

Aylmer Express

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

It does us all good to see the broad smile of satisfaction on the face of the farmer when he drives in a big load of hogs these days and get $7 a hundred cash for them, live weight, even if we do have to continue sending the paper for $1.00 a year, in the rear.

We bought a new hot-weather outfit last week, coat, pants, shirt, tie, &c., $4.25, credit, and have been called a dude ever since. The title comes cheap, but we are in an awful dilemma already. We are beginning to look soiled, and we don't know whether to try and run our face for another suite or go to bed while we have this one laundered.

We have on several occasions condemned in these columns the grandiose sidewalks that have been put down in Aylmer in the past, because in our opinion in many instances, they have not been put in as they should have been, and are mighty poor specimens. Now we wish to make just as public, our satisfaction and appreciation of the firm stand taken by our new engineer in regard to the work that is being done this year, and the manner in which the council are backing up his stand. He has simply put down the contractors that they must put down the walks according to contract, or not put them down at all. We are more than ever convinced that the best way to do in future, is to put down our own walks by day labor, under competent supervision, but the contract has been let for this year and both the engineer and council will have the support of every citizen in seeing that the walks are properly put down. There should not be a rod of walk laid without someone is there to see it is put in properly.

We wish once more to call the attention of everyone, especially our outside correspondents, to the fact, that all notices of concerts, socials, or any other entertainment, where a charge is made, or where the object is to make money, must be paid for, if they appear in the EXPRESS. Meetings of a purely social, religious or moral nature, not intended to raise money, will always be given space with pleasure. The one is a business transaction, and must be considered from a business standpoint. If the add is of no use, don't put it in. If it is of value, pay for it, as others do. We make no deviation from this rule for anyone, as it is nothing but fair and honorable, so do not put us in the unenviable position of having to cut the notice out of your correspondence. We have a few friends who never think of sending in any news from their neighborhood unless there is some entertainment going on, then they send in two or three small personal items and a big add. We don't blame them for trying the bait, but they must not blame us if we don't bite.

We know of no council who in our opinion have made a bigger blunder than the North Dorchester council did a week or so ago, when they refused to give the London, Aylmer and North Shore Electric Road running privileges over the town line on any kind of fair and reasonable terms. The consequence will be that they will be deprived of the benefit of the road, without any compensating advantage. The Westminster council were quick to take advantage of the situation, and promptly offered the Company such inducements that the road will be built through from Belmont to London in a general north-westerly direction by way of Pond Mills. A difficulty appears to have presented itself at first with regard to changing from the original route, but the promoters say there are means within their reach so far as the township of Westminster is concerned by which they can avail themselves of the contemplated route without affecting their charter. We understand another company has charter privileges for Westminster, and it is probable a satisfactory arrangement is already made by which the new company may take the benefit of this privilege. The promoters also say they have been offered private right of way from Belmont through to London, so that they are not likely to be seriously embarrassed by the unusually selfish and extraordinary action of the North Dorchester council. Bayham and South Dorchester would have liked the route changed, but when they found that it was practically impossible to do so under the present conditions, and that it would take a year to procure a new charter, and might prevent the building of the road altogether, they wisely and fairly granted running privileges as asked. North Dorchester should have done the same thing. A man or any number of men, in the form of a council, might just as well stand on the track in front of the Wabash flyer and expect to stop it, as to get in front of the advance of modern improvements. The result will be disastrous in each case, every time.

Thankfulness for Sympathy Extended.

To the Editor of the Express.

Would you do the favor of giving us space in your valuable paper to express our heartfelt thanks and gratitude to all the friends who gave assistance and words of sympathy at the death of a loving husband, son and brother. Passing as we were through affliction we appreciate to the full the willing services, the words of sympathy and the many tributes from loving friends and neighbors. As kind acts and words never die, rest assured that these so freely given will not be forgotten by us. Our hope and prayer is that some day we shall all meet with him in that home the Father has prepared for us.

Members of the family and wife,

Mr. Bethune Resigns.

Much regret will be felt on all sides at the departure from Aylmer of another good man in the person of Rev. M. N. Bethune, of Knox church, who is a first-class pulpit man and has made many warm friends here during his pastorate. The reasons for handing in his resignation are given below, in the report of the meeting of Presbytery as reported in the London Free Press.

The resignation of Rev. M. N. Bethune as pastor of Aylmer and Springfield was accepted by the Presbytery of London, at a meeting held in the school room of the first Church yesterday morning.

Mr. Bethune has only been stationed at Aylmer and Springfield for two years, and what chiefly led up to his resignation after such a short pastorate was the stand he took on the question of amusements. His opinions along this line were very decided and he expressed them freely in the pulpit.

But his congregation at Aylmer did not heed them to the extent desired by Mr. Bethune, and in the course of one sermon the reverend gentleman said that for him to preach as he had been doing, and the members of the church to continue their amusements as before, was like casting pearls before swine. The statement aroused indignation among certain of the congregation, and a feeling that was anything but what should exist between pastor and people.

Mr. Bethune was willing to withdraw the remarks, but insisted on his resignation being accepted. He addressed the Presbytery at some length on the matter. "I do not want to say a word against the congregation of Aylmer," he said, in concluding. "I don't want the idea to go abroad that I have any but kindly feelings towards them. I want the Presbytery to think well of them. There is a great field for work. The possibilities are great with a pastor who is more suited to them. In my course, I have simply tried to elevate the congregation to the ideal set down by the Master and failing to succeed, I desire to resign."

Messrs. A. Murray and L. Brown, of Aylmer, and G. Stewart and D. McIntyre, of Springfield also addressed the Presbytery. Each expressed regret that Mr. Bethune should take such a step. Especially was Mr. Bethune's resignation regretted at Springfield where the church membership has been doubled in two years of his pastorate.

Our Glenora correspondent writes:—On Wednesday, 3rd inst., a large number of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McKenney assembled at their home to celebrate their silver wedding. The tables were spread underneath the shade trees in the yard and presented a very tasteful and luxurious appearance. Mr. and Mrs. McKenney were the recipients of a large number of beautiful and costly gifts, including a silver butter dish and knife from the Ladies' Aid of the Baptist church, of Springfield. We extend congratulations.
