

LEAGUE IS LAUDED AS INDISPENSABLE

President of Interparliamentary Union Points Out Need of Arbitration.

Associated Press Despatch.
Washington, Oct. 1.—Members of the inter-parliamentary union from 38 nations met today in the house of representatives, east side of the conference, and immediately launched a general offensive against existing difficulties in world and governmental affairs.

Speakers representing the British, German, Swedish, French and other groups introduced almost within the hour of conference opening sharply worded statements referring to the league of nations, armaments, the security pact, war, peace, and many associated subjects.

Secretary Kellogg's reference, contained in his address, was one of the forces which he believed created discontent in nations and threatened established governments and peace, was taken up almost without exception by subsequent speakers, whose elaboration of that thought became virtually the keynote to the conference debates which followed.

Baron Theodor Adelswärd of Sweden, president of the union council, in acknowledging the welcome declared that the league of nations was "indispensable in the world today"; that non-members might stay outside but could not keep themselves outside of its activities.

Without naming the United States as a non-member, the baron declared vigorously in his efforts to bring the peoples wish it to be, adding that "if the peoples want peace and justice, if they condemn war and aggression, we shall have a universal league of nations."

Hope of the German group that President Coolidge would go forward vigorously in his efforts to bring about further reduction of armaments was voiced by the president of the Reichstag. He pointed out needs of a security pact in Europe.

Sir Robert Home, former chancellor of the British Exchequer, declared the miseries of war had not ceased with the firing of guns.

EDWARD HARRIS DIES AT EDDON HOUSE

Fisheries, How and Why Destroyed Canada, the Making of a Nation, and numerous reviews and pamphlets. Up until a few years before his death he contributed articles on national questions to many of the larger Canadian newspapers, regarded and held as an authority on economical conditions in the dominion.

In his early days, Edward Harris was a remarkable athlete. With a strong physique, which withstood age and remained to give him a muscular and stalwart appearance until the last, he joined in every style of sport, including cricket, tennis, and fishing. His intimate knowledge of the latter sport was responsible for his comprehensive articles on the Great Lakes and commercial fisheries.

He was responsible for the foundation of many London institutions, his capable executive ability gaining him positions on the directorate of companies both in London and Toronto. He was associated with the London Life Assurance Company and the Ontario Loan and Debenture Company.

Eddon House tomorrow afternoon. It will be strictly private. Interment is to be made in Woodland cemetery.

George Harris, father of Miss Amelia Harris and Ronald Harris, who live at Eddon House, an older brother, and one who gained equal distinction as a true Canadian citizen, died two years ago.

TEACHERS TALK RURAL PROBLEMS

East Middlesex Association Opens Session in City This Morning.

The problems and opportunities of the rural teacher were the chief topics of discussion at the morning session of the East Middlesex teachers' association at the courthouse this morning.

The subject was introduced by Miss Ethel Hosking, who deprecated the difficulty country teachers had in gaining access to the homes of their pupils. They might discuss the pupils' aptitudes and faults with the parents. Only through this method could a proper knowledge of the individual pupil be obtained.

"I have never been invited to the home of one of my pupils except when several others were present to preclude the possibility of any private talk," said Miss Hosking.

"With deep seriousness the teacher must face the fact that she is second only to the mother in the life of the child. Her influence will eventually extend not only to the child, but it will affect the life of the community," said Miss Hosking.

"To persuade country people to spend more money on schools is our chief problem," said B. A. Rivers. "To the country school, music, art, music, art and literature, these things they will want to leave the farm. Such is not the case," declared Mr. Rivers.

The greater use of the Bible in the schools was advocated by F. Rosser. "Some religion, no matter what kind, is the great moral urge. We should advocate Bible study as developing it. We should not compel the children to memorize long passages, but we should undertake some sort of systematic study," B. E. Scott, the chairman, introduced the two new leaders, Mr. Pretty and Mr. Suter, who were heartily received.

Mr. Spearman, presented the diploma. Nominating committees were appointed by the various groups and an election will be held at the next meeting.

WARNINGS ISSUED ON VALVE SYSTEM

Sensational Testimony Is Advanced at Inquiry Into the Shenandoah Disaster.

Associated Press Despatch.

Lakehurst, N. J., Oct. 2.—In approving the gas valve system change in the airship Shenandoah, the bureau of aeronautics at Washington warned those on the ship that the new system was not a "fool-proof," as the original installation, and that extreme care should be taken in the operation of the ship.

This was disclosed today before the naval court of inquiry here by the reading into the record of the official correspondence that passed on the subject between Commander Zachary Lansdowne, captain of the ship, and the bureau of aeronautics.

Changes in the valve system first were suggested by Lansdowne as early as Sept. 16, 1924, but finally were not approved by the bureau until May 23, 1925, and then only with a warning as to the danger entailed.
