

A GREAT SUFFERER FROM RHEUMATISM CURED BY ST. JACOBS OIL.

MR. E. G. MOORE, of 7 Phillips street, Kingsland, says: "I was a great sufferer from Rheumatism for many years, during which time I tried many remedies, from which I received but very little relief. Being advised to use St. Jacobs Oil, I did so, and am happy to say that after a few applications I felt great relief, and continuing its use I can now say I am perfectly well. St. Jacobs Oil is, in my opinion, a thing which should be in every household."

What a blessing, and what hours of suffering, pain and misery would have been saved had Mr. Moore adopted the wiser course and used St. Jacobs Oil at first, instead of wasting time and money on worthless concoctions and nostrums, with which, unfortunately, the market is flooded. The public should not lose sight of the fact that St. Jacobs Oil has conquered pain for more than fifty years, and it can't grow old or stop doing the same thing now or at any future time. Fifty years' record of pain conquered is a record to inspire confidence.

Stratford, 4th Aug., 1893. Messrs. C. C. RICHARDS & CO. Gentlemen.—My neighbor's boy, 4 years old, fell into a tub of boiling water and got scalded fearfully. A few days later his legs swelled to three times their natural size and broke out in running sores. His parents could get nothing to help him till I recommended Mr. RICHARDS' LINIMENT, which, after using two bottles, completely cured him, and I know of several cases around here almost as remarkable, cured by the same Liniment and I can truly say I never had such a medicine which has had as good a sale or given such universal satisfaction. THE VERB "TO SHY."

How its Meaning was Illustrated in a Western Court. One of the easiest ways for a lawyer to confuse a witness is to make him explain the meaning of a word. Few people can define a word satisfactorily, even if they know its meaning. A Western lawyer was cross-examining a young woman who had a very haughty temper. According to the Los Angeles Herald, she had testified that she had seen the defendant "shy" a book at the plaintiff.

The lawyer seized on the word, "shy," "shy a book," "What do you mean by that?" Will you explain to me what the word "shy" means?" The girl leaned over the desk beneath the witness-box, picked up a law book and threw it so accurately and so forcibly at the lawyer that he had hard work to dodge it. "I think the court now understands the meaning of the word 'shy,'" said the judge, gravely. The girl was allowed to finish her testimony.

Stops the Cough and Works Off the Cold. Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets cure a cold in 30 days. No Cure, No Pay. Price 25 cents. A Humane Judge. For a breach of the old maxim, "Kiss, but never tell," a man in East Liverpool, Ohio, was married to a woman named Harry Colledge, as the police court records. He knocked at the door of Mrs. Anna Barker, doctor, and a drink of cold water, which the kindly matron gave him, whereupon Mr. Colledge expressed his gratitude by seizing Mrs. Barker with sufficient force to render her unconscious, and issued her, then peaceably went his way.

Later Mrs. Barker had Mr. Colledge arrested and told her tale in court to the justice of the peace, H. P. McCree, by name. That night of the law heard the story told calmly and then asked, "Is that all he did?" "Well, yes," answered Mrs. Barker, with some reluctance, "but he went away and told a dozen men what he had done. That's what made me mad, and I want him to get the limit of the law."

The justice looked thoughtfully at Mrs. Barker for a long time, and then, after declaring himself incapable of flattery and determined to be just, announced that he was compelled to dismiss the case on the ground that, while the act of Mr. Colledge was in fact involuntary, it was in effect involuntary. In other words, that, with the defendant's opportunity and the plaintiff's beauty taken into consideration, what happened was inevitable.—Exchange.

