

Indian Ocean wh. bluet were able to resist at all & got much of the bluet bluet wh. bluet once had.

Here contrast again with the bluet

Paraguay developing folk side under bluet probably not "at all

Exp. steering between these 2 things "chiefly successful in steering in this way because she did not adopt the most potent system affecting both Paraguay & bluet -

Here then we have a very definite contrast between correct policy in Eastern waters

The same sort of contrast might be drawn re colonizing of Exp in the West. The Spaniards had sought to get ports to West chiefly on acct of precious metals. The Exp. didn't ignore possibility of getting precious metals. Lord Bacon protests against its exclusive attachment to this. Capt Jno Smith protests against it. Most Exp came as traders. As colonizatioⁿ extended, it was getting character of plantatioⁿ, & settlement of Exp. men engaged in it. This development of Exp. beyond the sea was the definite transference of Exp. colonists to utilize a
