

A NOTE ABOUT THE AUTHORS

James Appathurai is a civilian employee of the Department of National Defence. He is currently employed in that Department's Directorate of International Policy.

Ralph Lysyshyn is a member of the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade. He works in the International Security Bureau.

Both authors were members of the Interdepartmental Task Force created to coordinate Canada's participation in the Zaire crisis. The views expressed in this paper are those of the authors alone and do not necessarily reflect those of the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade, the Department of National Defence, or of the Government of Canada. The authors greatly appreciate the many helpful comments and suggestions they have received from their colleagues.
