House of Assembly Proceedings

told Sir John that they were attached to his correspondence and should be in the post office.

Sir John promised to have a search made for the documents and to again bring it to the attention of the House.

Mr. E. M. Brown also on a motion to adjourn, asked the Prime Minister what steps were being taken by the Government to bring about a cessation of the strike now on at Corner Brook. He said he had several telegrams asking him to go to the scene of the strike, but could not see his way clear to do so. On seeing the correspondence published in the Daily News he wired Mr. Prince a message which he read to the House and which appeared at the bottom of an editorial in the Advocate. He would like to be informed what action if any the Government proposed to take.

The Prime Minister in reply, told what had happened so far and stated the Government was most anxious to bring about a settlement, but in view of the insulting attitude of the spokesman, Mr. Prince, he did not feel as if the Government could do any negotiating with a man of that calibre. He had heard a lot of agitators of late and could not but think there was something behind the strike more than appeared on the surface. In fact he believed the Hon. Member who had just asked for information knew more about it than he admitted. He was well aware there was a place in town called "The White House," and he believed Mr. Brown and others associated with him lived there. He also believed the strike now in operation in Corner Brook and the proposed strike at Bell Island were being engineered from there. It was a meeting place for the Members and friends of the Opposition party, and schemes were being hatched to create strikes, to promote unrest and otherwise embarrass the Government. He was informed that Mr. Prince was a relative of Mr. Brown's and therefore well aware of what was going on. In short the whole motive behind the present strike at Corner Brook was an attempt to bring about dissatisfaction among the Bonavista Bay men working there and so have an influence on the Bonavista By-election to be held in the fall. And further the whole scheme was engineered from St. John's and Mr. Brown and others of the Opposition were behind it. He then read the latest message received and his reply thereto.

August 1, 1924.
 To Prime Minister, St. John's.
 Your country needs you at once Corner Brook, don't fail. If you do your Government is doomed immediately. Reply.
 ALFRED PRINCE.
 REPLY.
 To Alfred Prince, Corner Brook.
 In view of your insulting messages I refuse to act on your suggestions.

W. S. MONROE.
 Mr. Brown disclaimed all knowledge of being a party to the scheme behind the strike as charged by the Prime Minister. He was not a relative of Alfred Prince and did not know if his intentions were good or bad. He was sincere in his motives and did not engineer any schemes. He did reside at the "White House" with Mr. Scammell and resented private matters being dragged into discussion. He thought Mr. Monroe should take back what he said. The Prime Minister accepted Mr. Brown's word that he was not a relative of Mr. Prince and took back the statement.

Mr. Scammell was sorry the Prime Minister brought these private matters into the discussion. He did live at the "White House" with Mr. Brown. He knew of no schemes being engineered there to create an agitation. He knew Mr. Brown very well and believed he was sincere and was no extremist. He presumed the idea of the "White House" being headquarters for agitators arose from the fact that one J. Humber roomed there when he came to St. John's. He became acquainted with Humber about three weeks ago, and with the knowledge of him that he possessed he believed he was a dangerous agitator and did not want to have anything to do with him. He talked to him (Scammell) about a line of action he wanted the Opposition to take in the House, and when he went back to Bell Island wrote him a letter advising him to strike for a Labour Government. The time, he said, was ripe and the motto should be "Do it now." He assured the House that finished him with Humber. He wished to say he was not behind the agitation now going on at Corner Brook. Furthermore there was no politics in the matter as far as he knew.

Members Grimes, Hickman and Ashbourne each spoke a few words disclaiming any connection with this man Prince. Mr. Hickman said there were three of the Opposition members, Mr. Daif, Mr. Ashbourne, and himself who could not be said to have any connection with the F.P.U. party or the Government of Squires or Warren. Therefore he wished to have the responsibilities of those governments discussed apart from those three at least. Mr. Grimes advocated a commissioner or board of arbitration to effect settlement.

Mr. Long wished to back up the Prime Minister in his statements. It was a well known fact that certain schemes were being concocted in the place already referred to. He could not accept the Opposition members' assurances that there was no politics behind the agitation in the light of the editorial in the Advocate in its reply to the Daily News. Why the whole article from beginning to end was politics, and pretty dangerous politics too. It was no use for members to preach one doctrine in the House and another outside of it. Members of this House are responsible parties and their words are carefully followed. He believed firmly with Mr. Monroe that if there was to be no bye-election in Bonavista Bay this agitation would not be on.

Sir John Creble believed also with Mr. Monroe that politics was at the bottom of the whole thing. He could not accept the assurances of the Opposition after reading the editorial in the Advocate. It was badly advised and certainly the Opposition could not say they were not behind it. He would not be a party to telling the workers at Corner Brook that everything would be lovely in a day or two to get the strike settled. The people of the country had been fooled for the past four years, and it was time to take a firm hand if the country was to be saved. He knew also something of the talk going on in the "White House" and he was aware also that an employee of the Customs was one of the leaders in the ideas promoted to try and embarrass the Government. This talk with that gentleman had to cease or something would drop.

The Prime Minister said he wished he could think the members of the Opposition were sincere in their professions. The utterances were contradicted by the editorial of the Evening Advocate. That paper was their mouthpiece and they were responsible for its utterances or they had to repudiate it. Then again there was the advent of Sir William Coaker on the scene. Did not the whole thing look like a plan. And he was firmly convinced the plan was to again defeat him and colleague in Bonavista Bay at the bye election and so hasten the day when Coakerism would again dominate the Government. This was his absolute belief and putting all the events that have transpired during the past few days together it bore out his belief in every particular. Mr. Monroe added that Prince had wired the workers at Deer Lake asking if he could go there and organize them and they had refused to accede to his wishes. The peculiar thing about the strike is that the only messages received here come from this man Prince, and he didn't know whether he really represented the men or only himself. His information was that a very large number of men were out on strike against their will and were anxious to return to work but feared intimidation. He had told Prince in his message that a thorough enquiry would be made as soon as the House closes. In view of the determination of the company to grant no higher wages, he didn't see that his going out now would do any good, neither did he think anything could be accomplished by Mr. Alexander coming to town, as he had informed that gentleman. He wished to remind the public that the taxpayers of the country were behind the Humber proposition to the extent of ten million dollars and it would be a serious thing for Newfoundland if the project failed.

The motion was then put and the House adjourned till Monday next.
