ADDENDA.

SINCE the foregoing was written, another of the would-be " wise men of the East," a veritable Daniel, has appeared in the Halifax Presbyterian Witness, with a long and lachryma-tory letter, on this very subject. This individual has the presumption to assert, that, to be a "total abstainer," is on a par with being a Christian. If total abstinence from spirituous liquors will constitute a claim to the name "Christian," and " Servant of Christ," as he (Daniel) would fain call himself, then some of the wildest " teetotal " savages in the South Sea Islands, and in Patagonia, may rub shoulders, and claim alliance with him and the other teetotal magnates of New Glasgow, — savages, who, if they had a hold of J. B.
Gough, or of "Rory," or of " Daniel," would eat their flesh, suck their blood, and crunch their bones ! As the following letter to the "Halifax Express" disposes so effectually of this pseudo-religious scribbler, we leave him to his fate.

SIR, — A person subscribing his name " Daniel McDonald," and dating from New Glasgow, has a long letter in the Presbyterian Witness, in which he attacks, with consummate virulence, the managers of the late New Glasgow Scottish Gathering, for their hospitality to guests and strangers on that occasion.

After describing the Gathering as the largest that ever took place in the county of Pictou, and that, " the sobriety and decorum which characterised the people, elicited universal approbation," MacDonald starts off in a tissue of abuse against the managers for having refreshments in the shape of wine, porter, and ale in a barn near the field, for the use of themselves, competitors, judges, and strangers,(connected with similar societies from a distance,) and for having entertained their friends from a distance at the American Hotel, when the business of the day was over.
The account which this person, MacDonald, gives of the supper in the American Hotel, is a gross tissue of falsehoods from beginning to end. I was at the Hotel on the evening in question, and
