Employment Committee

FORMULATE RULES.

At a recent meeting of the Committee on Unemployment, the work thus far was reviewed, and the following rules were formulated:

1. That no more than one from any home be employed, except under circumstances of very large families, when the Employment Officer shall have the right to employ an additional one.

2. That part time, say four days weekly, be given to married men, who have no dependents other than wife.

3. That part time, say three days weekly be given to single men, boarders.

4. Any person who secures employment by giving false information to the Employment Officer, shall be dismissed from the information given, is proven to be untrue. If any serious grievance is thought to exist by the men the Committee will consider same when submitted to them in writing.

5. The Committee ask for the co-operation of those needing employment and all citizens whilst this work is in progress, and hope before many weeks the necessity for such special work will have passed.

Obituary.

MATTHEW KIELEY.

By mail received recently by friends in the city, the news of the death of Mr. Matthew Kieley, son of Mary and the late James Kieley, H.M.C., was received. The deceased was ailing for a short while only and his passing came as a great blow to his widowed mother, "Mattie," as he was familiarly called by his many friends, was born in St. John's East, and was educated at St. Patrick's Hall. After leaving school he entered the employ of Jas. Baird's grocery store, and severing his connection there he has since resided in Roxbury, Mass., where up to the time of his early passing, he held a lucrative position with the Hood Rubber Co. His wife, (nee Sears) predeceased him some years ago. To the sorrowing mother and only child the Telegram and writer expresses the deepest sympathy.—Com.

MARTHA BLANDFORD.

At Spaniard's Bay, on Tuesday morning, February 28th, there passed to the Great Beyond, after a long and painful illness, Martha Blandford, aged 64 years, beloved wife of Capt. Joseph Blandford. She leaves to mourn their sad loss a husband, two sons: Capt. Llewellyn, of this city, and Samuel, now at sea; three daughters, Mrs. A. Browne, Mrs. Fred Hume, both residing at Boston, and Maud at home. Mrs. Blandford was a Miss Bannister, of Port Rexton, where four brothers and a sister still reside, also one sister at Montreal, as well as a large circle of friends. To the sorrowing family, relatives and friends the writer and the Telegram extends their sympathy. Boston and Montreal papers please copy.—Com.

Eddie McGinley Goes Over With a Bang.

The vaudeville sketch acted by Eddie McGinley at the Crescent last night, went over with a bang. The various items were well selected and well received by the audience. Eddie's opening number was a comic song, entitled, "That's How I Believe in You," and was followed by a series of jokes, skits and funny stories. His dramatic recitation "The Slacker" was exceptionally well rendered and clearly showed that Eddie is capable of interpreting drama as well as comedy. He gave also a humorous recitation, entitled "Love in the Hallway." As a closing number he sang a famous "rag" that is very popular in New York musical comedy at present, and which scored an initial hit with local patrons at the Crescent last evening. This well-balanced show will be repeated to-day.

The Housing Problem Again.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I would like to make a few remarks through the columns of your widely circulated paper re the housing problem of the city at present, which is very acute. There is at least one phase of the subject which needs attention. It is the number of houses unfit for habitation. Imagine a family of 7 or 8 living in one room, with two other rooms in the house unfit to go into, owing to rain pouring in when the weather is mild and snow drifting in when the weather changes. All the family is compelled to eat, sleep and wash in this one room. Nowadays if a man beats his child he is convicted and punished, but it seems not to matter how many lives a landlord sacrifices. I have a summary of the British laws before me and I am trying to distinguish the difference between the man who ill-used his child, who became ill from exposure, and the man or woman who lets a house knowing it is unfit for habitation, one in which children go to bed at night and get up in the morning with a wet shirt. I cannot find any difference in the offence according to law. Mr. Editor, the law regarding landlords is not carried out because people are too slow or too quiet to bring it to the attention of the authorities. According to the Working Classes Act, 1890, the implied conditions that all houses at the commencement of holding must in all respects be reasonably fit for human habitation. 53-54 Vict., C. 70 to 75, also 8th edition 7 C. 44, 14-15. This is the British law.

The necessity of an organization of rentpayers is rampant and the time is ripe. I may say that before the end of 1922 it will be well under way. The landlord and landlady have gone to the extreme. They charge enormous rents and they let everything without regard to its being fit for habitation or not. We are as bad as the people in Russia where they are living in huts. We profess to be civilized and Christianized, but when a man or woman lets a house that is unfit for human occupancy, he or she is open to suit at law under the Tenant's Act. It is time now for the rentpayers to take a hand and wake up these people. The law is on the Statute Book and there are officers to carry it out, and it is our duty to see that it is carried out. It is also our duty to see that right prevails over might. All we want is a house fit to live in and a reasonable rent. We don't want extremes either on one side or the other. Thanking you for space,

Yours truly,
RIGHT OVER MIGHT.
