The seven other amendments which the government held over provided, among other things, for an appliaction among temperance men. We are powerful enough to replace the present government with one fav-orable to prohibition if we will only use our strength. Steps shou'd at once be taken by the temperance men in this province to get a strong political temperance orgunization tsgether. They should go patiently to work and lay a good strong foundation for such an association, and then this associ tion should be prepared to take independent action along temper ance lines. It is a remarkable fact that today neither of the two par ties in provincial politics has adopted a distinctive name. It is time that men should vote for one side or the other, according to the opinions that they entertain with refer ence to the ability and honesty of government and opposition; but the want of distintive names for the two sides in provincial politics is very significant of want of any distinctive principles around which they raily. The time is the temperence peo-ple to unite together along the
