Ratepayers Should Have an Opportunity to Express an Opinion.

Justice Meredith's Views in the Matter-Question as to Council's Control Over School Board Discussed-Judgment Reserved.

When the court reopened this mornwas charged before Judge Wm. Elliot ing Mr. Justice Meredith asked Mr. Dunboyne this morning with the theft of a silver Helimuth whether the ratepayers, as watch from the residence of George represented by his clients and as represented by the city council, had arrived at any agreement as a basis of settlement of the case pending. Mr. Hellmuth replied that no such election in January? Mr. Helimuth replied that there was only one thing upon which both sides agree, that being the desire for the expression of the court's opinion on the principles involved. The defendmost vigorous in its work this year. Since ants claimed that they were being approached continuously by various public bodies with petitions praying that the rate be cut down. These pethrough its care, and during the last titions couldn't be ignored entirely. The twelve months, 66 children were in the real question at issue in this case was whether the city council had power to cut down the board's estimates, when submitted in proper form. His lordship agreed that the main question should be settled at once. The question was whether the legis lature, in order to save expense, had merely made the council collect the money for the school board. This, in the court's opinion, was the only thing At St. Joseph's Hospital the death opinion upon. He had no doubt that that he should be asked to give an occurred this morning of Mrs. Peter each party was honestly endeavoring to carry out the wishes of the ratepayers. The question arose, what was the will of the ratepayers? The municipal election was close at hand, and rounding county, as she had only been laid over until the ratepayers had an opportunity to express an opinion. The plaintiffs were really asking for a mandatory injunction to compel the levying of another rate. He did not see how he could grant such a request, when for aught he knew his opinion

Mr. Hellmuth pointed out that the ratepayers were liable to object to any rate, and did object to rates absolute-not in order for them to resign, or at least to endeavor to bend to the publie mind? Of course, the ratepayers might take an opposite view considering that the board is acting in a proper manner.

Mr. Helimuth said he thought that the board, elected to represent the ratepayers, was virtually the ratepayers' during its lifetime. If this matter were left over to next year, the board might find itself as before, with the suit still on its hands.

His Lordship-That is the point. If the ratepayers have expressed an opinion in your favor, your right will have been established. He thought it necessary - that the case should either be postponed entirely until the next court, or that the question of principle only should be settled. To Mr. Hell-muth he added: "If the ratepayers de-cide in favor of the plaintiffs, the latter's case would be strengthened. A mandatory injunction would no doubt be granted, and both rates levied at the same time, thus saving much expense."

City Soligitor Meredith was quite prepared, he said, to adopt his lordship's ided. The defendants were entitled to submit the question of the issue of $20,000 debentures to the people, but in view of the fleet that the

At this point Mr. Helimuth consulted his clients, and reported to the court that they were willing to abandon all claims to relief (that is, for the issue of the debentures, or for the $17,400), except a declaration as to the legality of their demands.

His lordship said that if the defendants did not agree, he would on his own account postpone the case in the interests of justice.

City Solicitor Meredith did not feel authorized to concur in this settlement and therefore an adjournment was made in order that he might procure the decision of the council, formed at its special session. When this was procured it was read to the court.

Mr. Hellmuth then said that he did not now ask for any mandatory in-junction for relief, but asked only for a declaration of the court as to whether the council had any control over the school board in the matter of estimates, provided they were legally sub-

His lordship said he would hear this question discussed whether the solicitors for the defendants concurred or

At the conclusion of argument of counsel, Justice Meredith announced that he would have to take time to consider the legal aspects of the case. The chief point, he said, was as to the question of responsibility. The question as to whether or not the council should pay over the money asked for should be left to the ratepayers to decide. During the course of his re-marks the judge expressed himself strongly to the effect that private ratepayer should have the privilege of being furnished with full porticulars of any estimated expenditures by either of the municipal Resolutions Passed Praying That No Liquor Be Furnished Returning Soldiers-Interesting Scenes at the Dundas Street Center Church.

The services in the Dundas Street Center Methodist Church yesterday morning and evening, and in the Sunday school, were of especial interest, in view of existing conditions and approaching events. The subject of temperance was discussed with such earnest and logical appeals to the good sense of those in attendance, that the services cannot fail to have a stirring offect not alone upon the con-gregation, but upon the city itself. The outcome of an engrossingly interesting address given by Mrs. May R. Thorniey, then whom there is no woman in London more fitted by inclination and study to speak upon the subject, was that two resolutions bearing upon a threatened retardation of the cause of temperance, and the mode of welcoming our soldiers, were carried by the church [Special to Advertiser per C. P. R.]

the great reform for which she and her co-workers are struggung has advanced with such prodigious strates that there is reason for hearthelt thankfulness. In her address she made known several facts, of which the general public have only an indis-The growth of the reform is decidedly interesting matter, particularly when narrated with Mrs. Thornley's fervor, and epigrammatic power. It was now 72 years, she said, since the first organization for curtaining the use of biquor was founded in Canada. The society was small and it had for its stated object, not total abstinence, but merely restriction. From this small beginning had grown the immense temperance-advocating organizations of the present day, the 30,000 Sons of Temperance, atmost equally large numbers of Royal and Good Templiars, and the 12,000 W. C. T. U. workers, a total of nearly 100,000 people, all pledged to total ab These, too, were only the sled: members of the movement, for were numberless other organizations whose objects were the same. At the time when the movement came into existence, conditions prevailed in the social and business world that were truly atrocious, while today there is prohibition, but during certain hours. upon certain days, in the sale of liquor, to certain people, and in the sale by certain people. In this work, those engaged in the traffic were helping, for, instead of fighting it singly as formerly, they had formed into an organization, of which overthrow meant the downfall of the whole trade. There was reason for thanksgiving in our own city, where there had been a reduction from 141 dicensed liquor selfers to 41, and in the province the day was when the liquor dealers numbered 6,000, and now there were only 3,000.

Temperance workers believed that this progressive work could be best advanced by teaching the growing generation that the use of liquor was harmful, and that children could never grow to be useful, healthy citizens if they used narcotic poisons. To this end they had for many years striven for permission to have scientific temperance taught in the public school, and five years ago, Hon. Geo. W. Rose sent them the encouraging word that he believed that the scheme was right. He had therefore authorized the teaching of scientific temperance in connection with the study of hy-giene in the schools. This achievement, that would undoubtedly have beneficial consequeces, was threatened with destruction by reason of action taken some months ago by the Provincial Teachers' Associlation. Actuated by the public cry against overworking the children, this body had considered what subjects could dropped from the curriculum, and had recommended, among others, scientific temperance. It was desirable that the weight of public opinion should brought to hear against the adoption of such a recommendation.

The dire evils of the treating system was another subject about which Mrs. Thornley believed the public conscience should be awakened. the control of Roberts and Kitchener. the South African army had been remarkable for its sobriety, good condition and health. It was then moved by Joseph Gibson, of Ingersoll, in a short, bright speech, and seconded by Mr. J. H. Bowman:

"Therefore, resolved, that we are of the opinion, expressed by Hon. George W. proposed change. "Further, resolved, that copies of this resolution be furnished to the city press and forwarded to Hon. R. Harcourt, minister of education, and to Charles G. Fraser, of Toronto, sec-retary of the public school department of the Ontario Educational Association."

The resolution was put by the pastor and carried by the showing of hands. The following resolution, moved by Mr. D. A. McDermid, was also car-
