

- (3) Code-sharing services by each designated airline of Canada involving transportation between the Points in Costa Rica shall be restricted to flights operated by airlines authorised by the aeronautical authorities of the Republic of Costa Rica to provide services between the Points in Costa Rica. All transportation between the Points in Costa Rica under the code of each designated airline of Canada shall only be available as part of an international journey.
- (4) The aeronautical authorities of the Republic of Costa Rica shall not withhold permission for code-sharing services identified in Note 6 paragraph (1)(a) by the designated airlines of Canada on the basis that the airlines operating the aircraft do not have the right from Costa Rica to carry traffic under the codes of the airlines designated by Canada.
- (5) All participants in such code-sharing arrangements shall ensure that passengers are fully informed of the identity of the operator and the mode of transportation for each segment of the journey.

7. The Contracting Parties permit each designated airline of Canada, at any points on the specified route and at its option, to transfer traffic between its own aircraft without any limitation as to type, size or number of aircraft, provided that, in the outbound direction, the transportation beyond such points is a continuation of the transportation from Canada and, in the inbound direction, the transportation to Canada is a continuation of the transportation from beyond such points and provided that all passenger and combination flights involved in the transfer originate or terminate in Canada. For the purpose of code-sharing services, airlines shall be permitted to transfer traffic between aircraft without limitation.
