Easily First.
Every town, village and settlement in Newfoundland has cause to be proud of its war record, but none more so, we think than the "paper city," Grand Falls. From the beginning to the end of hostilities in Europe the sentiment of our fellow citizens in Newfoundland was enthusiastically and patriotically high, and the contributions in men and money from the town on the shores of Grand Lake never ceased. There was no need to set an example in the giving of either. Spontaneously and liberally Grand Falls responded, and by the ardour of the high spirit which animated the hearts of the townspeople, was spread the influence which infected the North, and which was productive of so much and so many of those things which helped "Win the War."

The standard set by Grand Falls may have been reached but never overtopped by any town of equal size in the dominion. Foremost in every work, with the ideals of Victory for Britain in view, the good people of the town were the first to approve of the necessity which made the passage of the Military Service Act a prime essential, the all important step of this legislation being the maintenance of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment at full strength, at a time when every man was needed to stem the great onrush of the German legions, in their determined thrust toward the English Channel ports of France.

But all that is past history, and we have now to deal with present day affairs and conditions arising out of the war, and be it noted that Grand Falls once more takes the lead in advocating the performance of certain duties by the Government, whereby those who fought for our rights and liberties will be enabled to, if they wish, engage in new industries and labours. To this end the Patriotic Association of the town has passed a series of resolutions, including recommendations to the Government, having regard to the welfare of returning soldiers and sailors who have been in service since August 1914. The main purpose of the Resolution has to do with the creation of a Permanent War Fund, toward the maintenance of which there shall be paid into the Treasury certain sums as outlined in recommendations, 2, 3 and 4, (as published yesterday). The suggestion appears quite feasible, and nothing could be more calculated to render carefree for the term of their natural life, all those men who have returned and will return, broken and disabled, than the knowledge that a grateful country has made provision for them, and their dependents.

Ecclesiastical Installation.
Rev. John Hewitt, Petty Harbor, and the Rev. A. G. Bayly, of Bonavista, have been appointed to the two Cathedral Canopies rendered vacant by the death of Rev. Canon Colley, and the retirement of Rev. Canon Netten. The installation of the new Canons will take place at to-morrow morning's service they to be the preachers of the day, the former in the morning and the latter in the evening.

The Evangelists.
Gower Street Church was filled last evening, and those who went were not disappointed. Mrs. Demarest was at her very best, and had certainly chosen an appropriate topic for the closing service of the first week of the campaign.
"No man can serve two masters." These were God's words, and God's words are indisputable. There were two masters, one at the end of each of two roads, the narrow and the broad. One road we must take for there is no third, no neutral one. To refuse the narrow road was to take the broad one, for there was to be no compromise with sin; God had said: "Ye cannot serve God and mammon."
In her wonderful eloquence, Mrs. Demarest held the huge congregation completely at her disposal. One could have heard a pin drop as she related those narratives of her personal experience which are so impressive. Nothing short of a verbatim report could do justice to her effort last evening. We can only say that 'twas good to be there.
Evangelist Demarest will open the second week of her campaign here with an address to men only in the Methodist College Hall to-morrow afternoon at 8 o'clock, and we predict a great gathering. Then there will be a mass meeting in Gower Street Church at 8.15, to be addressed by Mrs. Demarest. So as to be in a position to accommodate the large congregation expected, the regular 6.30 service at Gower Street Church has been dispensed with. This will keep strictly within the limits prescribed by the Health Authorities.

Wedding Bells.
On Sunday, January 5th, after a hearty luncheon and an enjoyable afternoon spent at the home of the bride's parents, Miss Clara Frances Tapper was married to Mr. Richard Thorne, at 5 p.m., by the Rev. J. J. Ashley, at the Presbytery, Torbay. The bride looked lovely in a pale blue Jap silk ornamented with chiffon, with bridal veil and wreath of orange blossoms. The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss Bessie A. Tapper, and Miss Clara Martin, cousin of the groom, who were attired in blue georgette crepe with hats to match, while the groom was supported by his cousin, Mr. Gus Ryan. After the ceremony the happy couple drove to their future home where a reception was held and a very enjoyable evening spent. The bride was the recipient of many useful presents, including a substantial cheque from her father. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Thorne many years of wedded bliss.—Com.

