PROBLEMS OF THE ORIENT.

That there are many problems of vast importance in the relationship and future of the countries of the yellow race has long been recognized. A most comprehensive study of these problems from many different viewpoints has been set forth in the recently published volume "China and the Far East."

(Thos. Y. Crowell & Co., New York.)

This study of the Far East is not the product of one man's pen, but is a symposium representing a score of authorities, both Oriental and Occidental. It is the result of a course of lectures delivered before Clark University, and dealing in the main with China, also Korea and Japan are necessarily involved in the discussion.

On behalf of Korea we have three authors; on Japan, two; and on China, one. The authors are: Hon. Horace L. Allen, former U. S. Minister; second, "The Japanese Administration," by Prof. George T. Ladd, of Yale; and third, "Religious Conditions," by Rev. E. F. Hall, Jr. Dr. Kan-ichi Asakawa describes "Japan's Relation to China," and two other pertinent chapters on Japan appear.

Three-fourths of the volume, however, are devoted to China, showing that nation's "Position in World Politics," "Trade Relations," "Monetary Conditions," "Army," "Optimism Problem," "Learning," "Missions," etc., etc., each being written by some professor or official best qualified to speak upon his special phase. The result is a volume of especial timeliness and importance, giving as it does a group of expert opinions, separately expressed, but forming as a whole a remarkable consensus upon this "kindred of mysteries." America, in common with the rest of the world, needs to know as much as possible about the condition of affairs in the Far East, since this portion of the globe is destined to play an important part in international politics. Students and readers generally will welcome this mature contribution.

done. He asked Tom if deceased had been in the habit of carrying money, and Tom said he often carried large sums.

Victim Was Annoyed.

Deceased had told him several times about the annoyance the Scott family had caused him. Mrs. Scott, Tom's wife's mother, was the cause of all the trouble. Deceased further said to him that the Scotts were trying to drive him out. He had said that he would dispose of the place and Tom would not get a damn cent. Chas. A. Springstead, county constable, examined the pockets of the deceased and took possession of the contents. Finton had $4.46. Springstead had left the pockets turned inside out. He saw the overalls alleged to have been worn by Tom that afternoon. There was a blood spot nearly as large as a recent piece on the left leg below the knee. Tom's ankle high rubber shoes looked clean. Tom had told him there was a blood spot on the shoe.

Mrs. Spers, Tom's sister, identified the hand-writing in the journal of the deceased, showing that he had given Tom $100 on Nov. 1, as settlement of wages. She had suggested dividing the house, so that Mrs. Tom could live there. Her father had given her to understand that he would divide the house if the others wanted it.

She had no reason to think the father and son were not on the best of terms. Deceased had complained to her that Tom had stayed away and left too much work for him. If Tom ever left again he would make different arrangements, he had said. Tom had been away several times.

Arthur Wilson, called again, corroborated evidence about the wages. Tom had said to Chief Twiss that he had purchased the furniture with $40 his father had given him a week previously.

Chief Twiss, also recalled, said that Tom told him his father owed him the money.

The crown attorney produced deceased's journal. The payments to Tom entered for 1910 total $155. While in jail $13.21 had been taken from him. His rubber shoes had not looked as though they had been worn thru the barnyard. He thought they must have been cleaned if he had been wearing them.

Dividing the House.

Tom took it as a matter of course when told he would have to be arrested. While in the bedroom Twiss had taken a shirt from the back of the door. Tom said he had not worn that shirt and protested vigorously against the chief taking it.

Food on the Overalls.

Mrs. Kerr, housekeeper, was recalled. "Did you put any blood on this man's overalls?" asked the crown attorney. "No, I did not," she answered. "I did not see the overalls."

George Finton had told her that her advent had displeased Tom. She asked him and he had told her that she had caused no trouble. George told her that Tom wanted his wife there, but not if she was there. Mrs. Kerr had said that she would be rid of Mrs. Tom came, as she would be.

On the morning of the murder.

Tom did not seem to be in a pleasant mood towards his father. Finton had been cheerful. Tom never answered when questioned by his father.

Deceased had not been in sight when Tom hitched up. He led one horse out and the other trotted after. Finton had not been in the house after 8.40 a.m., so the cough could not have been his.

Was This a Weapon?

She had seen Tom put something on the right hand the seat, whether it was a stick or a piece of iron she could not say. She thought it was between two and three feet long. It looked dark, and she thought Tom was taking something to the blacksmith shop. She thought it was iron.

While Mrs. Kerr was talking the crowd became hushed and when she finished all moved as tho the crisis had been passed. Crown Attorney Washington said he had written to Lynch-Staunton, counsel for Tom, saying that Tom would be allowed to give evidence but Lynch-Staunton did not notify Tom.

campaign shorten the interest and enthusiasm.
The luncheon is the best yet," exclaimed the committee men yesterday after the announcement that $48,643.35 was added to the grand total, which now stands at the splendid figure of $534,210.00.

"Wait until Monday evening," said one team captain and an old time helper to The World as he passed out, "and this building will witness a scene that will shake the very roof."

The reports of the team captains are most inspiring. "This is not all my work, but of these fellows on the team," exclaimed one captain, as he announced a total of 200 subscriptions, with a lot of several thousands.

