Edward The Peacemaker

O-MORROW is Khaki Day, but---especially significant --- to-morrow is also the anniversary of the birth of the late beloved King Edward.

To-morrow Toronto gives of its means to help recruiting along, and so, by hastening the dawn of a lasting peace, pays tribute to the memory of Edward the Peacemaker.

The need is very great. Government money available for this purpose is insufficient with the extraordinary efforts necessary to secure the number of recruits which will satisfy Toronto in her determination to keep the leadership.

The work must languish—Toronto must relinquish her proud place as the leading recruiting centre—if money is not forthcoming at once for daily necessary

To-morrow—KHAKI DAY—Toronto will say in no uncertain terms how much she values her splendid leadership. To-morrow she will send the news of her tribute to the late King Edward ringing across the country.

To-morrow she will crown the magnificent efforts of the city regiments and the recruiting depot-will give her "God-speed" to them, and put behind them the power of a great city resolved that the coming of peace shall not be delayed one hour for lack of men.

You will be tagged To-morrow---Tuesday---

Immediate Solution to Transportation Problem is Demanded.

A HEATED DISCUSSION

North Toronto Ratepayers Will Act in Unison With Central Citizens.

"Moved by W. M. Smith, seconded by D. D. Reid, and resolved, that this meeting of the North Toronto Ratepayers' Association heartily endorse the proposition of the Central Citizens' Association to wait at once on the beard of control of the pastor, Rev. Edward McCabe. wait at once on the board of control and demand that some immediate solution of the lack of transportation on Yonge street from Farnham avenue to Price street be provided, and that this association act in unison with the other associations and

The foregoing, submitted at the meeting of the North Toronto Ratepayers' Association, held in Eglinton Hall on Saturday night, and later almost unanimous ly adopted, was the prelude to one of the liveliest gatherings ever held in the historic old building. A. C. Thorne, the newly elected president, was in the chair. The transportation problem, always one of the most vital to the north end citizens, has latterly become the big outstanding question to which all others are subservient, while the long delay in the formulation of any policy by the city has incensed the majority of the citizens. Saturday night's meeting was outspoken and deeply in earnest.

Specific Reforms.

While the resolution as outlined was strongly supported by the mover and seconder, a number of those present urged that the demand for more specific reforms should be incorporated in the resolution, and around this point was centred the liveliest discussion. President McIntosh of the Central Citizens' Association, who was present by invitation of ation, who was present by invitation of the local executive, in a vigorous attack on the city authorities declared that the Proposal of the Toronto Street Railway, s submitted by their solicitor before the Ontario Railway Board, asking for permission to construct and operate tracks from Price street to Farnham avenue yould not prejudice the city's action in the appeal.

Frank Howe strongly opposed the view taken by Mr. McIntosh as inimical to the best interests of the city.
"Before I would concede anything to Before I would concede anything to the Toronto Street Railway which might hiure our case, I would crawl up that hill on my hands and knees," declared Mr. Howe. He further stated that the board of control and city council, while they had not taken the people into their confidence, had doubtless good reasons for their action in opposing the Toronto Street Railway and investment the correct Street Railway and in entering the appeal. It was up to the city to propose an immediate remedy, not the private citizens.

Strong Exception. Strong exception.

Strong exception was taken to the resolution by E. V. Donnelley, who urged that the association demand that either the city or the Toronto Street Railway Co. be asked to proceed with the building the "missing link." In this he was supported by S. J. Douglas, but a resolution submitted to this offect we have submitted to this effect was not car-
