Saturday, 2nd December, 1916. PROGRESS OF THE WAR

[November 23 to November 29] 130 summarize the progress of the war during the week under review is lifficult in view of the meagre details given in the daily press dispatches. may be said that on the Western front the activity was confined, for the most part, to artillery duels and aerial opera tions, and that practically no changes in positions were effected. On the Eastern front positions wer about as in the preceding week, except in western Rumania, where the Teutons and their allies continued their advance from the northwest, west, and southwest, the Rumanians retiring in order before them, but destroying all the supplies they wer unable to transport. At the week's close the enemy was within twenty miles of Bucharest, the Rumanian capital, and from which the court and governmen officials had retired to Jassy, about 200 miles to the north-northeast, where th new capital will be situated. In the last days of the week, the Russians were re-ported to have begun a vigorous campaign in the southeast Carpathians to relieve the pressure on Rumania, and were making great efforts to reinforce the Rumanian troops.

The Caucasian campaign furnished little news during the week, the latest reports being that the Turks were advancing in Turkish Armenia west of Lake Van, and at other points.

Of the Mesopotamian, Egyptian, and East African campaigns the week was altogether without news. In the Balkan campaign the Entent Allies continued to make progress in Serbia northeast of Monastir, and along the Macedonian front generally; and the Rumanians, aided by the Russians, were reported to have recovered more ground, previously lost, in Dobrudja. The position of affairs in Greece was still unsettled and precarious, the pro-German sympathies of King Constantine and his supporters being made further manifest. The Allies would appear to be prepared to take extreme measures against the King and his adherents if finally necessary. The provisional government at Salonika declared war against Bulgaria, and that event is certain to precipitate matters. No important changes in position seem to have been effected in the Austro Italian campaign, though considerable activity prevailed, the weather conditions having improved.

The east coast of England was twice damage was inflicted beyond the loss of an armed trawler used as a mine-layer; but it is a matter of regret that the at tacking vessels escaped uninjured. On the night of the 27th two Zeppelins visof England; but they inflicted no great damage, and were driven off and sunk in Mark's church. the North Sea, their crews perishing. The same night a hostile aeroplane soared over London at a great altitude and dropped some bombs, which caused only slight damage. A PSALM OF MONTREAL THE City of Montreal is one of the most rising and, in many respects, most agreeable on the American continent, but its inhabitants are as yet too busy with commerce to care greatly about the masterpieces of old Greek Art. In the Montreal Museum of Natural History I came upon two plaster casts, one of the Antinous and the other of the Discobolus—not the good one, but in my poem, of course, intend the good one-banished from public view to a room where were all manner of skins, plants, snakes, insects, etc., and, in the middle of these, an old man stuffing

"Ah," said I, " so you have some antiques here; why don't you put them when people can see them?"

"Well, Sir," answered the custodian, "you see they are rather vulgar." He then talked a great deal and said his brother did all Mr. Spurgeon's printing. The dialogue-perhaps true, perhaps imaginary, perhaps a little of the one and later he was appointed assistant general went to awaken him. Local doctors were little of the other—between the writer and this old man gave rise to the lines that > Stowed away in a Montreal lumber room The Discobolus standeth and turneth his face to the wall; Dusty, cobweb-covered, maimed and set at naught, Beauty crieth in an attic and no man regardeth: O God! O Montreal!

> Beautiful by night and day, beautiful in summer and winter, Whole or maimed, always and alike beautiful-He preacheth gospel of grace to the skin of owls

And to one who seasoneth the skins of Canadian owls: C God! O Montreal When I saw him I was wroth and I said, "O Discobolus! Beautiful Discobolus, a Prince both among gods and men! What doest thou here, how camest thou hither, Discobolus, Preaching gospel in vain to the skins of owls?" O God! O Montreal And I turned to the man of skins and said unto him, "O thou man of skins, Wherefore hast thou done thus to shame the beauty of the Discobolus?"

But the Lord had hardened the heart of the man of skins And he answered, "My brother-in-law is haberdasher to Mr. Spurgeon." O God! O Montreal! "The Discobolus is put here because he is vulgar-He has neither vest nor pants with which to cover his limbs I. Sir, am a person of most respectable connections—

My brother-in-law is haberdasher to Mr. Spurgeon." Then I said, "O brother-in-law to Mr. Spurgeon's haberdasher, Who seasonest also the skins of Canadian owls, Thou callest trousers 'pants,' whereas I call them 'trousers,' Therefore thou art in hell-fire and may the Lord pity thee!"

"Preferrest thou the gospel of Montreal to the gospel of Hellas, The gospel of thy connection with Mr. Spurgeon's haberdashery to the gospel of the Discobolus?" Yet none the less blasphemed he beauty saying, "The Discobolus hath no
