Home Rule. On the last of next month—a day not devoted to the goddess of wisdom or reason either—Mr. Gladstone is to move forward in the quicksand and quagmires of his scheme of Home Rule for Ireland. The term, Home Rule, is less sentimental than scientific and is so elastic that it may mean anything and everything as desired, so that it would be mere speculation to venture, a guess as to the form it may develop in Mr. Gladstone's hands and under the magic of his explanatory tongue.

Had been able to have abolished the legislative council we could have added a further saving of $12,000, making a total of $38,000 a year. Apart altogether from the financial aspect of the question, there is another point of contrast between the two administrations. I want this country to understand what the difference is between the present administration and its predecessors, its policy and that of the present opposition. I want the two placed side by side and the people of this country afforded a fair opportunity of making a choice between the two and if with the record these gentlemen made in the Government and the record they have made in opposition, their course has been such as to commend itself to the country in preference to that of the present administration it will be for the people of this province to reject the record, but, upon an examination of these $38,000 or $38,000, the two trips did not cost the country $700 as had the trip of the now Judge King in connection with the legislative council.

The completion of the committee and the fact that Mr. Young declines to be the subject of a party man, he is not, leads to the suspicion that he is "up to snuff" and is endeavoring to make up for Mr. Park's shortcomings in the last session.