THE ORIGIN OF SHAVING

Mr. W. Shaw Sparrow contributes an article to the Magazine of Art on "Hirsute Adornments and their origin," which touches on the origin of shaving. He says, "The origin of shaving is to be found in the very primitive custom of painting the body. Now in more barbarous times this old vanity was every-where more marked, and hence we may suppose that no painted tribes liked their skin decorations to be hidden from view by a veil of hair. Hence they removed the offending things, as the Red Indians seem to bear witness, and their variegated bodies became the first public exhibition of a crudely realistic art. Again, all primitive shaving took place with the aid of the flint razor, and the custom of shaving the hair neatly, and thus our pre-historic hunter artist, whose beard came to a point, and whose sporting tactics were so well known to his drawing, knew not the beginning of the barber's craft. It may have been those tactics that made it necessary for his ancestors to shave both their faces and heads, for consider how flowing beards and long hair must have caught in every bush and bramble as the unshaven hunter crawled along the ground, and how dangerous the horns of the Great put an end to beards in the Mædonian army only because they were pulled in battle. Last of all, the first pre-historic man who joined two metal razors together, introduced the art of clipping the beard to a point. Many bronze razors have been extant in France, and are at least as old as those Sicilian ones with which Skilpio Africanus set the fashion of shaving in Rome; but the fashion of modelling, probably, on other such instruments used in times vastly more primitive.

India in No Danger. A thirteen-year-old lad applied for work the other day at a Border factory where three of his brothers had been working before they took the Queen's shilling. He was taken care of by the principal and told to start by "How's your brother Jim getting on?" "He's out fechtin' at the front, sir." "Is Tom out also?" "Yes, he's wif Jim in the 2nd Buffs regiment." "I suppose?" "Na," said the youngster, proudly, "oor Sandy hasna gae out yet. He's mindin' India."

QUIET FOR TELEGRAPHERS. Coral Reef in the South Pacific. The little coral reef in the South Pacific Ocean, known as Fanning Island, is to be a resting place for the British submarine cable to the Australian Commonwealth. Although a mere speck on some maps, and entirely absent from most atlases, it has developed great importance in the telegraph system of the world. It lies 1080 miles south of Hawaii, and is geographically accurate, situated in latitude 8 degrees 52 minutes 23 seconds north, and in longitude 15 degrees 21 minutes, 50 seconds west. On this island the Pacific Cable Board, by which the English Cable Company is called, has determined to establish its mid-ocean station, expending thereon between $100,000 and $120,000 in San Francisco.

The plans for the buildings have been prepared in this city by Henry H. Meyers, and provide for quarters for the telegraph staff, including the operating room, a dwelling for the Superintendent of the station, a carpenter shop, bath house, a lamp room, kitchen and a large reservoir for the catching and preservation of rain water for drinking purposes. The walls of these structures are to be of coral obtained on the island, but all the other material will come from San Francisco. The coral will be covered with cement on the exterior and the buildings will be made as nearly fireproof as possible. They will be for the most part two stories in height.

The telegraph cable station will be located at English harbor, the only shipping entrance on Fanning Island, although it is nine and a half miles long and four miles wide. A peculiarity of the place is that it is not above two or three feet above the level of the ocean, excepting on the outer coast, where the rim of the coral has been thrown up by the action of the sea to the height of ten feet in some places. There are trees on the island, but they are mostly cocoanut, so that fuel, as well as drinking water, is a scarce article. The coral lagoon has been a British possession since 1798.—San Francisco Chronicle.

HORRIBLE PAINS.

French Gentleman's Sufferings are Beyond Description.

Many Doctors Treated him, but without success.—Doit's Kidney Pills Cured Him, and now He Tells the Story. St. Urbain, Que., April 27.—(Special.)—Fearful indeed has been the experience of Narcisse Barrette, of this place. For fifteen long and wearisome years he has suffered with an acute Malady of the Kidneys and back which has caused him the most agonizing pains.

The specialist's carriage was announced. He asked the footman how many patients waited for him in the ante-room. "Two," said the man. "The very thin gentleman and the very fat one." "Ah!" said the doctor. "I shall not be able to see anyone else this morning, James." The thin, nervous man came in quickly, stumbling over the rug in his eager haste. His eyes were unusually bright and his head jerked occasionally in an unbecoming manner. He was thin to emaciation.

