

SOUSA MEETS FRIENDS OF OLD DAYS IN CITY

Recalls Visit Here and Speaks of Saint John Progress

John Philip Sousa who arrived in his special train with his band this morning spent most of the forenoon at the Admiral Beatty meeting old friends and officials. Among those who called were Mrs. H. Fielding Rankine and daughter on behalf of their uncle, the late Stanley Lawton, who had been a member of Mr. Sousa's band for some years. Mr. Sousa called at the home of Mr. Rankine to meet the older folks, who were unable to get out.

DISCUSSES BANDS

Discussing bands in a familiarly comparative way Mr. Sousa said that the great British household bands of the army were considerably fine and contained many master musicians but they look upon him as an outlaw in some respects. The liberties his band took with rhythm, tempo and the more popular qualities of late day works amounted to the next thing to a scandal with the staid British bandmaster and the bandmasters of Europe generally. However, he has played five engagements in London City and Sousa's best friends and cronies were the British bandmasters, of whom Mr. Sousa is very fond. The British bandman is always a thoroughly trained musician and inherently artistic.

In company with Manager Goding of the theatre and Bruce Holder of the Imperial orchestra, Mr. Sousa, Miss Moody and Miss Bamberg, motorcade about the city during the forenoon and saw the points of interest, which they especially requested to do. Mr. Sousa displayed a retentive memory in checking up familiar places and said he found the Loyalist City had made permanent strides forward, particularly in its basic, civic utilities such as streets, buildings, traction service, electric light, etc. He also found Saint John cropping up in the news of the world quite frequently and he took some satisfaction from the thought that he had helped place it on his itinerary over a quarter of a century ago.

Fine Map Now At Board of Trade

One of the latest acquisitions of the local Board of Trade is a very fine wall map of the West Indies, which is very interesting and very helpful in view of the plans for increased trade between Canada and West Indies territory. The map is one issued by the West Indies committee in London and is drawn on the scale of 63 miles to one inch but gives enlarged sections showing the Panama Canal, Jamaica, Trinidad and Tobago, the Windward Islands, the Leeward Islands and Barbados each separately.

There is also an inset map showing the trade routes from Canada and the United States to the West Indies and British Guiana, and a graphic table showing the area and the population of each of the islands in the British West Indies. Special lines show cables, wireless stations, coaling stations, and other facilities. There is only one other map of this kind in Saint John and that is owned by one of the steamship companies.

True Politeness

(Goldsmith, in "The Citizen of the World.")

Ceremonies are different in every country, but true politeness is everywhere the same. Ceremonies, which take up so much of our attention, are only artificial things which ignorance assumes in order to imitate politeness which is the result of good sense and good nature. A person possessed of those qualities, though he had never been a courtier, is truly agreeable; and, if without them, will continue a clown, though he had been all his life a gentleman usher.

Said the son: "What'll I have, you missed the train?"
