OBJECT TO USE OF NEUTRAL WORKERS

German Women Protest Against
Employment of Dutchmen to Free Their Own Men for the Firing Line

London, July 31.—Women at Essen are determined that no more neutral workers shall be employed at Krupp's during the war because for every neutral workman sent to work there is a German who comes to the fighting front. The Amsterdam correspondent of the Daily Express, who makes this statement, says he learned the facts from Dutch workmen who have just returned from Essen. When the last batch of Dutchmen arrived at Essen stones were thrown at them by thousands of women who denounced them as "neutral job stealers." The women are resolved to give a similar reception in the future to all Dutchmen. The police force is powerless because of the great reduction in its strength.

TANKER ATTACKED IN AMERICAN WATERS

Submarine Fired 200 Shots at Fleeing Steamer, Which Sent Back 40 Shells, Without Effect

An Atlantic Port, July 30.—A tanker arrived here tonight after a five hour fight with a German submarine 400 miles off the New Jersey coast, late Friday last. The ship's cook was wounded in one leg by shrapnel during the engagement. The U-boat, sighted when eight miles away, tried to head off the tanker from the land and then opened fire, discharging about 200 shots. The tanker replied with forty shots from her four-inch guns as she raced away, sending out S. O. S. calls by wireless. The submarine was finally outdistanced.

German sailors interned in the Southern States, are being utilized in agricultural work.

War Garden Bulletin Issued by Canada Food Board

"Thanks old chap. You certainly helped out a whole lot. My garden wouldn't look like anything if it hadn't been for your shining countenance. But now—well, I'm rather proud of it. Just look at those peas and beans! See my beets and carrots! It looks as if we are going to have a fine cellar-full of preserves and roots this year. "You have done your bit, old Sol. "I will have to keep my hoe busy for a while yet, and then it is up to the women folks and the canning industry of the kitchen."

Food Board Flashes For Feminine Folk

Whose fault is it that housekeepers cannot always get the varieties of fish that the Food Board is advocating? Take the case of pollock, for instance. We don't handle pollock. The following is an incident that occurred recently in Fredericton, N. B., when a woman who happens to be interested in the food question asked her dealer if he handled pollock. "We don't handle pollock!" "I would take one a week and ten of my friends would do likewise." "We don't handle pollock!" "Are they often caught here?" "Yes." "If a demand was started for them would you get the fishermen to bring them to you?" "We don't handle pollock." "Dr. Kierstead of the Food Board wants you to have a supply of the cheaper fish in this market." "Yes, I know." "Well, what are you going to do about it?" "We don't handle pollock." Then she gave up.

More and more are we realizing on this continent that the efforts being made by the women of Europe to cope with the conditions in which they find themselves are little short of superhuman. Take the case of Pauline Benediti, an Italian widow whose five sons are under arms. She has just received an award from the Agricultural Department of Italy. She was left with three grand nephews and ten nephews and nieces ranging from one to twelve years of age. Not only did she provide for this large family but in addition she cultivated a farm of ten acres and raised fifteen head of cattle without any outside aid. Surely she was as deserving of decoration as the Red Cross nurses whose bravery and devotion to duty have placed them on the country's honor list.

Canadian Editors' War Impressions

Particularly Admire Self-Sacrifice of French Women in National Work

London, July 31.—The Paris Petit Journal publishes the following account of the visit of the Canadian press party: "Last evening a number of automobiles, covered with dust, arrived at the Hotel Meurice. Men emerged, powdered with the dust of France. They were our confreres, the Canadian press. We interviewed them mercilessly, and found them, needless to say, charming and fraternal. It was Monsieur Seward, a name so notably French, who was good enough to spare from his abstractions a few moments to record his impressions: "We have seen so many things they remain as yet a whirling kaleidoscope. We saw something of the wonderful support our own continent is bringing to the cause of the Allies by its superfluous troops. After an otherwise uneventful trip we reached London two weeks ago and passed over France after a series of receptions and visits. Ah, how the women of your country have given their all to national work. That is the impression one retains after visiting, for instance, the factory at Calais. They are of a courage most admirable! "When will the war end?" asked one

SOLDIER KILLED FORETOLD EVENT

"You will never see me again," wrote Private Joseph Shaw, of Campbellton, on the back of his photograph which was taken in Valcartier Camp before he left for overseas some time ago, and his words proved true for the young man was killed in action on April 2, of this year. Private Shaw was twenty-two years of age, and a native of Campbellton, where his parents, two brothers and one sister now reside. Mrs. Shaw has received a letter from Major J. A. Fortier, in command of the unit to which deceased was attached in which he states that Private Shaw was instantly killed by a shell.
