MINARD'S LINIMENT RELIEVES
NEURALGIA.

Is What the Bonaventure Hails For.

At 6.20 last evening, the s.s. Bonaventure, Capt. Bob Bartlett, quietly steamed into port, having returned from the Gulf seal fishery, reporting her catch as 26,000 prime harp seals, valued at $50,000. The Bon was signalled from the Cabot Tower at 6 o'clock last evening and as soon as she hove in sight large concourses of people assembled on the wharves along the water front and other points of vantage to view her. A Telegram reporter was the first to go aboard and congratulate Capt. Bartlett on his success and to get a story of the voyage.

"I thought I would have the pleasure of leading her," said the intrepid explorer of the north, as he talked of his hazardous mission as if it was a berry picking party. All things considered, he said, he was very lucky from the outset of the voyage to the end. "We left here on Sunday, March 7th," he continued. The ship remained in the ice blockade for 20 hours off the Narrows and after freeing herself proceeded, and made a splendid run to Channel. Leaving there on the afternoon of March 10th went in the Gulf to within seven miles of Amherst. Considerable ice, though not extra heavy, was met with on the way, though the Bonaventure got through without much difficulty. After stemming about in quest of the seals for several hours, Capt. Bob got sight of his first white coat on the afternoon of the 16th, and proceeded in that direction until the next morning, March 17th when he struck the main patch. The ocean for miles around, in fact as far as the eye could see, was dotted with seals, and Capt. Bob never saw them thicker. Immediately the ship was burnt down and the men put on the ice. The Bonaventure was all by her "loneliness" for a week, not another ship being in sight. For the first day's kill 10,000 was reported by the master watches, next day March 18th, 16,000 and so on until in the neighborhood of 50,000 had been accounted for. When 16,000 were on board, on March 26th, a strong gale from the N.W. raged, accompanied by a snow storm, causing the ice to break up and the missing of three hundred pans. The storm lasted until the 28th. About one-third of the missing pans drifted towards the land and the landsmen were seen working them. After the storm the ship got clear and followed her seals towards the shore and succeeded in finding 100 pans, the other pans, amounting to about 20,000, were never seen afterwards. Most of them drifted towards the Nova Scotian coast and were picked up by the landsmen, while what was on a few pans went under the ice. On Wednesday the ship came out of the Gulf and went towards the harbor of Sydney her seals having drifted that far, but only recovered very few. Capt. Bartlett says the weather and ice conditions were bad. Strong winds and tides were frequently experienced, but a peculiar feature is that, there was virtually no frost and most of the sealers worked during the spring with their hands uncovered. He never saw as much ice-blindness. On one day alone 105 of his most experienced sealers were aboard with their eyes affected, but there was scarcely any sickness of any kind for the voyage amongst the crew who are all well and in the best of spirits. "The ice was very heavy this season," reported Capt. Bartlett, and he reports the other Gulf ships over a week ago off Cape St. Lawrence hailed for 3,000 when last seen over a week ago off Cape St. Lawrence. The Viking, Diana and Erik got no seals and were jammed for most of the spring. The Bonaventure was in danger of going ashore several times, owing to the running ice, but fortunately not the slightest mishap was met with. The ice was covered with deep snow all the spring, according to Capt. Bartlett, and hampered the work of the men greatly, especially hauling seals, which were towed from two to six miles to the ship. A man named Edward Kenny, belonging to Conception Harbor, who was wheelman on the S.S. Terra Nova, was brought in with a broken leg. The Bonaventure's seals are expected to average 51 lbs. and are in excellent condition. To Capt. Bartlett we extend heartiest congratulations.

The Committee in charge of the Sacred Concert of March 24th past, which was postponed owing to Mr. Christian's illness, wish to announce that said concert will now take the form of a Grand Concert in aid of the city poor and will be advertised to be held on Monday night, April 12th in the Methodist College Hall. Misses Johnson, Curtis and Colton will render recitations, instrumental and vocal items, while a glance at the remaining items will convince one of its success. Mr. Hutton will conduct the band and also render a song while Messrs. Courtenay, Christian and Ruggles will sing; Mr. Cornick, who is ill of bronchitis will not sing, but while regretting his absence the management have arranged a substitute. Mr. O'Neill will be heard in a recitation, selected by himself, and no doubt will be worth hearing. We bespeak a full audience as the tickets are going fast at the Atlantic Bookstore.

The Boys of the Second Contingent.

Jack Rossley has secured a couple of films that ought to delight the hearts of all. Our own brave soldier lads marching away and boarding the s.s. Neptune down at the wharf, all seen very plainly bidding the boys good by. See them sailing out through the Narrows, a beautiful sight, and on board the big Dominion waving their last good by (for a time) to the friends and crew of the Neptune. Here is a great chance to see how you look in a moving picture, also how your friends look. This is no fake picture but the real article, and Jack Rossley is always in the lead to get the best there is in the amusement line for patrons. His pictures at the present moment are the finest that can be had, and any pictures that can be seen at the large cities can be seen at Rossley's as there are no private films, they are all out for sale, therefore he manages to keep up to the trade. On Monday the great Ballard Brown and Miss Madge Locke will be seen in an Irish act that will be the most beautiful ever seen here. This lovely act is entitled "Paddy," and some of the old time Irish songs will be sung. Both those artists have magnificent voices and have been complimented by many of our leading citizens on their ability as sterling performers, clever, clean and the best in the business.

Foreign Missions.

At Wesley Church to-morrow, the annual service on behalf of Foreign Missions, will be delivered by the Rev. Dr. Curtis, at 11 a.m. At the evening service addresses will be given by Rev. The offerings will be for the support of missionaries in the foreign work, and while there are many calls upon our people, it is hoped there will be no necessity to reduce the present workers in many of the world's dark places. Every one is welcome.

THE THOU

HOME INDUSTRIES

The main objection to the Bank of Nova Scotia is, of course, is the way in which foreign contractors have been priced—they are only up to the mark of our local industry. There are few of us who are not aware of the fact that the most of our local industry is made up of foreign contractors. We buy them only because they are of better quality and more than the imported article. The contractors here will have in touch with the man who is used in their business, at work and less labor, and to handle all the big jobs. It is heard that in this new Bank it is to be cut here, where it is used in the Museum for instance, imported all ready cut. This means more labour and is going to be possible should always. "John Bull" tells us that a great sugar refinery in England, which almost every body knows is "Made in Germany." It is times as these that we and much patriotism influences money is concerned. But at the time, if we are compelled to buy English made machines and products that will cost more, certain is it that the new Bank will capture our trade again as more than formerly.

$50 A YEAR IN THE

Now that the Council has decided that all tenants paying $150 or under for rent, pay that their houses be kept light, that the Council will not rent to those who do not have a fire, I hope it will not be those poor people to complain, they do complain, then the next will be a notice from the landlord quit. And goodness knows they can find another shelter. Council should take the matter own hands—make a list of such as unfit and act on the City's against the owners, and protect much as they can, the amount of the ire of the landlord.

And why, pray, should we suffer fifty-dollar-a-year houses? shouldn't the man paying $80 a year and $100 a year and more, have the same privilege of demanding a house as his right? In many of the man paying these other houses has a much harder job to get and live as he would like to. He the man who is generally bearing the burden and heat of the day and is really higher in the scale of society than many whom we term the "tocracy." So let him be protected. His house may not be used for
