The Big Trees of California. These are found only in Sierra range, and chiefly in the groups of Calaveras, Mariposa, Tuetumne and Tulare counties. They stand in solitary grandeur as the most gigantic specimens of vegetable life on the globe. These giants of the forest stand in the valleys nestled in this chain of mountains at an elevation of from four thousand to five thousand feet above the sea; and as no vegetable life exists in this range above nine thousand feet altitude, their tops are much below that range There are seven distinct groups of these mammoth trees-three in Mariposa county, two in Tulare and one each in Tuolumne and Calaveras counties. The group in the latter county was the first discovered and possesses among its numbers the tallest tree known in the State. To persons who have not visited the Pacific coast and seen the immense forests of California, Oregon, and Washington Territory, a description of these forests of the Sierras sounds like romance. To the lumbermen of the Baltic and Penobscot, who look upon a pine of eighty to one hundred feet high and three to six feet in diameter as a monster, a description of the "Big Tree Grove" of Calaveras county, some of the trees of which are four and thirty-five feet in length and one hundred and ten feet in circumference at the base, or more than thirty-three feet in diameter, must seem ridiculous. One of these monsters was cut down some years ago by boring with long augers, which occupied five men constantly for twenty-two days, equal to one hundred and ten days labour of one man; the stump levelled and planed off, being twenty-seven feet in diameter, has often been the scene of cotillion parties and festive gatherings not of children, but of full-grown, able-bodied California men and women. Another of these giants now fallen is hollow, forming a tunnel so large that parties have often ridden into it on horseback for seventy feet, turned the Heavy import duties, and in some cases pro-horse around and ridden out without dis- hibition in pork and its products, and live mounting. The top is broken off, and two horsemen can ride abreast through this tree for its entire length without stopping. These trees grow in a deep, rich soil; the wood is light, and dry, splitting freely, of a reddish colour, and is valuable for building purposes; it much resembles red cedar. The Calaveras grove is situated in Calaveras county, between the Stanislaus and Calaveras rivers, twenty miles east of Mokelumne Hill, and 4,760 feet above the sea-level. There are ninety-two of the "Big Tree" species in the group, ten of them are over thirty feet in diameter, and eighty-two of a diameter from fifteen to thirty feet ranging from two hundred and forty to three hundred and sixty-six feet in height. The Mariposa group, in Mari-posa county, is situated about thirty miles proud position as manufacturers and merposa county, is situated about thirty miles proud position as manufacturers and mersoutheast of the town of Mariposa. diameter. They extend over an area of about six thousand feet above the level of the sea. One of these giants now prostrate indicates a king of this group, being about thirty-four feet in diameter, and three hundred and twenty-five feet in height. There are three other groups in this county, near the Mariposa grove; one contains eighty-six and the other thirty-five mammoth trees, averaging about the diameters of those already described. Throughout Tuolumne county groups of the "Big Trees" are found, and still further south, in Tulare county, at an elevation of about miles northeast of the town of Visalia, scattered over a range of fifty miles in length, hundreds of these trees are found; and although the average height is not so great as those of Calaveras and Mariposa, some now prostrate are as great in girth as the largest in height, and one hundred and six feet in circumference; a portion of it has been burnt away; originally its girth is supposed to have heen about one hundred and twenty feet .--Not the least remarkable about these mountain monarchs is their age, ascertained by scientific observation to be in some cases from one thousand to three thousand years, and still there they stand in primeval majesty, defiant of sun, rain, frost, and storms, unencumbered by branches, erect, well proportioned. In their crowns of evergreen they look down from their acrial heights upon their offspring, young giants in the bud of a few hundred years of age, struggling for the mastery over the oak and sturdy pitch and sugar pine, soon to be dwarfed in comparison, as the young sequoia lifts his arms into the clouds.

Commercial linion.

The opinion of the tariff people of the United States is that the Canadian tariff will fail in compelling the United States to agree hear without honesty, and a purse without to a reciprocity treaty. Reciprocity with the United States of the kind Canada wants is not the kind of reciprocity the United States wants. If there is to be reciprocity at all, Canada wants reciprocity in everything-in agriculture as well as manufactures; while, on the other hand, the United ing and depressing to a man than having to States is only willing to go half ways. But the great objection that our neighborus have to a reciprocity treaty is that it would open a back door by which English goods could be taken into the United States via Canada without paying any duty. What they would like to have, and what will probably come some day or other, is a commercial union between the two countries-the abolition of all the customs houses on both sides of the lines. Trade would be as free be-tween Canada and the United States as it is between Ontario and Quebec .- Toronto Tele-

The Rev. Mr. Faust.

The Rev. Mr. Faust, whose conversion to the Church we noticed on Saturday, was ordained eighteen years ago by Bishop Whittingham, of Washington, D.C., and in his letter, requesting to be deposed from the ministry of the Episcopal Church, he reminds the bishop that his study of theological questions, especially in connection with ecclering the study of the properties of the connection with ecclering the study of siastical history, places him in a position incompatible with a continuance in the ministry of the Protestant Episcopal Church. He therefore requests deposition according to the canonical provisions prescribed for that purpose.

MR. FAUST'S EXPLANATION.

Mr. Faust explains that the reason he sent the letter was that he was received into the Catholic Church in the chapel of Georgetown College on December 31, 1878. This fact is known to the Episcopal clergymen of the district and to the two Episcopal bishops of Maryland, and yet he had not been deposed from the Episcopal ministry which he had renounced. The canons of the Episcopal Church give her bishops the discretionary power not to act for a period of six months, but in his case he thought there was no cause for delay.

MR. FAUST'S LITERARY WORKS.

Mr. Faust is the author of a number of religious articles. Among those which have attracted the most notice are, an article in the Cotholic World for October, 1872, entitled "Gasezzi Verus, the See of St. Peter;" "Christian Art in the Catacombs," in the same mag-azine for December, 1872: "The See of Rome and Civil Allegiance," in the National Quarterly Review of New York for July, 1877, which was characterized by the New York Mail as the production of a Catholic. Mr. Faust has also been a frequent contributor to the American Church Review, the Southern Review and the International Review.

These wonderful Planos are the favorite instruments of every Prima Donna, every Singer, every Planist of renown, in fact every Musician of note. In their matchless tones, their extraordinary power and endurance, they have no equal. Read the following extracts from the leading musicians of the day:—

CENTENNIAL JUDGE, on Planos.—"The Weber Planos are undoubtedly the best in America, probably in the world, to-day. The Weber Grand was the most wonderful Plano I ever touched or leard."

HER MAJESTY'S OPERA CO.—"For purity and richness of tone, with greatest power and singing quality, we know of no Plano which equals them; certainly, for sustaining the voice, or cultivating it, the Weber is superior to any Plano known to us."

ITALIAN OPERA CO., NEW YORK.—"The tone of the Weber Planos is so pure and prolonged, and of such inexhaustible depth, that they sustain the voice in a wonderful degree. The action is elastic, they have great strength, and stand remarkably long in tune. We not only commend them in the highest degree, but think them the best Planos in the world."

THERESA CARRENO.—"My use of the Weber Planos, at over one hundred concerts, proves how highly I esteem them. They have a tone and touch which meets every requirement of the most exacting artists, and I am not surprised that every great musician pracers them."
