A FAMOUS ARTIST'S APPRECIATION OF "A DAUGHTER OF THE GODS."

(By Harrison Fisher.)

I think hundreds of thousands of persons must share my own view about the majority of motion pictures. Most of the large picture spectacles are so filled with violence, crime and brutalities or gruesomeness that I will avoid pictures in the future.

Imagine my delight, therefore, over "A Daughter of the Gods," which I have seen in advance, by invitation, not merely once, but several times. Here, truly as you know me, is the picture Beautiful in theme and presentation. A picture at least for the millions of American women and children; a picture of pure fantasy and delicacy of story for all clean-brained people.

"A Daughter of the Gods" glorifies the beauties of life, makes supreme use of the loveliness of the most wonderful women in all the world; makes elves and fairies believable and real and blends them with a story of gigantic proportions. In entirety here is a story as pure as filtered air and as cleansed as the deep sea.

This is a picture destined to win new converts to the screen throughout the world. It beckons to mothers and children, saying:

"Wonderful is nature and humankind dwelling amid it. Beautiful is the out-of-doors and those who people it. Amazing are the virtues of beauty."

The cause of modern art owes much to William Fox, the producer of this charming spectacle.

At the Patricia Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday.

City Eye Specialists Tell How To Strengthen Eyesight 50% In a Week's Time In Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Boston, Mass.—Victims of eye-strain and other eye weaknesses, and those who wear glasses will be glad to know that doctors and eye specialists now agree there is real hope and help for them. Many whose eyes were failing as they have had their eyes restored, and many who once wore glasses say they have thrown them away. One man says, after using it: "I was almost blind. Could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without my glasses, and my eyes do not hurt any more. At night, they would have been sore. Now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me."

A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere for fifteen days everything seemed hazy. I can read even fine print without glasses." Another who used it says: "I was bothered with eye-strain, caused by overworked, tired eyes, which caused severe headaches. I have worn glasses for several years, both for distance and work, and without them I could not read my own name on the envelope, or the typewriting on the machine before me. I can do both now, and have discarded my long-distance glasses altogether. I can count, the uttering leaves on the trees across the street now, which for several years ago looked like a dim green blur to me. I cannot express my joy at what has been done for me."

It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time. Their eyes will be able to strengthen, and eyes as far as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses.

Dr. Beck, an eye specialist of nearly twenty years' practice, says: "A patient came to me who was suffering from lepharitis Marginalis, with all the concomitant symptoms as morning redness of the lids, chronic conjunctivitis and epiphora. Her eyes then not congested had the dull, sur-number of children in the gnome city scene, 1,500; more than 200 mermaids, 300 dancing girls and women of the Sultan's harem, number of feet of film taken, 223,000; number of feet shown to you, 10,000 in ten reels. Seven camera men photographed the picture, as many as four photographing the same scene simultaneously from different angles. A Moorish city built at a cost of $350,000 and destroyed to make one of the "big scenes" of the picture. An entire Caribbean island and all of its population utilized by William Fox to assist his actor principals in the making of the picture. Time required to build the tropical city and equip it, three months. Then eight months more of work in making the picture. A special municipality created and governed by William Fox for his thousands of employees. Special refrigerating and laboratory plants built and maintained for the development of the film. There was no loss of human life in the making of even the most hazardous scenes. At the Patricia next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Shirley Mason's next appearance will be in "Light in Darkness," written by Peter B. Kyne, a frequent contributor to the Saturday Evening Post. It is a prison reform picture, some of the scenes having been snapped in the branch penitentiary in New York.

Douglas Fairbanks has taken unto himself a regular trainer in the person of "Bull" Montana, erstwhile pugilist, wrestler and ring-side instructor. Any one familiar with Doug's work on the screen can readily appreciate the fact that he requires a trainer to keep in form. "Bull" is not only a trainer, but he is also somewhat of an actor. The meeting between Fairbanks and Montana came about in New York recently, when the latter applied at the studio in response to a call for his services. Clad in his Sunday suit, "Bull" introduced himself to Doug and was immediately engaged. An hour later he looked as though he had been in a wreck. "What happened," asked Fairbanks. The former idol of the ring stammered and with flushed face replied: "A tough guy said that you fake all your athletic stunts and I happen to know better. I've seen you in action, and tried to tell him, but he wouldn't listen. The best thing I could was to let him have my right just for luck." "But you seem to have received the star as he gazed at the discolored eyes of the ex-champion of self-defense." "Not from the guy he hit, though," claimed one of the property boys. "He and two others were in the hospital now, but it didn't take long for 'Bull' to clean up de gang."