"Good morning, Mr. Slimmer," said the doctor, gravely. "How are you to-day?" "I feel as though I were going to fall in small pieces, or else to fly," said the thin man, beginning to finger a paper knife on the table. "I can't sleep and I can't eat," said the doctor, holding the thin man's wrist for a moment, glancing at his watch as he did so. "I'm-n," he said, "you really ought to go to Bermuda, Mr. Slimmer." "Impossible, doctor," said the thin man, irritably. "I can't think of such a thing. I have all sorts of business affairs at stake just now. I can't get away."

"You tried the hot milk before retiring?" "Yes, it was no good." "And the warm bath and massage?" "Yes, but it made me thinner. I declare, doctor, I lost weight. I did, I assure you. I did not want to gain more flesh. I'm nothing but skin and bone. I'm a living skeleton." "Have you taken the daily exercise I recommended in my automobile for two hours every day?" "That won't do, Mr. Slimmer. You'll have to walk." "But I don't feel well enough to walk. It excites me too much." "You'll have to if you want to get well. Otherwise I'll have to send you to a sanitarium in another month or so, and I'll give up your case. Drive for two hours, but walk for an hour. Take an hour's tramp in the park. Walk around the square where the fountain is, you know. There's a nice, soft path. Twice around takes an hour. Drink the hot milk, and—come and see me again in a week."

Mr. Slimmer put his hand nervously in his pocket and took out $25, which he placed on the doctor's desk. Then he hurried out. Mr. Heavyweight came in ponderously. He sat down panting from his short walk along the boulevard. His shoes dully between his fat lids. His cheeks hung in bags. He had four pounds on his head. His waist measure was indefinite.

"Ah, Mr. Heavyweight," said the doctor, gravely, "how are you?" "No, better, doctor," said Mr. Heavyweight in an undertone. "I've got no appetite. That is, I don't enjoy my food. My digestion is all wrong. I have headaches and a taste in my mouth. Worse than all, I've gained five pounds in the last week. I feel you, doctor, I'm desperate."

"You really ought to go to Bermuda, Mr. Heavyweight. You need a tonic." "Can't get away, doctor. I've five political banquets to attend in the next two weeks—absolutely necessary." "Have you taken the hot water every day?" "Yes, it makes me sick. I tell you I gain weight on hot water." "The doctor is the fat man's wrist between his finger and thumb, timing the pulse by his watch." "H-m-m," he said. "How about the hot bathing and the massage?" "I've taken 'em till I'm tired. They give me heart failure. I weigh a pound more after each treatment."

"Have you taken the daily exercise I drive out my team every day for an hour or two in the park?" "That won't do, you'll have to walk for an hour also." "Walk? Doctor, I'm too heavy a man to go sprouting around for an hour. It looks too silly. Besides, I pant and puff. My heart's weak." "I'll give you your case. You've refused to diet, but you must walk. Take a walk around the fountain in the square every day. Twice around is a mile, and take just—well, it will take you a little longer. Keep up the hot water—and—come and see me again in a week."

Mr. Heavyweight deposited $25 on the desk with a groan and panted out laboriously. The doctor, who was a man of medium build, got into his coat leisurely and thoughtfully and stepped out to his carriage. As it turned into the square he caught the sight of the fountain. One was the thin man, who walked jerkily. The fat man trudged on laboriously, puffing like a steam engine. The doctor leaned back against the cushions, chuckling softly to himself.—New York Sun.

Children's Fertilizer.

That's a good name for Scott's Emulsion. Children are like young plants. Some will grow in ordinary soil. Others need fertilizers. The nature of some children prevents them from thriving on ordinary food. Such children grow right if treated right. All they need is a little fertilizer—a little extra richness. Scott's Emulsion is the right treatment.

Fertilizers make things grow. That's just what Scott's Emulsion does. It makes children grow in flesh, grow in strength, grow rich blood, grow in mind, grow happy. That's what we make it for. Send for free sample. SCOTT & BOWNE, Toronto, Canada. 50c and $1.00 all druggists.
