He then became very abusive and was in the habit of shouting out to Mr. Cameron on the street, "You are a thief," "You are a swindler," and other remarks of this kind. In the course of his examination he so misbehaved himself that his defense was stricken out and the jury assessed damages for plaintiff at $100, to which will be added the costs.

Mr. Luscombe moved in amendment that an inefficient teacher on the staff. He did not believe one member knew what an incapable teacher was. As to referring the matter to Mr. Boyle, much as he respected him, it would not be satisfactory to leave the execution of teachers solely in the Inspector's hands. Not a single name had been mentioned in the Board as not fit to eb a teacher.

Mr. Luscombe—How about Mr. Gibson?
Mr. Love—That is settled, and I think the Board must regret their action in the matter.

construction of the property o

the Board must regret their action in the matter.

Continuing, Mr. Love said the question seemed to be the outcome of personal favoritism. Perhaps it was someone who wanted a favorite lady teacher to supplant a male head master in one of the ward schools. It seemed a question of axes to grind. Was the Board going to dismiss any male teacher in order that a female one might succeed him, and that at the whim, perhaps, of the Inspector? The matter should be left to the discretion of the whole Board, and not to the Inspector. He did not wish to express any distrust of Mr. Boyle's ability, but desired to be allowed an opinion of his own on the subject.

Mr. Cryer got up in a state of agitation, and took exception te Mr. Love's insinnation of personal motives.

Mr. Love—I did not accuse you.

Mr. Cryer—That's all right if you take it back.

M Vates spoke in support of Mr. Lus-

M. Yates spoke in support of Mr. Luscombe's amendment.

Mr. Luscombe amended his motion by substituting the whole Board for No. 1

Mr. Luscombe amended his hotch.

Mr. Jeffers suggested that the Board should state that it had no idea of stigmatizing any teacher, and should withdraw the idea of universal dismissal.

Mr. Boyle was heard in explanation. He said he did not know where he stood. There seemed to be a very few of the Board who understood the question. He had not recommended the dismissal of any teachers, but had only called attention to certain defects of one or two teachers. He believed in having a fixed date on which school teachers' engagements should terminate. He had never meant wholesale dismissal of the staff. The point was that as soon as a teacher felt that there was no more promotion, his efforts might be relaxed, and his desire to please the Board would cease. This would be obviated by a yearly renewal of the engagement. To dismiss any teacher without a cause would be cruel, and was something never dreamt of in his report. He merely expressed an opinion which might be either right or wrong, and therefore he had desired the Board to consider the question.

Mr. Cryer objected to Mr. Boyle's state-

sider the question.

Mr. Cryer objected to Mr. Boyle's statement that no names had been given.

Mr. Boyle—I did not give any.

Mr. Cryer and the Inspector got mad at each other, and finally Mr. Cryer clinched the matter by saying, "I don't want any of your impertinence."

your impertinence."

The Inspector, of course, subsided.

Mr. Luscombe's amendment was then put

Mr. Luscombe samendment was that par and carried.
Mr. Jeffers moved that a clause be added to the motion, that contracts terminate an-nually at the end of the year.
Mr. Love moved that the Easter holidays commence on Wednesday night. Carried. Adjourned at 10:30.
