HIS FIRST SERMON.

Rev. Mr. Parkinson preached his first sermon in St. Jude's church, Carleton on Sunday morning. Before the service he briefly addressed the congregation, stating that he was now entering upon the discharge of very important duties toward the congregation, which he intended to discharge faithfully. He would take as his guide and rule the Book of Common Prayer, which was prescribed by the church and was all that was requisite. He would look for the hearty and united support of the flock toward him as their parish priest. The reverend gentleman preached from Psalms lxvii. 14: I will go forth in the strength of the Lord God. He spoke strongly of the necessity of looking simply to the Lord for direction. It was absolutely necessary for all to realize that they were sinners in the sight of God. They could not be at a standstill in human life. It was needful therefore that they should do it in the strength of God and with His assistance to resist all temptations which made the other path appear the easier and more at-

BETEGUE, P. E. I., July 6.— The worst thunder storm for years passed over here on Sunday. Fortunately the lightning did no very serious damage in this section but two buildings in Summerside were struck, and at Kelly's Cross two men were killed instantly. Their names were Trainor and Monoghan.

While trying to catch a horse in a field, a son of Marcus Deacon of Freetown received a kick on the back of the head which shattered the skull, causing the brain to protrude.

The last shot, however, struck a prominent church in the heart of the dity, which was heavily stored with powder and ammunition, causing a tremendous explosion. The extent of the damage is not yet known.

When the warships ceased firing, and before Gen. Shafter had begun a land attack, a flag of truce was seen coming, from the city. The object of this was hot known at noon today when the correspondent of the Associated Press left the front.

LA BOURGOGNE DISASTER.

Capt. Smith Will Commence an Investigation

HALIFAX, July 11. Capt. Smith, R. N. R., Canadian wreck commis-sioner, will commence his investigation into the loss of Da Bourgogne at eleven o'clock tomorrow morning. Capt. Henderson of the ship Crom antyshire told me tonight that there was not the slightest doubt that the sailors of La Bourgogne had deserted the drowning passengers. Capt. Henderson's proof of this was that the first two boats of survivors that reached his ship were composed ex-clusively of French sailors. "Not even their stockings were wet," said and he added, "The passengers who were rescued later were all wet from head to foot." The sailors had got into the boats and kept their places there at all costs. Only in one other boat, three in all, survivors were recovered. There were five rafts with survivors. The statements taken by French Consul Francklin from some of the crew and one or two passen gers of the ill-fated steamship will be presented to the court, but it is very questionable whether Capt. Smith will receive them as evidence. ALL ARE DEAD.

MONCTON.

A Man Commits Suicide by Hanging Himself in a Woodshed.

MONCTON, July 11.—A man named Ezeklel Douthwright committed sui-cide this morning about 7 o'clock by hanging himself in a woodshed in the rear of his residence. Douthwright was a married man, about 44 years of age. He came here from Little River, Albert county, six or seven months ago, expecting to get permanent employment on the Intercolonial rall-way. He failed in this, but got temporary employment on a gravel train. He told his wife yesterday that he was going down town this morning to see when he was to get a permanent job, and left the house after break-fast, but instead of going down town appears to have gone directly to the woodshed and hanged himself. A short time after he had left the house Mrs. Douthwright sent her niece, who lived in the same house, to the who lived in the same house, to the shed for a dish in which to feed the hens. She was unable to get in, the door being fastened on the inside. Suspecting that something was wrong Mrs. Douthwright's brothers peered through the cracks and saw the body hanging by a rope from a beam. Two men passing by were notified, the door was broken in and the body cut down, but life was quite extinct. His feet were only about a foot from the floor, and it was evident that Douthwright, after taking off his coat and vest, had got on some boxes rear by, placed his head in the noose, which was carefully adjusted, the knot coming directly under the ear, and letting go, strangled to death. The neck was not broken. Mrs. Douthwright says her husband was of a sullen disposition and that he had been in particularly bad humor of a sulled disposition and that he had been in particularly bad humor for some time. He had been out of work for a week, but she does not think this sed to the deed. She rather thinks that jealousy was the cause, but says her husband had no good reason to doubt her fidelity to her marriage vows. They had been married twenty-one years and had one child, a boy of 15. There was a Laurier button on the discarded coat of the dead man, and it is very probable that despondency over being unable to get the frontised employment had something to do with the suicide. Dr. Purdy, coroner, held an inquest, but Purdy, coroner, held an inquest, but nothing beyond the above facts was brought out.
