These private telephones would not conflict with the business of the Bell Company, or at any rate with their monopoly, and they would not decrease the receipts of that company. At any rate if it is necessary or expedient to carry any wires overhead they should be strung on respectable supports. It is unfortunate that a more extensive policy in regard to stringing wires was not adopted years ago. The principal streets should have been tunnelled for the use of all combatters. The Lungs, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels, etc. act as so many waste gates for the escape of elect as so ma have been tunnelled for the use of all companies engaged in electric and similar enterprises. Every Servant Should Be Held Résponsible It has been suggested that the city should create a new official whose business would be the purchasing of supplies. The blanket episode in the Property Committee the other day shows that supervision of some kind is necessary, but at the same time we do not see the necessity of creating a new officer. The various departments have men on their staffs who are, or ought to be competent to purchase all the materials connected with their departments. Let the responsibility for these purchases rest with the men who make them. Even if we had a purchasing agent he would have to be supervised by the aldermen. The latter, in sing event, will have to be the citizens' watchdogs, and if they do their duly aithfully and personally investigate the acwatchdogs, and if they do their duty faithfully and personally investigate the ac-

St. Leon is a perfect water, therefor needs no improvement. It requires no artificial preparations, to add to its medicinal or other properties. Most mineral waters require "preserving" to prevent stagnation; which largely explains why St. Leon is so popular with the masses.

Prof. Ino Baker Edwards Referring to his analysis of St. Leon says; "This rare water contains Bromides, Chlorides and Iodites, combined with very powerful alterative minerals, and is so supercharged with natural gases that it protects the water from an expert of the atmosphere.