On the business men's committee the teams of Thomas Bradshaw, R. W. Eaton and J. M. Godfrey vie with each other in the number and amount of their collections.

"Sixty-four subscriptions," said Mr. Eaton, the first day, making a record, and "44" is banteringly cried every day as he climbs on top of the chair to add $8000 or $10,000 to the total.

"Raise him," greets John Godfrey, as a reminder of the Pellat incident, and G. H. Wood is always expected to spring a surprise.

One incident told by Harry Rymie was a deep impression. The father had signed a subscription card of $100 in memory of a son.

"The father promised that boy," said Mr. Rymie, "and if he didn't smoke or drink until he was 21 years of age. The boy was in the Y. M. C. A. camp at Lake Couchiching for a season. He afterwards died and the father has sent the money to this fund in that boy's memory."

John Craig told of a little dot of $4000 over and over, and his remarks about the campaign. Quietly she went upstairs and presently returned with three quarters and a ten-cent piece in an envelope.

"This is for the young men," she said, pressing it into Mr. Craig's hand. "I know that I am doing, tho I don't think it will make the clock go very far round."

Financial Fir Contributors.
A subscription of $1000 from the Toronto General Trusts Corporation is the first response by a financial institution to the call. On the other side the financial corporations have strongly supported the expansion movement of the Y. M. C. A. In Lowell, Mass., 60 corporations subscribed. And from this source over half the amount required was raised. In this city a trust company paid to the Y. M. C. A. site valued at $100,000 on the main street for a nominal sum of $25,000. Also in Lawrence, Mass., all the banks contributed. "They think it is mighty good insurance."

Strongest Force for Good.
J. W. Woods, whose subscription has been referred to, spoke common sense when he said:

"I want to congratulate you on the splendid work you have done, and as a business man who has a great number of young men in his business, I want to thank you for that work. I have not been able to take any part in your campaign, but my interest in it has been very keen, indeed, and I am now no convert to the usefulness of the Young Men's Christian Association. Some time ago I came to the conclusion that if the Young Men's Christian Association is not now the strongest force for good on this continent, it soon will be."

"I have no hesitation in saying that the business I am associated with is deriving an immense advantage from the privileges that the boys have been able to get within the walls of the Young Men's Christian Association. The amount asked is a large sum, but I do not think it is a cent more than you are entitled to, and I believe the citizens of Toronto realize that. I question whether for $500,000 they could buy the newspaper space that will be given all over Great Britain, United States and Canada to advertise Toronto in the very best way in which it could be advertised."

One Record to Be Proud Of.
"You have beaten many records. I think there is one record that Mr. Ward will agree is surpassing all others. That is the enthusiasm of you committees who are handling this affair in Toronto. I am certain, too, no other city has had an organization with as enthusiastic a chairman as Mr. Wood. Toronto should be proud of it, and is proud of it."

"I feel that the Young Men's Christian Association in building character, in developing physique, in strengthening will power of young men, is doing the very best possible work in the way of developing our resources. None of our resources are as valuable to the country as the young men, and no waste is equal to the waste of young men. Whatever keeps young men in the right track is the very best work we can possibly do, and no amount of money is too much to be given for that purpose."

Rabbi Jacobs' Present.
Rabbi Jacobs endorsed the Y. M. C. A. with the words:

"If this had been a gathering of a Scotch Presbyterian church to a million of the Jews, I would not have come here so readily, but I recognize that the Young Men's Christian Association of Toronto does not want to turn a Jew into a worse Christian. I have, therefore, come here with the greatest of pleasure to tell you that I hope your movement will meet with great success and approbation amongst my own community."

"It has afforded me the greatest pleasure to see in the columns of your subscriptions some Jewish names and some of the trustees of my congregation have given most generously, particularly when it is borne in mind day after day and week after week we are called upon in our own congregation to put our hands into our pockets for some deserving object. However, there is always something left to support an institution of the character which you are trying to put on a sound, solid basis."

"I know this and we all recognize this in our community, that the Young Men's Christian Association of this city stands for the uplift of the young men of Toronto, religiously, morally and also physically, and for that reason we wish you godspeed in this work. As far as I am concerned, I may not see eye to eye as you do, but I am a staunch believer in the Y. M. C. A. saying: 'I am a man and I think that everything that tends to the betterment of my fellow-creatures is deserving of support.'"

A Perpetual Interest.
Answering Mr. Wood's call Rev. Dr. John Neil, Westminster Presbyterian Church, said: "Some people say 'Silence is golden,' but your speeches are golden to-day. I am delighted that you are so successful. I can assure you, you are not only raising the money, but every man and girl who has contributed to this building fund will be deeply interested through all the future, and every time they pass the building you are going to erect, they will say, 'I have a brick or stone in that building and I rejoice in its success.'"

"The one thing that I feel the Young Men's Christian Association should do is to work, and every time they pass the building you are going to erect, they will say, 'I have a brick or stone in that building and I rejoice in its success.'" cognize the fact that man is four square—that is, physically, socially, intellectually and spiritually. You are ministering to them all. I wish you every success in your great work."

Beattie Nesbitt is Glad.
"Nothing has given me greater pleasure than subscribing to this building fund," remarked Dr. W. Beattie Nesbitt, after telling the audience that they were not kind to the chair they called him to stand upon.
