NATURAL GROWTH OF CHELSEA GREEN HAS BEEN WONDERFUL DURING THE LAST FEW MONTHS

Short Time Ago It Was a Barren Piece of Land, But Industrious Workmen Took Hold and Built Residences, Stores, Churches and Schools, and Today It Is a Thriving Suburb of London.

Chelsea Green during the past few months has been going ahead in leaps and bounds, and it is expected that this summer several hundred homes will be erected in that section.

A few years ago the Green was a bare piece of untitled ground, and one day a man while passing through the district saw its possibilities and decided to form a company, sell lots and build a small suburb near the city.

The company was formed, a water main was constructed, sewers and side drains were built, a bridge was erected across the river and a small school-house to take care of the children soon sprang up. At first building was slow in that section, but soon the idea took hold with the employees of the McClary Manufacturing Company and the Rolling Mills, and before long comfortable cottages sprang up all over the suburb. Then came the churches and schools, and finally one of the best schools in this section of the country was erected.

Several factories there. Since that time several small factories have located there, and only a few weeks ago a large American company purchased the property belonging to the defunct Wilcox Hardware Company. A number of hands are already employed there, and it is expected that before summer 50 more will be added to the staff. The company purchased considerable land on which to erect houses for its employees, and as soon as the weather permits a building boom such as the Green never before witnessed will be started.

May Build Large Factory. Then the representatives of a large oil stove manufacturing company of the United States were in the city about a week ago, and after looking all over the city were most favorably impressed with a location in the Green which was shown to them by Commissioner Henderson and Chairman Spittal of the manufacturers' committee. It is almost a safe gamble now that the company will locate its factory in this city, and that it will be built in Chelsea Green. The company is not asking for any concessions from the city, and will employ many skilled employees, whose weekly payroll will be large, and the minority of whom will either build or rent homes for themselves in Chelsea Green.

A well-known citizen, whose name has not been made public, purchased sixteen lots on the site of the old ball grounds in the Green, and three lots from other citizens. It is his intention to erect workmen's cottages on them as soon as the weather permits.

Mr. P. St. Clair Aldridge is letting a contract for a house on Terrace street today, and many other men have signified their intention of building as soon as the frost is out of the ground.

MR. P. ST. CLAIR ALDRIDGE, who has been an active worker for the bettering of conditions in London's popular suburb.

A New Feature

This "Greater London" section has been started for readers of The Advertiser living in the outlying districts of the city, and will deal with questions of importance to Chelsea Green, Ealing, Pottersburg, Knollwood Park, West and South London.

Anyone having items which they would like to have appear in the paper should telephone them to 3670, or send them by mail.

ANOTHER ENTRANCE NEEDED TO GREEN

Residents and Merchants Badly Handicapped, Having Only One Outlet.

PETITIONS CIRCULATED

Questions Will Be Taken Up as Soon as Weather Moderates and Petitions Will Be Pushed With Fervor.

The liveliest question in Chelsea Green today, and one that means a whole lot to the merchants and residents, is a road or outlet from the Green into South London.

This question has been discussed on numerous occasions, and as the means of entrance to the suburb at present is over the Adelaide street bridge the people are considerably handicapped.

Some time ago a petition was circulated amongst the residents asking that something be done towards opening a new street from South London right into the Green. It met with favor from every man who was asked to sign it, and it looked for a time as if the outlet would be secured.

When winter set in the question was dropped for a time, but as soon as spring opens it will be taken up with a new fervor, and it is almost an assured fact that something definite will be done.

"Such an outlet is an absolute necessity," said Mr. Aldridge, who was active with the petition last fall. "There is no way of getting into the Green unless one comes over the Adelaide street bridge. Something will have to be done, and the sooner the better. We are going to take up the question again as soon as the weather moderates, and I feel sure that something definite will be done this time."

NEW BRIDGE NEEDED AT CHELSEA GREEN

Old One Crossing the River at Adelaide Street Is in a Shaky Condition.

HAS BEEN CONDEMNED

Would Not Cost Much to Put Up New Structure, as Abutments and Approaches Could Be Utilized.

