Capt. Crowell, of the ship John thile, arrived at New York, on the 22d June, saw on the 15th, in lat. 40, 28, long, 66, at 10 o'clock, A. M., steam ship Great Western, going in fine style; wind at the time from the South, with a smooth sea. The Subscriber will open a standard form the survey and the North Eastern Boundary line, from which be learned that the British Government had substituted to ours a "draft of a convention for the pursoes of regulating the proceedings of the commissioners." Until recently we have been in ignorance of the nature of this "draft," but are now compelled to say that our worst apprehensions are fully realized. We are not able to inform our readers by authority of the precise terms of this "draft," but can say that they are wholly inadmissible.

Mr. Forsyth, the U. S. Secretary of State, has been here, where the Governor and Council are in session. While in Portland last week, he had a conference with Gov. Fairfield, Mr. Williams, Gov. Kent, Col. Davies and other, glyton met him there on his invitation, and submitted to them the protection of the British Government. They were unanimous in the opinion that Maine could not agree to it, and they regarded it only as calculated, if not designed, to make a further and severer test of the patient forbearance of the State, by delaying any equitable settlement.

What action the Governor and Council may take on the subject, we do not know; but understand that the Governor and the other gentlement who were consulted at Portland, complied with Mr. Forsyth's request by making a connet proposition such as they thought Maine would agree to Remoke Journal.
