

ANNOUNCEMENT. FALL PUBLICATIONS

Ready in October.

RICHARD YEA AND NAY.

By MAURICE HEWLETT, author of "The Forest Lovers," "Little Novels of Italy," etc.

Paper 75c. - Cloth $1.25.

Richard Cœur de Leon is the hero of this latest novel by Mr. Hewlett. Richard's is a character peculiarly in harmony with the superb vivacity of Mr. Hewlett's style. Readers of advance sheets of "Richard Yea and Nay," speak of it as a novel of even greater power than "The Forest Lovers," the style of which, as James Lane Allen said, "is an achievement, an extraordinary achievement . . . In the matter of interpreting nature there are passages in this book that I have never seen surpassed in prose fiction." To quote The Dial's opinion of the novel will perhaps give some idea of what may be expected of this last one: "The book is a joy to read and to remember, a source of clean and pure delight to the spiritual sense, a triumph of romance reduced to the essentials, and interpreted with a mastery of expression that is well-nigh beyond praise."

THE HOSTS OF THE LORD.

By FLORA ANNIE STEEL, author of "On the Face of the Waters," "Voices in the Night," etc.

Paper, 75c. - Cloth $1.25.

The New York Tribune's estimate of Mrs. Steel's first book may, with forcible appositeness, be applied to this one: "Strong in its dramatic handling of heroic issues . . . It is in her truth that after all makes Mrs. Steel the impressive novelist that she is. She leaves nothing to chance. She yields not a jot to the claims of convention." "The Hosts of the Lord" is an extraordinarily brilliant piece of fiction, blending romance and tragedy with the daily life of the natives of India and their English masters. It would be futile to attempt to give an outline of the story, or even to characterize it. It is on too large a canvas, and is of too wide an interest to admit of description. It is, without a doubt, the most masterly piece of work that Mrs. Steel has yet done, "On the Face of the Waters" not excepted.

THE HOUSE OF EGREMONT.

A Novel. By MOLLY ELLIOT SEAWELL. Illustrated. Paper 75c. Cloth $1.25.

This is the most important and longest piece of fiction that Miss Seawell has yet done. It is a romance of the seventeenth century, dealing with the friends of the exiled Stuarts, and is full of adventure. It is a time to which Miss Seawell has given special study and which always exerts a great fascination.

IAN HAMILTON'S MARCH.

By LIEUT. WINSTON SPENCER CHURCHILL, author of "London to Ladysmith via Pretoria." Paper 75c. - Cloth $1.25.

This book contains colored maps and plans of battle, and is said to out rival the author's former fascinating work on war.

HERONFORD.

By S. R. KEIGHTLEY, author of "The Silver Cross," "Cavaliers," etc. Paper 75c. Cloth $1.25.

A new novel of adventure. The action is strong and well sustained, and the interest never flags.

THE GRAND MADEMOISELLE.

By JAMES EUGENE FARMER, author of "The Grenadier." Paper 75c. Cloth $1.25.

A martial story with a large vein of romance, and considered even better than "The Grenadier," which attracted not a little attention.
