mills at Grand Falls. He was the leading factor in the promotion of the gigantic enterprise which has meant so much to our Dominion. He was the friend of the labouring class. He aimed at making the people of Grand Falls comfortable and happy. In the passing of Viscount Northcliffe the people of this town have lost a benefactor and friend. We shall never forget his name and cherish the memory of one whom we may think of as being one of the greatest productions of the British Empire.

INDOOR SCENES GIVE BEST "MOVIE" EFFECTS.

"It is easier to obtain sub-title effects, to catch fleeting emotions, or record transitory whimsicalities with interior lighting than with exterior," declared Reginald Barker, director of "The Old Nest," the Rupert Hughes story made by Goldwyn, which may be seen at the Nickel Theatre beginning to-night. He makes this statement in answer to the question, "Do you prefer to shoot outdoors or in?" It is, of course, common knowledge among the picture going public that many of the scenes made apparently indoors are taken or "shot" on sets built outdoors. These are roofed, and in many instances with one or more walls missing to permit the sunlight to enter. But the majority are made in an enclosed stage illuminated artificially.

"So far as personal preferences goes," says Mr. Barker, "I should rather photograph outdoors. But I realize, too, that my favorite type of picture can best be filmed under these conditions. That includes the virile sea tale, red blooded stories of the frozen North, in short all tales of elemental character. In them, subtlety is at a discount. But in picture dealing essentially with society, interior sets built indoors and artificially lighted conduce to the best results."

Sell Sunlight Soap for Quick Sales and Sufficient Profits

Are you in business or just keeping shop? If you are keeping a shop you'll no doubt be able to keep it as long as your money lasts.

If you're in business, then you want your shop to keep you, and it will if you make quick sales and sufficient profits.

If you try to sell to your customers any goods which they do not want, you may be able to do it; but the chances are against you. As a business person you should supply the goods your customers want and should try to make a profit on every transaction. Now take soap as an example: When you are asked to buy a box of soap which is said to be just as good as Sunlight Soap, consider carefully this important question: Is this other soap really just as good as Sunlight Soap? Unless this other soap will sell as well as Sunlight it certainly is not just as good as Sunlight Soap FOR YOU.

The soap which people want is the easiest and most profitable soap for you to sell. Sunlight Soap being the soap which people want, is therefore the easiest soap to sell; in fact, it sells itself—people ask for it.

Sunlight Soap requires no pushing, and because it sells best—it pays best.

Stick to Sunlight Soap, it always has been and always will be the very highest quality of household soap.

Sunlight Soap is the soap your customers want. You will sell 5 cases of Sunlight Soap whilst trying to sell 1 case of any unknown soap.

Summer Schools.

AMERICAN TEACHERS ON WEST COAST.

There are now five American ladies teaching school on the West Coast. The schools are held only during the summer and they are included in the Bonne Bay Mission. American college graduates come down to Newfoundland in the early summer to take charge of these schools, and they not only pay their own expenses, but also provide much of the equipment necessary for their work. The five schools and their teachers are:—

Parsons Pond, Miss Osterberg; Mill Cove, Miss Walker; Birch Head, Miss Hoyt; Baker's Brook, Miss Jeffery; Chimney Cove, Miss Linton.

The Mill Cove school was visited Saturday by Rev. Dr. Bolt, Rev. G. L. Malmont, Rector of Bonne Bay Mission, and Mr. J. R. Bennett, M.H.A. who was visiting the coast. Miss Walker, the teacher, explained the work of the school to the visitors, all of whom made short addresses to the scholars, in the course of which they warmly applauded the work of Miss Walker and other teachers, who had come down to the Bonne Bay Mission from comfortable homes to help in their education. Dr. Wood, and a nurse from the Grenfell Mission have visited the West Coast this year, examining the children and giving advice in connection with their diet.

West Coast Conditions.

COD AND LOBSTER FISHERIES ARE FAILURES.

The cod and lobster fisheries on the West Coast have been complete failures this year. This is particularly true about Fort Saunders, Bonne Bay and Cow Head. All these places have in former years done a thriving trade in lobsters, and the catch this year has been the worst on record.

From Port aux Choix to Brig Bay, good catches of codfish have been made, some traps getting as high as 800 quintals. The condition of the people along the coast is fairly good, although a few cases of destitution have been reported. The crops have been good. Mr. W. G. Garland, Sub-collector at Port Saunders, told the Telegram that a great deal of the credit for the lack of destitution must go to the Aerial Survey Company, whose new pit-prop industry at Hawke Bay has given work to all men along the coast who want it.
