CHANGE THE PUMPS AT SPRINGBANK

Water Commissioners Decide to Install Electricity at the Pumping Station.

COST WILL BE $32,000

Including the Transmission Line From the City—Steam Pumps Now in Use Are To Be Sold.

At the meeting of the water commissioners yesterday, Engineer Glaubitz, consulting engineer, read his report regarding Springbank pumping station. He recommended that the Kelly steam pumps now in use be discarded, and that in their stead electric pumps be installed.

The cost of the installation, without the transmission line, would be $22,000, and the saving effected would easily be $4,000 per annum. He advised also that the hydraulic pumps be retained as a stand-by service, but suggested that they be properly repaired.

The committee decided to instruct Mr. Glaubitz to prepare plans and specifications and call for tenders for the work. The Kelly pumps will be offered for sale.

"This will give you an up-to-date plant, capable of taking care of your water supply for years," said Mr. Glaubitz.

Transmission Line.
The cost of the transmission line from the Horton street plant to Springbank was estimated at $10,000. It was decided to do this work by day labor.

Engineer Roberts was advised to purchase from 80 to 100 poles to string the lines. There are sufficient on hand to do the rest. Mr. Roberts will also lay out the line at once. The hydro-electric commission will be asked to string the high-tension wire.

The commissioners are hopeful that they will bring the cost to less than $10,000.

The bond of the Canadian General Electric was not satisfactory to City Solicitor Meredith, and it was sent back to the company.

Underground Work.
A communication from the Dominion Government asked information regarding the underground work. They wanted to know whether or not it was to be done as a local improvement, or general tax.

Engineer Roberts will give them all the information required. Mr. Frank Dark, power solicitor, was instructed to go to Toronto on Friday and Saturday to confer with the hydro-electric engineers regarding the price of power to consumers.

Those present were Commissioner A. T. McMahon (chairman), Commissioners Phil Pocock, Fred J. Darch, Wm. Wyatt, Mayor Beattie, Engineer Roberts, Frank R. Dark and Secretary Ellwood.

CITY HALL TOO SMALL FOR USES OF LONDON

Building Erected About 1855 Has at Last Become Out of Date.

The overcrowding of the city hall was very apparent yesterday at the meeting of the water commissioners, when an effort was made to find room for Mr. Frank Dark, the newly-appointed power solicitor.

At the present time there is not a vacant office, and the prospects for more room do not appear bright.

Commissioner Pocock urged the commissioners to take this matter up without delay, and either secure new quarters or make alterations in the city hall.

Secretary Ellwood stated that it was impossible for their department to handle any more business under present conditions. They were fearfully cramped for room at the present time, and it would be impossible to do the work as at present situated.

Short of Space.
Engineer Roberts pointed out that there was no room in his office. They were crowded now, and had not sufficient room to do any work with satisfaction.

Mayor Beattie informed the committee that the publicity agent had taken up the last committee room, and there was nothing left.

"We must deal with this question at once," declared Mr. Pocock. "We will either have to remodel the city hall or else rent a new building."

Many suggestions were made. One was to close up the auditorium and move the assessment department upstairs. City Engineer Graydon and his staff would occupy the assessment offices, and the city treasurer and commissioners' officials would occupy all the space left. It was thought better to have the offices open from the arcade, leaving the front hall on Richmond street for a display window.

"We will need a display window to show off our goods," said Mr. Dark. "Are we going into the fixture business, too?" asked Mayor Beattie. "I think so," answered Mr. Dark. "We will have to demonstrate the myriad uses to which electricity can be put, to boom the sale of power."

LEADER BORDEN STARTS HIS TOUR

Good Attendance at Conservative Picnic at Campellford.

ATTACKS GOVERNMENT

Talks of Collapse of the Quebec Bridge and Claims Government Was To Blame.

Campellford, Ont., June 14.—A special to the Toronto Star says: This is the day of R. L. Borden's new lieutenant, ex-Judge Doherty, Montreal. The Borden tour reached here from Peterboro this morning. It slept at Peterboro, and this was its first meeting place. There was a great picnic here this afternoon, at which the various members of Mr. Borden's party spoke. In itself this tour is very modest, very unassuming, just like Mr. R. L. Borden himself.

In its reception, it is like a circus. Half of Campellford hung out the second-story windows this morning to watch the procession of carriages bearing the Conservative leader and his supporters to the best hotel, while the other half followed from the station, where it had cheered the arrival of Mr. Borden, Hon. Mr. Hanna and ex-Judge Doherty, the new lieutenant. The welcoming party was attended by a full complement of unmuzzled dogs, who muzzled the shins of the Provincial Secretary, blissfully unaware of what a rare opportunity they had then and there to destroy the promulgator of the dog-muzzling order. But being in a fine, large, Conservative place, where he was intended to do nothing more serious than smoke, the Provincial Secretary overlooked the naked jaws of the dogs, mostly hounds, and was quickly absorbed in being a jolly good fellow, particularly to a group of laughing ladies standing in front of his hotel.

