There are a number of items which I could not be expected to estimate upon, as, for instance, the second pipe-drain, costs of arbitration, moving of Mackintosh's boathouse, etc., and there are a number of valuable assets belonging to the city, acquired in the construction of the worksuch as the derrick and rock-crusher, and drill, which can be fairly charged to this work and the bridge proportionately—not to mention the lumber taken from the cofferdam, which is worth quite $1,000.

Without taking credit for any portion of these, the total cost of the wall is only $2,490; while, if the work be credited with them, as it clearly should be, and the cost divided between the two undertakings, the cost of the wall to the city is only $76,150, or $12,000 and upwards below the estimate.

The city council held a long session last evening. Several matters of the most engrossing interest were under discussion. The subject which occupied the greatest attention was that introduced by Ald. Barnard's motion to double the sewer rentals in the city for the purpose