Chelsea Green will soon have a new bridge to span the River Thames at Adelaide street. The bridge which is there now, and which is the only way into the city of entrance to the Green from the city, is in a shaky condition, and has been condemned on several occasions by bridge inspectors.

The river at the point where the bridge crosses is about the same width as the point where it is proposed to erect a bridge. The new bridge would be built on the same foundations as the old one, but the cost of erecting a new bridge at the Green would be considerably less than to build the West London bridge, for the reason that land for approaches would not be so difficult to obtain, and the old piers, which are in good condition, could be utilized.

Is in Shaky Condition. Chelsea Green is in bad condition, a well-known fact, and it is also realized that if a heavy load were sent over it, it might give way. There is considerable traffic over the bridge, and every time a light wagon crosses the beams and girders creak and groan, and one can almost feel the planking swaying under his feet.

Could Hold City Liable. The bridge was first built by the Chelsea Green Land Company, and at one time it might have been possible to force the township officials to maintain it, but since the city took over the Green it is doubtful if this can be done.

Dr. Black and McWilliam are handling the cases, and it is expected that they have them under control. There are three children affected with the disease in one family, and in a number of other homes two children have caught it. It is estimated that there are about fifteen cases in all.

A rumor to the effect that a majority of the children attending the school at the Green had contracted the measles has circulated about the city today, but this was emphatically denied.

AMUSEMENTS

It's a Funny Play.

Margaret Cavell's comedy, "Baby Mine," conceded to be the funniest play in the English language, is announced for an engagement at the Grand tonight, with Walter Jones and the New York company, under the direction of William A. Brady, Limited, its original producer. There is no question about the quantity of fun or the quality of it in Margaret Mayo's amusing comedy, "Baby Mine." It is a play which does not depend upon buffoonery, but rather upon ludicrous situations, which crowd upon each other during the action of the piece. Walter Jones, who created the role of "Jimmy" in the original production, is a featured member of the Metropolitan cast to be seen here.

Big Musical Comedy.

Richard Cavell's comedy, "Baby Mine," with a host of pretty girls, will come to the Grand Saturday, matinee and night, in Charles Frohman's production of the farce with music, "The Girl From Montmartre." As an added feature of the attraction, Mr. Frohman has interpolated J. M. Barrie's laughable satire on the problem play entitled "A Slice of Life," which is played by Mr. Carle, Miss Williams and William Danforth. The supporting cast of 11 funmakers includes William Danforth, Edwin Nield, Al Hart, George Lydecker, Donald Macmillan, Percy Leach, Ralph Nairn, Anita Rothe, Moya Manning, Mercedes Esmond, Veola Harry, Clara McFarlane and Alice Carrington, and Joe Smith in original dances. Seat sale opens tomorrow at 9 a.m. This attraction played Detroit last week to capacity, and the Detroit papers say it is one of the best shows they have had this season.

No Woman Under Fifty Can Afford Gray Hair

Famous actresses and society women use my preparation when their hair begins to turn gray or fades. They revive their hair to its natural youthful color and brilliancy. They know a woman cannot afford to have gray or faded hair before she is fifty.

The attractive women of forty to fifty, who look like girls of twenty, are my principal patrons. They know me well. I have recently arranged my laboratory so I can now supply a larger number of women with this preparation which is not a dye or a stain. It is a clear liquid, pure as water. It soaks into the hair and nourishes and restores the natural color to an average heavy suit of hair.

Dyes or stains are dirty, dangerous, harmful and show plainly. They rub off on everything and streak the hair. MARY T. GOLDMAN'S GRAY HAIR RESTORER is a liquid food that penetrates. It cannot rub off or show a bit more than the color could rub off your hair when you were fifteen.

Mary T. Goldman's Gray Hair Restorer is made in different kinds, to suit hair pigments from light brown to black. If you will write to me, and send me a tiny bit of your hair, or tell me the original color, I will advise you the right strength to buy.

