

AN INLAND VOYAGE

sponsibility? Well, then, let me go to Paris."

The Maréchal-des-logis looked at his watch.

"You may leave," said he, "by the ten o'clock train for Paris."

And at noon the next day the travellers were telling their misadventure in the dining-room at Siron's.

THE END

Printed by BALLANTYNE, HANSON & CO.
Edinburgh & London