Canadian Food Controller's Suggestions of War-time Dishes For Tomorrow

Save beef and bacon by using dishes like macaroni and cheese.

Macaroni and Cheese

Cook macaroni in boiling salted water for twenty minutes. Drain and pour over it cold water. Put a layer of macaroni. Sprinkle with grated cheese. Repeat. Pour the white sauce over this and cover all with buttered crumbs. Bake until the crumbs are brown.

Macaroni, Cheese and Tomato

Prepare as for macaroni and cheese, only use tomato sauce instead of white sauce. Prepare as for a white sauce, using tomato juice instead of milk.

Save bread and flour by using cereals like corn and buckwheat.

Try Johnny Cake

Cornmeal, 1 cup; white flour, 1 cup; sugar, 1-3 cup; sour milk, 1 1/2 cups; soda, 1/2 teaspoon; baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon; salt, 1 teaspoon; molasses, 1 tablespoon. Mix and sift the dry ingredients twice, and gradually add the sour milk. Beat well and bake in a shallow greased pan, in a moderate oven. DAUGHTER OF PEER ELOPES

Romances of Lochinvar and Jock o' Hazeldean Outdone in Real Life

"She is won, we are gone over bank, rush and scurry; 'They'll have fleet steeds that follow,' quoth young Lochinvar."

—SIR WALTER SCOTT.

The fabulous romances of "Lochinvar" and "Jock o' Hazeldean" are outdone in real life.

"A wounded officer who fell in love with his nurse, the daughter of a peer," such a romance, beginning in Mayfair, culminating in a quick dash to Scotland, pursuers eluded by a "quick change" in a telephone-box, and the old ending, always new—"They lived happily ever after"—such is the real, true story of a marriage notice recently published with the blessings of everybody.

WYNDHAM-MACKAY. On the 23rd May, at the Church of Aloysius, Glasgow, Lieutenant Dennis Wyndham, Wiltshire Regiment, son of Mrs. W. Cook of Pictou, and Elsie Mackay, third daughter of Lord and Lady Inchape, Seamore place, Mayfair.

It was the "Daily Sketch" which first published the fuller details of the story. The "heroine" (the nurse) was the daughter of a peer, who objected to the patient as a bridegroom on the ground that in peace time he had been on the stage.

For this and other reasons, obstacles were placed in the way of the devoted couple, which, had they been less resourceful, would have kept them apart. "We are the two most amazingly happy persons in London," declared the bride, a big, bronzed, broad-shouldered South African, declared, when invited to tell the story of his romance.

The charming bride enthusiastically endorsed the sentiment. Both gave details of their escape from provost-marshals and detectives.

The story had its beginning more than twelve months ago. Captain Dennis Wyndham—he was then a lieutenant in the Royal Berkshire Regiment—was brought home from France suffering from gas poisoning and the effects of an accident.

He was taken to Lord and Lady Inchape's Hospital in Seamore place, Mayfair, where he was nursed by the Hon. Elsie Mackay. The acquaintance thus begun ripened into sincere affection, and eventually Captain Wyndham sought an interview with Lord Inchape. Because of the officer's connection with the stage his lordship's hand, Captain Wyndham left for another hospital in London, and to quote the words of his bride, who took up the narrative at this point, "we became secretly engaged."

Then she told the story of a very adventurous day, which ended in their eluding pursuers in London, and escaping to Scotland, where the wedding took place.

"It was on the Saturday before May 23," declared this happy bride, "that we had arranged to get a marriage licence. We went to a registrar's office, but my father, who had heard of the arrangement, and had unexpectedly arrived in London from Scotland—he reached the house just as I was leaving it—had previously sent a collector to the office, and the registrar made an objection, which meant a delay in issuing the certificate."

"Thus we realized that active steps were being taken to prevent our marriage. My husband had been discharged from the hospital three weeks before and we learned that his leave had been cancelled, and he was liable to be arrested."

"However, we were met by a provost-marshall, who 'arrested' the bridegroom."

"That P. M. was a splendid fellow," commented Captain Wyndham. "He took us both to his house, and served us with a capital breakfast. I was allowed to get into uniform at once, and was subsequently tried by a general who reprimanded me. I told him candidly the reason why I had been absent without leave, and there was no bitterness about his reprimand. In fact, he seemed to be smiling over it."

His connection with the stage has not been a lifelong one. "He has been a cow-puncher and a soldier, and has been in the Natal Mounted Police, and fought in the Zulu rebellion. He is a splendid athlete, and enjoys a reputation as an amateur heavyweight boxer."

Before the war he acted with Sir Herbert Tree; since his discharge he has appeared with Mrs. Patrick Campbell in "Sinbad."

The bride is the third daughter of Lord Inchape, formerly Sir James Lyke Mackay, who was born at Arbroath.

The Easiest Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon, apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips. By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail. You can get malinoid coconut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few pounces will supply every member of the family for months.

SHE DARKENED HER GRAY HAIR

A Kansas City Lady Darkened Her Gray Hair and Made It Soft and Glossy by a Simple Home Process.

She Tells How She Did It.

A well-known resident of Kansas City, Mo., who darkened her gray hair by a simple home process, made the following statement: "Any lady or gentleman can darken their gray or faded hair, and make it soft and glossy with this simple recipe, which they can mix at home. To half a pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, 1 small box of Ortol Compound and 1/2 oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair every other day until the gray hair is darkened sufficiently. It is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off. It makes a gray haired person look 10 to 20 years younger."

INQUEST OPENS
A jury was empanelled yesterday afternoon at Robbsey to inquire into the death of Patrick Kirkpatrick, who was electrocuted yesterday morning.

The jury viewed the body and visited the scene of the accident. The first witness called was Miss Jessie Robinson. She said that she saw the body lying on the road, one hand grasping an electric wire. Harvey Thompson stated that he had called up the power house in the city before the accident occurred and told them that a live wire was lying on the road in Robbsey. The inquest was adjourned until tonight at 8 o'clock at the residence of Councillor Gilbert. Dr. P. H. Wetmore, of Hampton, acted as coroner. The body of the boy was found lying in front of Albert Thompson's residence. Nothing is known of the nature of the accident, but just at that place a tree was blown down on Tuesday night, taking the wires with it.
