A chain of fortifications, including steel, concrete, trenches, and dug-outs, costing a hundred million dollars, is completed. Ger-many boasts that she will be pre-pared for war within a year, yet so exhausted were her resources a short time ago that she had to repudiate her war obligations. The truth is coming to light — the German spi-ru, nurvei by munition makers and a sub rosa note from Doorn — wa-nes without the presence or pros-pect of war.
