ESCAPED MURDERER CAUGHT ON A CAR

Sensational Battle With Desperate Man On Streets of New York.

New York, March 22.—Down in the basement of the police headquarters, building one of the tickler machines began to murmur this morning. The steel pencil hovered over the unending roll of white paper, and suddenly began to write:

"Sip Alexander Devoe, escaped convict from Sing Sing prison, has been recaptured by Lieuts. Muggie, Toner, Gaylor. Fifty-third street and Columbus avenue. Reported by Lieut. Muggie from west side police court by phone."

Up at Fifty-third street and Columbus avenue things were going on. A trolley car full of passengers were scattered in four directions: a tall, sophisticated man was cursing and endeavoring to shoot; three strangers were dragging him and his companion across the street, a loaded revolver pressed against his abdomen.

The tall man was Alexander Devoe, and as he is due to spend the rest of his life in Sing Sing, he would, he said afterwards, just as lief as not have killed all three strangers. But the strangers were detectives, and gave him no chance. They hustled him and his companion to the west side police court.

It was on March 9 that Devoe got out of Sing Sing, by sawing the iron bars. With him went John Clark, who afterwards was recaptured. For the past week the New York

LIVING AS COSTLY IN LONDON AS U. S.

Foodstuffs Less Expensive, But Wages Are Smaller, Says Report.

Washington, D. C., March 22.—That the cost of living to the laboring classes of London is correspondingly not much less than in any of the large cities in the United States, is made manifest in a report to the bureau of manufactures of the department of commerce and labor, by a special agent who has completed an investigation of the condition of the laboring population of the London district.

In a review of the wages paid to the various trades, it is evident that the earnings of the London workmen are as correspondingly low as the price of foodstuffs. Taxicab drivers make from $15 to $20 a week, the agent says, are unquestionably the best-paid workmen in the city. The best-paid London policeman gets $10 a week; a letter-carrier $8.50 at the most, and in the engineering trades the maximum wage is a little more than $10 weekly.

Prices of food and lodgings, taken from Islington, Hackney and Whitechapel, the principal laboring districts, represent that food and lodging for a workman with wife and two children will come to a minimum of $5.34, 22 shillings a week. This compared with the average wage, and those earning from $7.25 to $9.75 a week are spoken of as "better paid," shows perhaps little difference from the cost of living in America.

Secretaries of labor unions and charitable organizations report that during the last two to five years the workmen ready for employment had not been able to work more than 65 to 75 per cent of the time.

MANCHURIA'S CRISIS

Great Britain's Policy on the Proposal to Neutralize Railways.

London, March 22.—The Daily Mail today published a statement on the far eastern situation, which I am able to state, is based upon information obtained from the most responsible sources. The Mail is informed that there is no foundation for the report from Washington, published in a New York newspaper, to the effect that Japan is to make proposals to the United States looking to a new joint understanding to maintain the open door, and it also gives

SUICIDE OR HOAX

Note Says Body Is in Reservoir and Town Will Pump It Dry.

New York, March 22.—Believing that the body of a suicide is in the big Port Jervis reservoir, the police and water departments of Yonkers have determined to pump all the water out of the reservoir if the body does not come to the surface tomorrow. Following the discovery on the reservoir bank of an overcoat, hat and bottle of carbolic acid, with a note attached, the police have been grappling for the body for several days. The note read:

"This is to let my friends know that I met death at my own hands, and not to blame anybody for it. My last cent is gone and there is nothing for me to live for. Good-bye—Joe."

On a timetable in the overcoat was written the name, "Joe Madland." No one of that name lives in Yonkers, and no such person has been reported missing.

Yonkers is in the middle of a typhoid fever epidemic, resulting from an impure water supply, and there is a feeling that nothing must be left undone to determine whether a human body really lies at the bottom of the reservoir.

If the suicide note is a hoax, as some of the investigators believe, it will prove costly for the city, as fully 60,000,000 gallons of water will be wasted.

THE PARIS RAT

Rising of the Seine Has Brought On a Plague of Rodents.

Paris, March 22.—In the days when Eugene Sue wrote his novels of the underworld of Paris, the Rat Catchers' Guild formed a highly remunerative and active profession—so active, in fact, that the rodents gradually disappeared along the riverfront, and were rarely found in the cellars as high as those of Montmartre, when the new system of drains was instituted.

With the rising of the Seine, however, and the "backing up" of the sewers, the animals came back to their old haunts and again took up their lairs in cellars and basements of houses, and at night could be seen scampering about the streets. Unfortunately, Paris was quite unprepared for the invasion. The Rat Catchers' Guild, whose members used to receive a handsome price for riding a house of the pests, and then sold their skins to furriers, was no more.

Only one rat catcher is left, an old man named Henri Dayve, who is the municipal rat catcher of the city of Paris. He alone is left, and he has no apprentices, for the calling is no longer lucrative, and so he finds himself suddenly lifted into notoriety by the new plague of rats, as being the only rat catcher left in Paris. However, it seems that he is setting to work bravely, but it is something awful for a great city to be attacked by a plague of rats and to possess only one rat catcher, and he not a Pied Piper of Hamelin.