Cheers for Borden.
But this is the day of the new lieutenant, Doherty. The local Conservative Association carefully separated the members of Mr. Borden's party and put one in each carriage, so as to make a better display. Mr. Doherty came in the third carriage behind Mr. Hanna. When he arrived at the hotel the cheers for Mr. Borden had already died on the hot summer air. He slipped quietly out of the carriage, pushed quickly through the crowd, and ten minutes afterward was found standing, half-hidden behind a door-jamb, watching Mr. Borden on the sidewalk, shaking hands. Mr. Hanna was already telling stories to some bemused school girls, who blushed with the honors. Mr. J. S. Carstairs, the Dominion Conservative organizer, was already busy shaking hands with a group of local stalwarts. The newspaper reporters had already faded away to the telegraph offices, but there in the shadow of the quiet new lieutenant, the leader of his majesty's loyal Opposition at Ottawa stood unobserved, observing.

"This is the first time I was ever on a tour," he remarked, as he calculated the remaining length of his cigar. "I feel a trifle new, all my campaigning has been done in my own riding. St. Ann's, in Montreal. I really don't believe I was ever on a tour before."

"By the way," he continued presently, "I wonder, now I wonder, about how long a fellow is expected to speak. Have you any idea?"

What Doherty Stands For.
The possibility that Sir Wilfrid Laurier may yet precipitate a general election on Canada and take the Conservatives unaware is alleged to be the reason for Mr. Borden's tour. It may be and it may not be. It is certain, however, that this is being used as an opportunity to introduce Mr. Doherty to the several electorates where Mr. Borden is to speak, while Mr. Geo. E. Foster moves, a restless shadow, in the background. Doherty believes in home rule for Ireland, and Mr. F. D. Monk, the much-misunderstood member for Hochelaga, Montreal. Doherty is getting into the latter half of his prime, and while Foster is of a keen, clever, penetrating, and aggressive personality, Doherty is quiet, with a quiet sense of humor and a faculty for expressing things clearly and accurately.

Foster is worn out. This tour is the introduction of his successor to Ontario.

"It was very hot. The green fields smiled into the face of the sky, and the sky looked down with a clear eye, holding the fields in the circle of its arms. But in a severe grove beside the headless River Trent, between two and three thousand people were listening to Mr. R. L. Borden laying bare what he alleges to be the shame of the Laurier Government."

His theme today was the Quebec bridge disaster.

The Quebec Bridge.
"The undertaking of this great work," he said, "was promoted by a company consisting of certain estimable gentlemen in Quebec engaged in professional and mercantile pursuits, few if any of whom had any knowledge or experience which would inspire any confidence in their management of so tremendous an enterprise."

"At a certain stage," he continued, "the Government weakly receded from what had been its wise determination to secure further expert advice. And it appears, from the report of the royal commission of investigation, that had the Government not been so weak and foolish as to listen to the objections of one of the engineers, the fundamental defects in the plans of the bridge would have been discovered and more than six millions would have been saved the country."

"The Government has now taken over the undertaking. It has lost $6,000,000 and treated the Quebec Bridge Company most generously. It finds now that it cannot recover its $6,000,000 loss because it had been dealing with a small bridge company instead of the great company bearing the same name, the Phoenix Bridge Company."

No Supervision.
"It provided, first," he said, "a subsidy of $1,000,000; then in guaranteed bonds for nearly $7,000,000. Yet the bridge company, with its paid-up stock of only $65,000, was permitted to manage this work without supervision or control. The plans of the greatest bridge in the world were left to the uncontrolled discretion of the company and its engineer for fear of wounding the feelings of Mr. Cooper, the consulting engineer to the Quebec Bridge Company."

"Six million dollars of the people's money lies at the bottom of the St. Lawrence. The minister of railways and canals has intimated in parliament that the cost of completion will amount to not less than eleven million dollars. Recent press reports to which some importance may be attached indicate that the amount will be nearly fourteen million dollars. The total cost, if this estimate is well founded, will thus amount to no less than twenty million dollars. The present Government has established many brilliant records of incompetency and negligence, but they are all thrown into the shade by its record in connection with the construction of this bridge."

Hon. Mr. Hanna and Mr. Doherty then spoke.

Mr. Doherty charged the Government with blocking investigations into public expenditures, while Hanna's speech was one long eulogy of the Whitney administration.

AERO MAIL ROUTE BILL INTRODUCED

U. S. Representative Wants Postmaster-General to Look the Matter Up.

Washington, June 15.—After reading the newspaper accounts of Hamilton's flight from New York to Philadelphia and return, Representative Sheppard, of Texas, became so enthusiastic that he introduced a bill directing the postmaster-general to set busy and figure out a practicable method of utilizing aeroplanes in carrying the mails.

Mr. Sheppard is perfectly willing to propositions, although his is pushed pretty close for this honor by Representative Coudrey, of Missouri. Mr. Coudrey is the author of the celebrated measure proposing to fine any merchant in Washington who does not keep within two minutes of the correct time. Mr. Soudrey is also the author of the anti-hatpin bill and the bill to prohibit street car conductors from spitting in their hands.
