Sir Thomas White While in Washington Made Arrangements With U.S. Board.

DECLINE IN EXCHANGE

giving them consideration. Upon the invitation of the chairman, Hon. Mr. Hamlin, I addressed the board upon our financial and commercial position, and the state of our exchange and international trade with the United States. The board was most courte-

This preliminary having been com-plied with, the board will then determine, upon their individual merits, applications for permission to issue in the United States. These applications must be made and supported before the American capital issues board by the parties interested or their repre-sentatives. They will not be made or recommended for favorable consider-ation by the Dominion authorities, as this for obvious reasons would be un-Conferred on Exchange Rates.

"While in Washington I resumed with the American and British officials our deferreed discussion about the exchange rates between Canada and the United States which for some time past has been quite unfavorable materially help to balance by reducing to Canada. The whole exchange problem of the alkies, which is world-wife like to have but which we do not in its scope, is continually under study most intricate and anxious questions of the financial side of the war. All the belligerent nations are having very serious difficulties with exchange.
That of the enemy has practically broken down. Great Britain's ex change with America is at a discount over two per cent. Both British and American exchange with neutral countries is at a discount reaching as high as 30 per cent. In Spain, for example, where large supplies are bought for the American army in the United States dollar is known here today. The transport estimates the United States dollar is known here today. The transport estimates the superior speed, although the superior speed to a shell fire attack from t worth only 70 cents. The reason for caped by superior speed, altho a runthis discount on the American dollar ning battle, lasing more than an hour is precisely the same as that for the took place in which more than 100 decline in the American market of our dollar, namely, the credits given Great Britain and the other European allies whereby they make purchases in the United States and Canada of there were assumed to have one gun that outranged any carried by the transport, and from this gun foodstuffs, ammunition and other sun-Without those credits they plies. Without those credits they could not purchase, but the finding of the purchase money in Canada and the United States deprives both countries of the value for exchange pur-poses of their favorable trade ba! ance with the rest of the world. Condition Not Onerous.

"In this general condition of de pressed exchange, the Canadian con dition is not regarded as onerous. O. the contrary, it is thought to be exceptionally favorable in comparison

It is recognized that the premium upon New York funds is an impediment to international trade, but considerations of trade alone are not regarded as sufficiently important in view of more pressing war time necessities to war rant specific sterling or dollar credits merely for the purpose of equalizing or stabilizing our exchange. The war has made international trade, at least in its purely commercial aspect, of wholly secondary importance.

"In view of this we must. like the other allies, expect irregularities and fluctuations of exchange and moet them as best we may. While in Washington and New York I was able to make certain financial arrangements which will, I think, have a helpful effect. These will disclose them selves later. At present they cannot be made public."

"As to the remedial measures which we can adopt to assist our exchange, I urge again the homely but unwelcome admonition to individual economy. If we were not as a people so wasteful of our money, we should have little difficulty with our exchange. of permitting so far as may be compatible with the national interests of the United States the issue of Canadian securities in their markets, and I regard our conference as having served a most useful purpose.

"As a matter of procedure the board will require that all Canadian issues before being considered by them shall first be approved as factorized in the control of the United States the issue of Canadian issues and limit the operation of our non-essential industries if this becomes imperative. This latter would save coal and other raw material which we now import and add to our industrial and military man power. It has been suggested that a large Dominion loan in New York would reminion loan in New York would remove our exchange difficulty. So it would, but seriously at the expense of our credit, as interest and commission rates are abnormally high for all outside securities. Any such loan by the Dominion would react unfavorably upon our victory loan issues and the rate of interest which we shall have to pay upon them. It would, moreover, be only a palliative and would promote further unnecessary importapromote further unnecessary importations. The present exchange rate,