All exclusive high class articles are substituted. There are a dozen imitations of my preparation on the market. Unless you want to take chances, avoid these substitutes. The full-size bottle of Restorer costs $1.00. One bottle is usually sufficient to restore the natural color to an average heavy suit of hair. Made by MARY T. GOLDMAN, Goldman Building, St. Paul, Minn.

GOETHE ANALYZED BY PROF. POWYS

Life and Ideals of Great German Poet Vividly Treated at St. Andrew's Hall.

Those who attended John Cowper Powys' lecture on Johann Wolfgang von Goethe last night in St. Andrew's Hall, may well have felt that the curtain of Goethe's identity was lifted for the evening, at least, and that those present were looking upon the greatest of modern poets—the pioneer of the modern spirit. Goethe, the boy, the student, the prime minister, and the poet, were all graphically sketched by Mr. Powys, who spoke with unusual interest because of having visited only recently many of the German cities associated with the great poet.

And he was great, Mr. Powys stated. The meeting of Napoleon and Goethe might well be described as a meeting of supermen, when for the first time in his life Napoleon came face to face with a personality equally as imperious, as dominant, and as sinister as his own. Mr. Powys also liked to compare Goethe with Leonardo da Vinci as being the two most magnetic personalities, about which something of the occult, something of the tragic, something of the enigmatic, was contained. Goethe himself, standing as he did at the door of the modern world, was in a sense a superman; to his own age he was a Pharoah shedding light in dark places.

"Goethe was but another synonym for culture. People are so often bored to death by this word, but what many people call culture is civilization, not culture in the real sense. There are those who profess culture, and those who are civilized. It is the latter who are in the inner courts who will find Goethe par excellence.

The birthplace of Goethe, Frankfurt-on-the-Maine, had the peculiar quality, Mr. Powys stated, of being bourgeois and commercial, a city of shopkeepers and merchants, but also possessing its romantic and historic atmosphere in its streets over which imperial troops used to pass, in its old Gothic churches and in its council chambers where emperors used to sit in state. And here Goethe was born in a family neither proletarian nor aristocratic, but bourgeois.

Goethe's life as a boy and student at Leipzig and Strasbourg, and his subsequent appointment to statesmanship, by Karl August, Grand Duke of Saxe-Weimar, were briefly recorded by Mr. Powys, who stated that the poet's life at the duke's court was a period of growth as many of the small German principalities were centres of real culture. The German prince, Karl August, did much for Goethe, and the work of these two made possible a new renaissance at the end of the 18th century of all that was best in German literature. Goethe's travels to Italy, and his many love affairs, were all influences in his poetry. If he had not had his amours, Goethe would never have written so divinely as he did, and if he had not had the self-revelation which resulted from his Italian travels "Faust" could never have been given to the world.

In order to properly appreciate Goethe, it was necessary to be a student of the German language. The translation into English resulted in much of the beauty being lost. Mr. Powys dwelt at length on his passages from "Sorrow of Werther," "Wilhelm Meister," and closed with a quotation from "Faust."

At the close of the lecture, a number of those present remained to be seated to Mr. Powys, among them being ing Mr. Radcliffe, of the Normal School, Inspector Edwards, Rev. H. H. Bingham, and Dr. James, of Western University.

Captured Butterfly On Tenth of March

Several Londoners have thrown out their chests and thought, with pride, I am the original discoverer of the butterfly of spring, when they heard or saw the "first" robin sitting on the limb of a tree, singing softly to himself, but to Mr. W. J. Anderson, of 580 Dufferin avenue, belongs the greatest honor so far this year.

Monday afternoon, March 10—mark well the date—while going into his home, Mr. Anderson discovered a butterfly, of the common variety, on top of a sandpile at the corner of Adelaide street and Queen's avenue. Walking up to it, he found that it was in a comatose condition and easily captured.

He carried it home and put it in a bottle, placing the bottle near the stove. In a short time the heat revived the insect and it began to flutter in the bottle. Mr. Anderson has it at his home now, and is keeping it as evidence of his veracity.

FORMED ASSOCIATION IN KNOLLWOOD PARK

First Meeting Was Held Monday Night and Questions of Interest Were Discussed.

