Don't ever learn to cook, girls, For fear 'twill flush your brow; Don't ever sweep or dust, girls, Pretend you can't learn how, Don't ever wash the dishes, Or make a loaf of bread, For fear 'twill spoil your hands, girls, Don't even make a bed.

But learn to dance and flirt, girls, And smirk, and smile, you know; Use all the slang you can, girls, And you'll be "all the go." Read all the latest novels, And waste your time away; For that's the style to-eay.

Make sure you'll get a husband, If this way you pursue, It does not pay in these days To be a woman true.

Don't strive for self-improvement, t it not worth your while, for sensible, true women lave quite gone out of "style."

CANADIAN PAIN DESTROY-

Years ago, in the days of Knownothingism, party spirit in the South ran very high, and a foreigner's social standing was very low. Colonel T., of Harrodsburg, Ky., had a very bright little girl, of about six summers, called Alice.

Alice was a great pet with her father's frends, and one day, while sitting on Mr. J's (a strong Knownothing) knee, he said her, jestingly:

"Alice, you are Irish, and your mother is Irish, too."

"No we are not!" replied Alice, indignantly.

"Well, ask your mother."

Alice ran to her mother in great heat and said, "Mother, are you Irish?"

"Yes, my dear," said Mrs. T., smiling, "I am."

"Oh, mother," cried Alice, bursting into tears, "I thought God made you."

BOGUS MEDICINES. Holloway's Pills and Ointment.

I HAVE for a considerable time past considered it to be my duty to advertise the public of the British North American Provinces against buying from unprincipled dealers medicines emanating from New York, and sold as my "Holloway's Pills and Ointment," in which much ingenuty has been displayed in passing them off as of my make, It is very difficult indeed to attempt to enumerate the many devices off upon the public as my "Holloway's Pills and Ointment." so that were they to injure half the community no discreding the would fall upon the fabricators of ply to these compounds, but would considerably damage the reputation of my make.
