

various summits and meetings and I say, the Europeans exemplify that by their frequent meetings. We do that in the Commonwealth. And for Heaven's sakes, if some 35 to 40 nations from remote parts of the Pacific and Africa and elsewhere find it important to get together from time to time, I think it is high time that the three political leaders of the three countries of this North American continent consider doing the same thing. So, I think that is a superb idea, particularly because it's mine.
