"I think it would be appropriate to call this 'armistice day.' The great conflict between private interests and public ownership which has been waging since 1902 came to an end today, with the people as the victors: that is, as far as public utilities are concerned. It is truly a day for rejoicing."

Thus spoke Sir Adam Beck last night at a dinner given in his honor at the King Edward Hotel by members of the city council to give yent to their

"This statement is absolutely fintrue. Not a single Toronto Orangeman has followed him anywhere. They did not need to do so. Everywhere he has spoken the general public could be depended upon to give him what he deserved. His purpose is, of course, to try and convince the public that he is the victim of persecution. Let anyone read the press accounts of his meetings—and the press is none too friendly to the Orange Order—and it will be perfectly clear that the opposition he has had to meet has come from all loyal citizens. In Winnlegs it was a minister who chacked him in his remarks before the Rotary Club. In Ottawa it was a general citizens committee that tried to prevent him talking treason. In Fredericton and Moncton it was returned some ford.
