A Pensylvania farmer has noticed that bees are excellent weather indicators. Usuable on the approach of a storm, and will attack anyone appreaching their hives. An Ohio farmer once made the same remark re-garding his wife. He could tell, he said, the approach of a weather disturbance by the storm that invariably arose in his house. When the latter broke loose he would go out and close the barn doors add put things in ship-shape for a defensive battle with t

Engines of war are short-lived now-a-days. Three years ago, no praise was too high for the machine guns which had brought to a close the bombardment of the forts of Alexandris, by driving the gunners from the guns they were serving.