Residents of Knollwood Park have formed a Progressive Association, and the first regular meeting was held at the home of Mr. Rusk on Monday night. Several important questions were discussed, amongst them being street railway service for that section of the city.

It was decided to ask the city council to put forth an effort to secure a street railway line along Oxford street to Quebec and down Quebec to connect with the C. P. R. It was also suggested that an overhauled bridge be placed across the C. P. R. tracks at Quebec street, and as the land at that point is not very high, it would not be a difficult matter.

The question of mail delivery was taken up, and several motions in that effect that a box be placed in that suburb or that a permanent sub-office be established, were made.

The west side of Quebec street in Oxford is a large mud slide, and it was suggested that a cement sidewalk be constructed there. A petition will likely be circulated asking for this, and will be sent on to the council.

The association is in favor of a public gymnasium in Queen's Park for the workmen, and placed itself on record to that effect.

PLAYED A CLOSE GAME.

A close game of carpetball was played in Pottersburg Hall, Craig street, and Wootley road, on Monday evening in the Independent Order of Foresters League. Court Dufferin succeeded in defeating Court Byron by a score of 15 to 16. The game was extremely close from the beginning, and the result was in doubt until the last ball had been rolled.

ENTERTAINED STUDENTS.

Mrs. S. J. Radcliffe entertained the students of Grade A of the Normal School at her home on Marley Place Saturday evening.

Mrs. Thomas Jones, of Duchess avenue, is seriously ill in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. McDowell, 125 Bruce street, left today for the west, where they will reside.

PHONE CONNECTIONS HAVE BEEN REPAIRED

Damage Done to Conduits by Water Sunday Has Been Fixed.

Nearly all the telephones in East London and Pottersburg which were out of commission Sunday and Monday on account of water getting into the conduits, are working again.

Employees of the Bell Telephone Company worked all day Monday and late into Monday night in an endeavor to repair the damage. It is expected that the telephones will all be working by tonight.

MAY FORM PROGRESSIVE ASSOCIATION IN GREEN

Question Discussed and Many Are in Favor of Such a Body.

Ratepayers of Chelsea Green are discussing the feasibility of organizing a progressive association similar to those of other sections of the city. Committee have been formed over there from time to time to discuss annexation and other questions.

Mr. Percy St. Clair Aldridge has always been an active member of these committees, and nearly always acted as chairman. He worked hard for the annexation of the Green and other privileges which have been gained by that section are the result of hard work on the part of him and other members of the Green.

WRITING FINAL EXAMINATION

A large number of the students who received temporary certificates at the Normal School examinations last June, have returned to the city and are now engaged in writing on the examinations for permanent certificates.

LEFT FOR MONTREAL.

Mr. Thomas Kinross, leader representative of the Brotherhood of Railway Conductors, left this morning for Montreal, where he is to act upon a committee which is waiting upon officials of the road.

MEASLES OUTBREAK IN CHELSEA GREEN

About Fifteen Cases Have Been Reported, But Physicians Say It Is Checked.

Measles have broken out amongst the children of Chelsea Green, and as a result quite a scare was stirred up in the suburb.

Dr. Black and McWilliam are handling the cases, and it is expected that they have them under control. There are three children affected with the disease in one family, and in a number of other homes two children have caught it. It is estimated that there are about fifteen cases in all.

A rumor to the effect that a majority of the children attending the school at the Green had contracted the measles has circulated about the city today, but this was emphatically denied.

REV. W. C. RIDDIFORD MAY NOT COME HERE

Has Already Accepted a Call to Egerton Street Church.

Although everything has been arranged that Rev. W. C. Riddiford, of Peterboro, will take the pastorate of Egerton Street Baptist Church here, the congregation to whom he has been preaching in Peterboro has been making every effort to retain him, and have requested that he reconsider his resignation, which has not been accepted.

April 1 is the date set for Mr. Riddiford to come to London. If it can be arranged he will preach here next Sunday, but will not be here to stay, merely coming for the day.

Whether he will seriously reconsider his resignation he has not promised. The Egerton street congregation is confident that he will abide by his decision to come to this city.
