NLY FEW LARGE HATS

Medium-Sized Look Large Beside the Small Ones Seen Lately.

The March millinery openings are on. The exclusive up wen establishments and departments given up to the display of milady's chapeau in the downtown shops are one and all transformed into wonderful spring gardens. Showcases are a riot of glorious color, and the window displays are marvels of artistic arrangement. The joy of beholding the latest French models is not to be foregone this spring. They are all here—the decrease in pattern hats being hardly discernible—just as if nothing had happened to prevent Dame Fashion's most trusted workers from "creating" models of straw and taffeta for the fancy of the whimsteal devotee.

devotee. In the review there are few large hats—and the medium-sized look large beside the pill-box and cap-like little affairs that perch in such a saucy manner on the side of femininity's well dressed coif. Of course "military" effects are without number. There is the striking General Joffre in blue, shown side by side with a dinky little "torpedo" helmet. The French army cap and the smart sallor share equal honors, while styles representative of honors, while styles representative of all the allies are in great demand.

As for trimming, quality and the mode of employment is the chief feature. There is no end of novel ernaments, cockades by the hundreds, little Union Jacks, tricolors and the national emblems of all the allied nations are fashioned from feathers, Flowers will be very popular trim-ming—especially small, close rose clusters in all the latest shades. Ribbon in many instances is the only or-namentation, while straw cordings are also very chic. In every instance the new full flowing veil is a complement to the lovely new spring headpiece.

Patriotism without production is an empty sound. If ever there was a time when by your deeds you are required to be known, it is now. Now, when the empire is at war; now, when many of the regular channels of supply are closed; now, wene men in millions have been summoned from the paths of industry to the infernd of destruction; now, when Britain is fighting to find the world's libertiea are at stake; now, when Germany seeks to prostrate Britain even as sile has prostrate; now, when Germany seeks to prostrate Britain even as sile has prostrate and harms of Britain even as sile has prostrate and harms with starvation; now, when the enemy is bombarding peaceful towns and villages, singhtering innocent and harms less women and children; now, when fortile fields and fruitful gardens of other lands are lying in waste and swollen with death; now, is the time when Canada is called upon to put forth her mightiest effort to help stem the tide of destruction, to aid the empire and to profit berself.

Te pe Untole Good.

In entering upon the compaign in which it is now engaged, the department of agriculture of the Dominion has entered upon a task that should ountold good. It is not that our farmers needed altogether to be prompted to benefit themselves, but that perhaps some of them do not entirely recognize the seriousness of the present and the more than probable critical conditions of the future. If the war were to end tomorrow, there would still be need for every effort in productiveness, for many years must elapse before the devastation that has been caused can be remedied or repaired. Unhappily, the probabilities are that the glant conflict will continue for many months yet, in which case the mind of man cannot fathom or forose the damage that will lawe been privated to be a supply, the time has been too short as yet to permit this.

To agriculture in particular, by the waste of life, by the wrecking of property and by the spreading of desolation. It is in repairing the damage others cause that the farmers are called upon to aid. It is their mother country that cries to them.