Foch, Warrior and Christian.
Lord Coleridge claimed at a meeting in London that Marshal Foch had risen above the standard of almost all former conquering captains.
He had the Germans in the hollow of his hand, and he could anticipate such a victory, such a surrender, as would put Sedan and Waterloo in the shadow. But he resisted the temptation, because it would mean the sacrifice of more innocent lives. This stamped him not only as a great warrior, but as a great Christian man.
The meanest thing in the whole war was the German abandonment of their own Kaiser.

"Tipperusalem."
"It was Thackeray, we think, who invented the name 'Tipperusalem,'" says the Irish Times. "No doubt, he was tickled by the incongruous association of an Irish provincial town with one of the most famous cities of the Orient. To-day, however, the incongruity has vanished. Tipperary has gained more than one sort of renown in the same war which has delivered Jerusalem. Irishmen have borne a great and gallant part in the last Crusade."

"Cow Path" Fracas.
A rather unusual row took place on the Cow Path (sometimes known as New Gower St.) last evening, the usual policeman putting in an appearance a minute after the row had ended. The beginning of the trouble was in a shop at the bottom of Casey St. (a "regular" spot, well beloved by the pugilistically inclined), when a man used some insulting words to a lady. A big soldier, being of the stuff of which heroes are made, could not stand this, and sent in such a forceful blow that the insulter was driven through the door into the street. The disciple of Mars followed quickly, he, in turn, being closely followed by a friend of the first man. Rushing through the door, this avenger of his friend's dignity bawled, "Where is he?—let me at 'im," and the afore-said friend, wiping the crimson from his eyes, joined with him and for a space the onlookers thought it was good-bye for the soldier. But not so, for, with a bellow of rage and anticipation, he sprang at his opponent, grabbed each by his hair, and knocked their heads together with such force that they had a clear view of more stars and other heavenly bodies than would have delighted the heart of old Gallio, he threw them down, got in a few reminders, and was soon afterwards celebrating his victory with many admirers of his prowess.

Took Fright.
Yesterday afternoon on Duckworth Street, while the driver left his horse outside to pay a visit to a shop, an approaching street car frightened the animal somewhat so that it immediately started to make headway. Quite a Storm.
For a short while this morning quite a snow storm raged, and although the weather was not so very cold, yet it was indication of the fact that winter is indeed upon us, and that storms are the rule of the day. Probably it was but the tail of the blizzard which raged so furiously yesterday on the West Coast.

A Sunday Experiment.
Erskine Presbyterian church, Montreal on January 12 is to inaugurate Sunday afternoon service instead of the familiar service commencing at 7 p.m. The change is due to a falling-off in attendance at the Sunday evening worship, a tendency which has been noted in some other Protestant churches of late years. "The explanation in the case of Erskine church," says the Montreal Gazette, "is that many of the worshippers live too far away from church to take the trouble to come out at night. That may be one of the causes of the diminishing evening congregations. It is also a fact that the class of young fellows who have been in the habit of escorting their girl friends to evening service has been changing its programme of late. These young people may be seen now going to the vaudeville and moving picture entertainments during the theatrical season, while in summer the parks attract those who do not have automobiles at their disposal. The Sunday night at Church is being abandoned by them, and it seems unlikely that this class will take to worshipping on Sunday afternoon. Those other persons who find it a hardship to make the journey to church for 7 o'clock service may find an excuse for not attending at 4.30 in the afternoon. That is pretty near the closing hour of moving service, and it is as easy to idle at home or take the air in the afternoon as evening. Erskine Church's experiment will be watched with keen interest by a considerable section of the public."
