day morning.
Occurring when it did, when the village was asleep, it was a wonderful feature that none were even injured.
Hundreds were driven from their homes by the rapid spread of the flames and the inhabitants worked like bees, removing their own or their children, Mr. Walter managed to move most of his household effects, but the house itself was completely burned to the ground.

From the home of Mr. Leeder, Sr., on Bartlett-avenue, north of the mill site, the fire spread to the house of his son, adjacent. The furniture in this house was saved, but the building itself was badly damaged.

Firemen's Gallant Fight.
So great was the distance from the nearest city hydrants to the scene of the blaze that the full allowance of hose of two companies was required for a single stream reaching the fire.
Three lines were thus run by six hose companies attending. These were fed by the steamers from Cowan-avenue and Dundas-street Stations.

The hose lines had to be run under the C.P.R. tracks to allow of passage of trains.
When the streams were got in operation, the planing mill and most of the lumber piles were gone. Four houses were destroyed and many others were burning. The valuable house of A. B.
Leeder, standing immediately to the north of the yards on Bartlett-avenue, was threatened, and was the brick schoolhouse, the most valuable building in the village.

About this the fears of the residents were centred, and they thronged about Deputy Chief Noble, first to arrive upon the scene, begging him to save the school. All efforts of the firemen were turned in that direction, and it was put out of danger after a short but stubborn fight.

A line was then run to the easterly side of the fire on Salem-avenue, and a spread in that direction into a thickly-populated centre, which looked imminent, was promptly checked. Two lines had meanwhile been working on the westerly and southerly boundaries of the blaze. The Leeder house was saved and a number of others which had been threatened were saved from destruction.

The village is peopled mainly by those of the working classes. Many of the homes were those of workers newly arrived in the country and had been erected by the personal toil of their owners. Upon these there was little insurance, and the grief of the stricken ones was pitiful.

The Losses.
The fire was first seen in the centre of the lumber yard near the engine house of the mill and may have been caused by a spark, the an almost unanimous belief, which is shared by R.
Leeder, the chief sufferer, is that it was started by a firebug.

The damage totals about $20,000. The damage to the mill and yards is placed at $50,000, while the remaining $10,000 is placed almost wholly on the houses burned, as the loss in furniture was slight, not exceeding $1000.
