The contest over the New York maystalty election, inaugurated by William Rendolph Hearst, the municipal owner-York reporters, who were cordially ship candidate, developed into strange and spectacular features.

For 12 hours the pearby 600,000 balo's cast in last Tuesday's election chokedd the streets in the vicinity of the "It is just thirty-three years ago headquarters of the board of elections in 6th avenue between 41st and 42nd streets. The ballot boxes had been gathered during the night by the police and conveyed in patrol wagons to the election board's beadquarters. Arriving there the ballots were refused by the officials. The police, acting under a court order signed by Justice Gaynor, compelling the police authorities to turn of the the ballots over to the election board. had nothing to do but remain outside and await the pleasure of the election

Apprised of the situation the attorney for Mr. Hearst appeared before Judge Dickey of the state supreme court and secured from him an order compelling John R. Voorhis, president of the board of elections, to accept the ballots. The order was served promptly and the balots were then receipted for by the election board. Under strong guards the patrol wagons containing the several thousand boxes were driven to various warehouses in the city and brooklyp. where the ballots were stored subject to the orders of the election hoard. Attorney General Mayer said

" District Attorney Jerome has placed at my disposal the machinery of his office and will co-operate with me in every way, as I will with him, in the prosecution of offenders against the election franchise.'

Asst. Dist. Attorney Perkins and Sandford are to devote themselves to this work in conjunction with Deputy Attorney General Mason and assistants. The attorney general received a large number of subpoenas from the district attorney and immediately put several election deputies at work serving them. Charges that several ballot boxes had been stolen before the returns were reported and that others were found unsealed, were made during the day.
