ADDRESS BY SENATOR THE HON. ALFRED J. BROOKS, P.C.,
Q.C., M.P., VICE-CHAIRMAN OF THE CANADIAN DELEGATION TO THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE UNITED NATIONS, NEW YORK CITY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1961.

Mr. President:

The birth of a new nation and its admission to membership in this world organization is always a significant event. It is particularly gratifying to the Canadian Delegation to be able to participate today in welcoming the representatives of Sierra Leone, with whom Canada already shares so happy an association within the Commonwealth. It is especially fitting that the Prime Minister of Sierra Leone, Sir Milton Margai, whose personal abilities and leadership have won him wide recognition in Africa and elsewhere, is able to be with us for this occasion.

Canada has followed with close interest and deep satisfaction the orderly progress of Sierra Leone along the path toward independence. We have been particularly impressed by the statesman-like manner in which its leaders, despite the stresses and problems inevitably associated with this transitional period, have assumed the new and challenging responsibilities of statehood. The record of Sierra Leone's progress to independence reflects also the harmony and co-operation which has existed between that country and the United Kingdom. The government and people of Sierra Leone, and all who have been concerned with this achievement, deserve our most sincere congratulations.

As a new member of this organization from the rapidly developing continent of Africa, Sierra Leone will have a
